AUSTIN—The battle for the UH Woodlands campus could end today.

The Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System, will meet at 9:30 a.m. today in Austin. It will hear arguments for and against the proposed campus in south Montgomery County, then forward its recommendation to the Texas Legislature.

Tuesday, Texas Commissioner of Higher Education Kenneth Ashworth and UH President Philip G. Hoffman clashed in a heated debate of facts, figures and projections before the board's program development committee. Ashworth recommended that the board reject the UH proposal until certain criteria have been met.

Reflected in the criteria was a concern that the Woodlands would harm Sam Houston State University (SHSU) by decreasing its enrollment.

Other schools Ashworth said would be "strongly affected" were Prairie View A&M University, Stephen F. Austin State University and Southwest Texas State University.

Other criteria for legislative approval are that:

- SHSU enrollment must reach 12,000 students;
  - The Woodlands should be limited to an upper-level institution; and
  - The population of the immediate Woodlands area in certain census tracts must reach not less than 200,000.
- Hoffman argued the Woodlands campus would be an upper-level commuter school, and that Sam Houston State is predominantly a residential institution.

"To think that a Woodlands campus is a major threat to SHSU is unreasonable," Hoffman said.

Hoffman admitted before the committee that property value in The Woodlands could go up because of a university campus in the development.

"But what more wholesome way to increase value than through education?" he quickly added.

"There could be profits connected with this," Hoffman told the committee.

In 1971, George Mitchell, a member of the UH Foundation, and his wife Cynthia donated 400 acres of land in The Woodlands to UH for construction of a campus in that area. The UH Foundation handles private donations to the university.

Lobby reps fight for student power

By MIKE PETERS
Cougar Staff

UH students have a powerful lobby in Austin thanks to Texas Students' Association (TSA), according to Sen. Susan Borden, UH Students' Association chair of External Affairs.

Unity of its 19 members gives TSA strength to carry out lobbying activities in the Texas Legislature. UH has been an active member in TSA, Borden added.

Borden discussed a number of proposals TSA delegates hammered out at a board meeting in Austin last weekend. These include resolutions which seek:

- placement of students on the governing boards of universities;
- student input on fee allocations committees which make recommendations to regents (such a bill would require regents to justify any changes made in committee proposals);
- a moratorium on funding cuts "that would compromise the quality of higher education in Texas;"

Borden

- reductions in building-use fees as fee-supported bonds are retired;
- a House study of tenure practices and alternatives;
- implementation of a "viable mandatory teaching evaluation system" at state universities;
- alternatives to admissions tests, which are "culturally biased;"

to oppose any legislative effort to raise statutory ceilings on students service fees and medical fees.

"Representing UH in TSA has generally been the job of the state affairs director," Borden said. She began to function as the university's delegate on the TSA board when Ed Martin, former UH state affairs director, was named TSA public information director.

Martin resigned as state affairs director last fall, creating a vacancy SA President Joel Jesse must fill with senate consent.

The emphasis now is on legislation since the state lawmakers are in session, Borden said, but TSA offers its component members many services as well.

"A TSA workbook outlines student services offered at all member schools," she said. Future plans include a lobbying handbook and an update of the services handbook.

An insurance package is pending, basically offering property insurance, which could become available to students through TSA.

An early draft proposal sought complete student control of assessment, collection and allocation of fees, "but we knew we had a snowball's chance in hell for that one," she laughed.

A compromise bill, the proposal for student input in the allocations committees, was hammered out with Martin and aides to State Rep. Sarah Weddington, who will introduce the bill, Borden said.

"TSA membership gives us contact with other schools with the same problems we have, and schools with different problems we can work together on," Borden said.

The organization is a practical way students and student government can keep an eye on legislation affecting them—"both in the pocketbook and in academics."

UH project funded

By MIKE PETERS
Cougar Staff

Disbursement of $10,500 for academic projects began Thursday as the Students' Association Academic Enrichment Council (AEC) reviewed its first applications. Associate art professor Val Link received the first grant, ex-officio AEC member Mike Jackson said Monday.

