The Children's Brain Diseases Foundation is a non-profit, tax exempt, charitable organization developed primarily to determine the cause and cure of various progressively deteriorating brain diseases occurring in infancy and childhood.

These diseases frequently go unrecognized or are often misdiagnosed. Even when the diagnosis is accurate, these conditions are all too often considered hopeless.

Although the children appear normal at birth, there is an insidious onset in late infancy or early childhood---clumsiness, stumbling, failure of vision, seizures, changes in personality and dropping of scholastic grades being the most frequently presenting symptoms. Any one or a combination of these signs in any sequence may indicate the beginning of a retrogressive brain disease in a normal-appearing child.

Since it became immediately and painfully apparent that, contrary to cancer, heart disease, diabetes, etc., there was a lack of public or private funds available to study these diseases, the need for the creation of the Foundation was indicated. Since Batten's disease is a classical example of these conditions and a breakthrough in this disease would obviously be of benefit to the other similar diseases, the Foundation decided to focus primarily on Batten's disease as its first objective.

We have sponsored various research projects and, as a direct result of the theories forthcoming from this research, there has been a major breakthrough. It has been discovered that a deficiency of the enzyme peroxidase occurs in persons having Batten's disease. This discovery is analogous to the discovery of a deficiency of insulin in diabetes.

We have also sponsored six scientific symposia which were attended by many of the outstanding research physicians and basic scientists from the United States and Canada. The transcriptions of these symposia have resulted in the publication of a book called "The Dissection Of A Degenerative Disease" which will provide a wealth of material concerning specifically Batten's disease as well as other cerebral degenerative diseases and including the so-called "normal" aging brain. The purpose of this book was to disseminate the knowledge of Batten's disease to the entire scientific community and stimulate research.

An additional highly motivating force for sponsorship of additional research is that in children with Batten's disease a yellow pigment has been found which accumulates in the brain and is similar to the pigment found in the normal aging process. It is conceivable that by solving Batten's disease the normal aging process in human brains could be slowed down.

The Foundation has come a long way in less than seven years and it is certainly rewarding to have been able to discover the enzyme defect responsible for Batten's disease, namely a deficiency in peroxidase. Efforts are now being directed to increase the level of research toward definitive therapy. For example, a number of children are already being fed crystalline horseradish peroxidase and they have been instructed to eat foods high in peroxidase, for example, avocado. Additional funds are needed to study further the role of peroxidase and other related enzymes in therapy.

The Children's Brain Diseases Foundation is unique in that 90% of funds raised actually go into the purpose for which they are raised---research. No salaries or other expenses are paid to any Directors and only minimal sums are spent on operating costs such as stamps, stationary, etc.

We are most grateful to the sponsors, business firms, and individuals whose ads appear in this program. Their generous contributions and those of many other friends who have consistently supported the other projects of the Foundation are truly appreciated. When added to the hard work and devoted services of the Auxiliary members, their contributions become a major factor in enabling us to continue with our research into the causes and cures of children's brain diseases.

J. Alfred Rider, M.D., Ph.D.
President

Two of the outstanding scientists doing research on Batten's disease sponsored by the Children's Brain Diseases Foundation are: Dr. Donald Armstrong, Asst. Professor of Neurology at the University of Colorado, and Dr. Wolfgang Zeman, Professor of Neuropathology at Indiana University.

Dr. Armstrong discovered that there is a lack of the enzyme peroxidase in children with Batten's disease, an important breakthrough analogous to the discovery that there is a lack of insulin in patients with diabetes.

Dr. Zeman clarified the pathological process in the brains of children with Batten's disease, showing there are characteristic microscopic changes in them. He has been instrumental in developing treatment using anti-oxidants.

Dr. Donald Armstrong

RAY BRADBURRY has published some 500 short stories, poems, novels and plays in the past 35 years. His work has appeared in The Nation, The New Republic, Harper's Magazine, Esquire, Collier's, The Saturday Evening Post as well as Playboy, Wierd Tales, Amazing Stories, Dime Detective, The New Yorker, Sight and Sound, Los Angeles Magazine, and Ellery Queen's Mystery Magazine.

His novels include The Martian Chronicles, Something Wicked, This Way Comes, and Dandelion Wine.

Films have been made of his books Fahrenheit 451, The Illustrated Man, and his stories The Picasso Summer, The Beast from 20,000 Fathoms, and It Came from Outer Space.

In 1954 he formed his own stage group, the Pandemonium Theater Company to produce his own plays "The Anthem Sprinters", "The Wonderful Ice Cream Suit", "Dandelion Wine", "Any Friend of Nicholas Nickleby's is a Friend of Mine", and "Leviathan 99".

He spent 35 years writing his first book of poetry, When Elephants Last in the Dooryard Bloomed, recently published. His most recent book is Pillar of Fire, three one-act Future Time plays. He is finishing work on a book concerning Creativity titled How to Keep and Feed a Muse. His next volume of short stories Long After Midnight will be published in 1976.