The $200 appropriation will cover an honorarium and related expenses for a guest lecture-slide presentation March 13 for jewelry students in five courses.

Professor Hekki Seppa from Washington University in St. Louis will speak at the Texas Designer Craftsmen Association convention that week, according to Link's petition for funds.

Jackson, administrative aide to SA President Joel Jesse, said the AEC approved Link's request, turned down two others and postponed a decision on several applications for funding Jan. 20.

SA "has earmarked $10,500 for the AEC in order to provide grants which will augment the classroom environment," Jesse said in a memo to faculty members Jan. 5.

"There seems to be quite a bit of interest from the faculty, judging from calls I've received," Jackson said. He said he expected eight to 10 applications, from political science, drama, and speech departments among others, by Thursday's AEC meeting for review.

One of the refused petitions sought funds for students attending an art convention. "While such a trip might be a legitimate learning experience, the AEC was established for classroom-oriented activities," Jackson said.

Jesse

Another stipulation of AEC guidelines allows awards only to projects without other sources of funding. This requirement forced rejection of another application, a Latin-American studies project, Jackson added.

Grant proposals may be submitted at the SA office anytime, and must have a student and a faculty sponsor.

AEC members will meet every Thursday at 2:30 p.m. to evaluate applications.

Director backs financial service

By JAMES U. TODD
Director Scholarships and Financial Aid

In order to provide a more balanced picture of the services available to the UH student body I am offering the following information:

* We offer no excuses for any service that is less than the best possible. I strongly believe that organizations as well as people who are more fortunate or well endowed should not endorse regressive concepts of "apparent well-being" when only a small portion of their operations or constituency is suffering.

* In the event that some system or procedure of ours breaks down and the student's receipt of appropriate services is threatened, we have alternative courses of action that seek to minimize disruption of services. Such disruptions are the exception.

However, there are thousands of students receiving funds from multiple donors who require unique procedures that are often cumbersome and difficult to carry out. Some of the more recent activity our department has engaged in on behalf of improving the over-all financial aid delivery system are as follows:

* Re-enrolling students who were financial aid recipients in the preceding year are receiving through the mail their new financial aid applications for the next academic year. Our hope is that of encouraging the filing of early applications and minimizing the back and forth character of the student application effort. Early student application filing can often prevent disruptions and unnecessary delay in services being rendered.

* The multiple financial statements required in the past (PCS and the SFS) are being replaced by a single "Financial Aid Form." We were able to do this through the improved technology of our servicing agent, the College Scholarship Service.

* Construction of new office facilities is already underway at the Ezekiel Cullen Building which will allow our department to be more centrally located to other related offices and increase accessibility to our constituency by mid-spring of this year.

* Additional counseling staff have been added to our department to increase our effective personal contact with students and comply with donors' wishes in the delivery of these highly technical Financial Aid Services.

* Our department has provided meaningful input and continues to respond to individuals in and outside of government and other types of donors on the design and implementation of financial aid delivery systems. Our input, coupled with thousands of other colleges around the country, as well as input from the intended beneficiary of these services is finally beginning to pay off.

a. At a public hearing in San Francisco from Jan. 6 to 8, Peter Voight, federal officer in charge of the Basic Grant Program, announced a compromise delivery plan that will reduce paper work for several thousand UH financial aid recipients in the 1978-79 application processing year. This plan will eliminate yet another one of the basic financial documents the student now has to file in order to get a Basic Educational Opportunity Grant or other federally-funded student aid programs. We have long advocated such an approach.

b. Reduction in turnaround time for the early financial aid applicant.

c. Earlier notification to colleges and universities by the federal government on the type and amount of funds that are available for the up-coming year.

d. Regularly scheduled and widely publicized public hearings are being sponsored by the federal government to offer the public an opportunity for grass-root input into the financial aid delivery process.

There is a need for continued vigorous effort in the process of evaluation of services, role perception of scholarship and financial aid programs. The future will see even greater demands from donors to curb program abuses, i.e., falsification of documents, fraud, etc., by student applicants. This condition will call for a delicate balance in the type of systems and procedures all potential students might face in order to avoid unnecessary hassle, while protecting the public's funds.

I am particularly pleased with the way our typical financial aid applicant continues to provide outstanding examples of resourcefulness, understanding, appreciation and above all, self-industriousness. This helps us to solve many of their financial hardships.

Certain problems require greater amounts of time and effort to resolve. This is not available during the fee payment process. For example: A young woman walked into the director's office and said she had a complaint to make against our department. She said we "had lost her forms and that her husband had filed the same forms and was receiving his financial aid." She was further aggravated by our staff's actions which appeared to be unsympathetic to her statements and request.

I immediately reviewed her file and discovered that she had filed her forms at an early date; however, the form she was concerned about had not been filed with the university but was sent directly to the federal government's processing agency. Further, the federal government was supposed to process the forms and send a notice back to the student at her home address. The notice was never received by the student. At that point, we checked our latest roster received a few days earlier and discovered that the student's name appeared on it. This verified the fact that she had sent the agency the proper forms. This verification allowed us to proceed to the next step and eventually solve the student's problem.

This type of detailed review and subsequent actions are not suitable to solving the student's immediate problems of being without sufficient funds to cover initial enrollment expenses; therefore, the university seeks to enable students to complete their initial enrollment plans via other emergency resources.

If you reviewed the entire financial aid delivery process and saw that hundreds of students have last-minute problems for different reasons, I am sure that you will recognize that it takes more than a little effort to work with the students we do help.

EDITORIAL Bad guys kill hope

When the cashier's office was robbed a week ago, students who had written checks for their tuition and fees couldn't be happier. Free school for a semester! And those unfortunates who had paid cash just grumbled and wondered what had possessed them to lay down the legal tender instead of a now non-negotiable check.

Then the nasty controller's office buffed in and ruined everything. "Ah, ha!" said the controller. "We have a record of everybody who paid by check. If we don't recover the checks, we can make every one of them re-issue a check."

Groan.

And what's worse, all the stolen money, whether cash or check, is insured. Every red cent those two lucky stiff's made off with will not cost the university anything at all. Even if the money could not be reimbursed, $46,500 is a small amount when spread over all the students who attend state-supported schools; and $35,000, the cash value of the stolen checks, would barely make a dent in UH's insurance premiums if it was not repaid.

But Controller Harold Scott has spoken. A list will be compiled, and the writers of the stolen checks will be notified to write another check to the university. The university's loss will not be any student's gain (unless, of course, those two men with $11,500 in their pockets are students).

It is to be expected, however, Christmas has passed, and we always knew there was no Santa Claus.

Cry 'Smoke!'

To the Editor:

I am writing this time to suggest that the widely-read Cougar offer some advice to cigarette smokers. Apparently, smokers, after practicing the habit for a period of time, learn to take it so for granted. They begin to consider it natural. Actually, the deliberate inhalation of smoke from burning leaves of any kind is unnatural for human beings. That is why it results in disease.

The advice I suggest you offer concerns the burning of leaves and the inhaling and spreading of the smoke among nearby non-smokers. To those of you who smoke this is quite irritating to the non-smoker. Imagine someone sitting down next to you, putting on a gas mask, and proceeding to release chlorine gas. You would consider this inconsiderate. The releasing of tobacco smoke is not as dangerous but nevertheless inconsiderate people need to learn that gas and smoke cannot be released indiscriminately in the presence of others. I recommend tobacco smokers consider others when spreading their smoke around.

Thank you,

Can't you read?