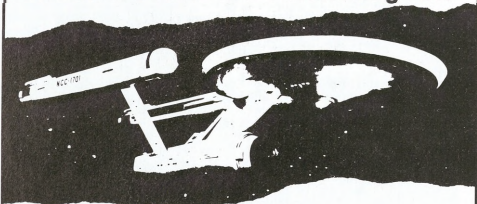

FORREST J. ACKERMAN, a graduate of Balboa High School in San Francisco, won a 1931 newspaper fiction contest for teenagers with the story "A Trip to Mars". He created the Scientification Club at the beginning of the 30's. "Dwellers in the Dust" was picked as a prize-winner in a 1934 contest by the editor of 'Marvel Tales'. In April, 1936, he made his first professional appearance in Wonder Stories, collaborating with Francis Flagg on "Earth's Lucky Day". He has since edited literally thousands of books, magazines and films. He is Honorary Member #1 of the Science Fiction League and had been christened "Mr. Science Fiction" in the press in 1949 by the late Willy Ley. He has won the first Hugo Award, first Ann Radcliffe Award, a German Hugo, Japanese Hugo, and First Fandom Award. Other accomplishments, to name only a few, include: holder world attendance record at World Science Fiction Convention; Charter member of Los Angeles Science Fantasy Society in 1934 and Director, Secretary, Treasurer, Librarian, Club Organizer, Editor, and Patron Saint of the same. Television appearances since 1947 include The Mike Douglas Show, Tom Snyder's Tomorrow, Down Memory Lane, To Tell the Truth, Joe Pyne Show, Omnibus History of SF(BBC TV), The Merv Griffin Show; film appearances include The Time Travellers, Queen of Blood; Dracula vs. Frankenstein, Schlock, Hollywood Blvd; technical advisor for Wizard of Mars, Dracula vs. Frankenstein; creative consultant and additional dialog for Horror Hall of Fame (TV); creator of comicbook character Vampirella (now in pocket book and being filmed); narrator and writer of record album 'Music for Robots'; author of over 1000 articles and short stories; scripted 'An Evening with Boris Karloff and Friends' for Decca Records; edited over 100 issues of Perry Rhodan magabook/bookazine; coined ubiquitous term "egoboo" (boosting of the ego). Completely in love with and dedicated to the Science Fiction World, Mr. Ackerman has collected over 200,000 pieces of Science Fiction memorabilia.

POUL ANDERSON

Poul Anderson has been writing science fiction for almost thirty years. He is probably one of the best writers in the field today. He has been awarded the highest honors available in science fiction more than once. Both the Hugo and Nebula Awards have found their way into his talented hands. Some of his more famous titles include Three Hearts and Three Lions, Tau Zero, and The High Crusade. Mr. Anderson started to write science fiction while majoring in Physics at the University of Minnesota.

FRITZ LEIBER

Mr. Leiber is probably best known for his Fafhrd and the Grey Mouser Series. And rightfully so. His novella, Ill met at Lankmar, won him the coveted Nebula Award. Mr. Leiber has the appearance of one of his own wizards from his Swords Series. Some of his other books include The Big Time, Gather Darkness, and more recently The Wanderer.

RICHARD LUPOFF

Dick Lupoff is a very prolific writer in all fields of sci*fi and fantasy. His works include The Crack in the Sky, Erb, Master of Adventure, The Comic Book Book, and others. Mr. Lupoff is also in the process of writing several other books including a young adult title. Mr. Lupoff makes his home in Berkeley.

ROBERT SILVERBERG

Here again is a writer who has gained both the Hugo and Nebula Awards more than once. He has written many books covering a large span of science fiction. He is sought after as being one of the best anthologists around today. Some of his works include: Dying Inside, The World Inside, Nightwings, Born with the Dead, and many, many others. If one were to put together a top ten in sci*fi, Mr. Silverberg would be way up on top.

GARY WOLF

Killerbowl, which has been out not quite a year, has done so well, that Doubleday Science Fiction has bought up another Wolf title and is eager to get it out to the hungry readers of science fiction. Mr. Wolf has had his short stories published in almost every science fiction magazine in circulation. Killerbowl was his first full length novel to make book form.

JOHN STANLEY

John Stanley, by no means a newcomer to the world of science fiction, has published his first major work: World War III. It has done very well as it goes into its second printing of 50,000 copies. Mr. Stanley has reviewed science fiction, horror, and fantasy with the San Francisco Chronicle for years and is a good friend of Robert Silverberg. A knowledgeable man in his field, many people have seen him on Bob Wilkin's Show, "Creature Features".

MICHAEL KURLAND

Mr. Kurland, who resides in Berkeley, California, has four science fiction titles to his name in print right now. His books include The Whenabouts of Burr, The Unicorn Girl, Tomorrow Knight, and Pluribus. For those who wish to read a biography of the author, there is a rather dubious one written in The Unicorn Girl. Sorry Mike.

MARION ZIMMER BRADLEY

Marion Zimmer Bradley has made a permanent impression upon the science fiction world with her Darkover Series. Her novels are The Shattered Chain, The Heritage of Hastur, The Spell Sword, Darkover Landfall, and The Hunters of the Red Moon. Fans cannot wait for another book in this series. It is science fiction in the grand tradition of Edgar Rice Burroughs' Mars Series.

Cruise Alaska

This is your ship, America.
Take her from San Francisco to Alaska in '76.

The ship.

The SS Mariposa or SS Monterey, America's only luxury cruise ships. Registered in the United States, these ships have been cruising to Alaska and Canada longer than any others.

The service.

With a crew member for almost every guest, we have time to cater to American tastes and comfort in our incomparable grand manner.

The size.

With just 330 passengers, these ships are small enough to be cordial and intimate. (Most other Alaska cruises carry almost twice as many people.)

The spirit.

It's our famous Aloha Spirit, which we take north to Alaska every summer. And it's this friendliness and hospitality that really set our Alaska cruises apart.

In 13 days round trip from San Francisco or Los Angeles, you'll visit Vancouver and Victoria. Cruise Glacier Bay and the Inside Passage. And explore the friendly Alaskan ports of Juneau and Sitka, plus Ketchikan or Skagway.

Before you decide on an Alaska cruise, size up the ship, the service and the spirit! Call your travel agent or send us the coupon for details.

Alaska Cruises: June 29, July 13 & 27, Aug. 13 & 27.