To the Editor:

I wish to offer a complaint about the Cougar policy of refusing letters to the editor that are not typewritten. Some of us actually do not know how to type. While your policy may save you a lot of trouble and prevent students who can type from carelessly submitting their comments on scribbled notebook paper like this, it also, blindly prevents those who cannot type and cannot conveniently have something typed from being heard.

Does not The Cougar attempt to champion the cause of free speech and press? Are you not willing to go to great lengths to prevent things such as heavyhanded censorship and suppression of ideas? Then you should be willing to accept a letter to the editor with just two conditions: the writer's name and student number should be submitted and the letter should be legible.

Thank you,

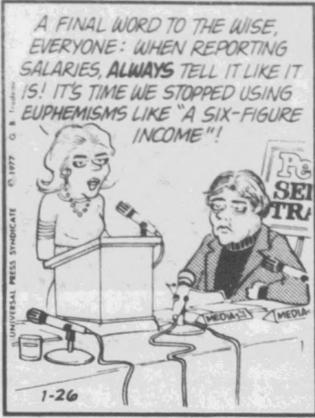

Peter Denman

Editor's Note: Mr. Denman's scribbled letter was deciphered by a crack team of code-breakers from the Cougar copy desk.

Letters Policy

Letters to the editor of The Daily Cougar must be typewritten and not exceed 250 words in length. Letters will be run on a space available basis and will be subject to simple editing.

Commentaries of longer length may be submitted for columns. Letters and commentaries must be accompanied by a name and student number.

Carter's aids denied limos as chief executive cuts frills

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's determination to reduce pomp at the White House will force his key aides to join the rest of the world in solving the problem of how to get to work.

Carter decided Monday that no chauffeured limousines will pick up his ranking aides at their homes and take them in style to their office.

Instead, they'll be encouraged to form car pools, which will have special parking privileges at the White House.

In the Ford administration, 13 top aides got rides to work. Under President Nixon, the figure was about 20.

Press Secretary Jody Powell said he could not say how much the reduction of the White House motor pool from 56 cars to 36 will save. He said the money involved was not as important to Carter as the symbolism of the gesture.

"If the President and the administration intend, as we do, to call on other parts of the executive branch to make reductions, and to call on the American people to make individual sacrifices, it is certainly incumbent upon us to make similar reductions," Powell said.

Powell said he has been taking cabs to work and will start using his 1966 Volkswagen as soon as it can be brought up from Atlanta.

There will still be limousines for cabinet members, and White House cars with drivers will be available for staff members who need to travel about the city during working hours, Powell said.

A U.S. Department of State recruiting team will be in the Houston area Feb. 7 through Feb. 12. Experienced teletypists and stenographers are needed to serve in nearly 250 foreign service posts around the world.

The recruiting team will conduct interviews at the Civil Service Commission Office, Room 104, 702 Caroline St.

To qualify for secretarial positions, applicants must have a minimum of two years recent experience, one of which has included using shorthand on the job. Salaries range from $8,316 to $10,346 per year, plus overseas allowances.

Applicants for teletypist positions must have at least 18 months operational experience within the last six years. Cryptographic experience is helpful. Starting salary is $9,273.

In addition, applicants for foreign service must be at least 21, U.S. citizens, pass medical examinations and, if married, spouse and all dependents must also pass medical examinations. Clerical skills tests will also be administered, and a thorough background investigation will be conducted on the applicants.

Most importantly, anyone applying for a job must be willing to serve anywhere in the world. Processing of applications may take six months to a year.

For additional information and an appointment, contact the Civil Service Commission at 226-5501.

Aid deadline close

The deadline for submitting applications for the determination of expected family contributions under the Basic Educational Opportunity Grant (BEOG) program is March 15, according to the director of the financial aid office.

"This will only affect students just enrolled or those who expect to receive consideration for any monies between now and June 30, 1977," Director James Todd said. The calculation of an expected family contribution analyzes the family's income and property and determines how much could be available to go toward the student's education, according to Todd.

The applications must be submitted to BEOG, P.O. Box P, Iowa City, Iowa, on or before March 15.

The deadline for submitting the UH general application for financial aid is still March 1, Todd said.

Laws favor husband rights

By CHRIS MEAVE
Cougar Staff

"I, John, take thee, Mary, for my lawful wife, to beat and to batter . . ." No marriage ceremony is written that way. No man would think of using those words in the vows, and no woman would enter into such a contract.

An estimated 300 calls a month are made to the police department in Fort Worth concerning husbands assaulting their wives; 14,000 calls are made yearly in New York State for the same reason. Authorities say that if all the cases were reported and records were kept, the victims of wife beating would number in the tens of thousands.

Wife beating is not a low income phenomenon. It runs the gamut of our socio-economic classes.

Recent news stories about wife beating have included men who are administrative assistants on Wall Street, a college professor in Houston and several attorneys.

Montgomery County, Maryland, one of the nation's most affluent areas, reported 650 incidents of wife abuse in one year.

Another misconception is the belief that the wife is the cause of the beating. Often women have been attacked while they slept, Judith Gingold, staff reporter of Newsweek magazine, said:

"There is only one real reason why men beat their wives, and that is because they are allowed to."

More laws not the answer

Detective D. L. Moormon, Homicide Division, Houston Police, said, "More laws are not the answer; murder is against the law. What is needed is a change of attitude in American society."

A society that permits women to be battered needs to look closely at itself.

Women, too, permit their husbands to beat them. Many women have been brought up thinking that a wife belongs to her husband and beating her is one of his marital privileges.

Women, as well as men, must learn that men do not have a "God given right" to abuse their wives.

Of course there are many women who know that violence is wrong but still stay with their husbands and continue to suffer beatings by him. Many times these couples have children. They include, but are not limited to, lower income families. These women stay with their husbands for a variety of reasons. Many of them have an extreme fear of being on their own. They have no jobs, no marketable skills, and no experience in the "outside" world.

Pride is another reason women stay and suffer. Many victims lie to their doctors and to their neighbors about the cause of their injuries. They prefer to suffer in silence rather than face the added humiliation of other people finding out, or of having police come to their homes.

The police know they are not of much help to the woman who has been assaulted. "There's just not much we can do until she files charges," Moormon said. "The police cannot file charges on her behalf."

The whole legal set-up is not geared to help the battered woman.

In a "typical" case, the husband has struck his wife several times with his fist, causing bruises. The neighbors hear the ruckus and call the police. By the time the police arrive, the fighting has stopped. The only thing the police can do is talk to the couple. "The ideal situation is to separate them and get both sides," Moormon said, "then, if possible, get them back together again."

"The next best thing is to get one of them to leave," Moormon said. The officer will stay until the persons leaving gather their belongings and go.

If the wife decides to file charges, she must do so between the hours of 8 a.m.-4:30 p.m., week days only. A citizen's complaint in Harris County cannot be made on weekends or holidays, Moormon said.

When she goes to file, the first question she will hear after "What happened . . ." is, "Do you intend to stay with him." Nine times out of 10, if she stays with him, she'll drop the charges, Moormon said.

If she files

If she does file, the papers will be sent to the Justice of the Peace for his signature. There are only 16 JP's in Harris County so this takes about one week, he added.

After the JP has signed the papers, they are sent to the Homicide Department. Homicide then sends the husband a letter notifying him that he has been filed on and he has 10 days to post bond, he continued.

If the husband does not get in touch with homicide within that time period, it serves him a warrant. The total time involved from filing to serving a warrant is from two to three weeks. This misdemeanor carries a fine of $52.50.

There are about 10 places in Houston where women in crisis can go. The Women's and Children's Residence of the Salvation Army, 416 McGowan, is open 24 hours a day. There is room for 32, but it is filled practically all the time, Doris Graeff, director of the residence, said.

Local women and female children can stay there free for three days, but males are accepted only to the age of six because it is primarily a woman's place, Graeff said.

The Women's Christian Mission, 5069 Calhoun Road, has room for 15 women. It used to have a time limit of two weeks, but now time is based on each individual's situation, June Hall, superintendent, said. The mission accepts women with any kind of problem, and for that reason children cannot stay there, Hall said.

The mission has plans for expansion. It has never thought small. A year ago, with $25 in the bank it started making a deal to obtain its present property of three acres, Hall said. "It raised $20,000 in four months for a down payment, and it must raise $17,000 every Dec. 1 for its one yearly payment," Hall said. It is working on funding for building cottages and obtaining on-premise counseling, she added.

Houston, a man's town

"Houston has always been a man's town for getting help. For women there has never been any backing or any support. Houston is just becoming aware of this problem," Hall said.

Another bright spot for the battered wife in Houston is the YWCA's Committee on Shelter for Women in Crisis. For about a year it has been in the process of documenting and studying the needs of women so it can write its proposal and start raising the $200,000 plus, it will need to start, said Elizabeth Otey Terry, associate executive director of the YWCA.

The shelter, which could open within a year, will offer emergency lodging for 40 persons and will offer psychotherapeutic counseling, Terry said.

Shelters and counseling are a giant step forward in improving the lot of the battered wife. Not just that the shelters exist, but the fact that the shelters are built, run and financed by the public, attests to the raised consciousness of the nation, and Houston in particular, to the seriousness of this problem.

Fountains rest eyes

By KEN MOREAU
Cougar Staff

UH fountains, a place to reflect by in the summer and a place to reflect upon in the winter.

The fountain in front of the Student Life Building, designed by Fred Buxton, Houston architect, in conjunction with John Zemanek, UH architecture professor, is designed to make dorm students feel more at ease, Zemanek says.

"The trees around the fountain are designed in a grid 10 feet square, because it's about the same size as the dorm rooms," Zemanek says. "Sycamore trees form kind of a roof over the grid to form a more personal scale to students, whereas the other fountains are scaled to the buildings around them."

"Water, one of the most common natural resources, soothes the eye... and is pleasing to the mind," Jack Erbe, president, Roman Fountains, Inc., says in his book, "Handbook for Designing Decorative Fountains."

Several UH students and teachers tell of an alligator tale, but nobody confirms it.

The biology students kept fish in the pond which they used for specimens. Somebody, for a practical joke, put a small alligator in the pond.

"The rumor of an alligator in the pond was probably just that, a rumor," Zemanek says.

Zemanek says it would be nice to have a swamp, a stream or a waterfall on campus that shelters creatures, reminding the students of how the campus was before they came.

The soothing power of water apparently attracted the Greeks too, because they built fountains around water.

Trevi, a fountain located by the Tiber river, collects a weekly sum of about 70,000 lire, $800, from its basin, Erbe said. Once a week, on Tuesdays, men in boots scoop up the money in buckets as they clean the fountain.

UH fountains have been drained, but no treasures were ever reported. Students will have to settle for mere pleasure in viewing UH waters.

Some students find it peaceful in the relaxed fountain area. Debbie Carpenter, psychology senior, studies near the fountain in front of Ezekiel Cullen Building.

Saturday scholars earn UH credit

By PATHURT
Cougar Staff

Here is a UH recipe, unique to Texas school systems: Combine nine courses worth of education with a couple of dashes of recruiting techniques. And the UH Saturday Scholar program is the result. Simmer for one semester and it grows to 350 students.

The program, sponsored by the College of Social Sciences, is open to regularly enrolled UH students, high school students and other people in the community.

Courses in the Saturday program are the same as offered during the week and are taught by professors who are considered to be good instructors, says George Forsyth, a UH political science instructor and director of this program. "We have only invited fall members of the faculty to teach in the program. But because they are volunteers, they kind of select themselves out."

Anyone interested in taking one of the Saturday morning freshman level courses has until Saturday to register. The courses are listed in the Spring 1977 class schedule under the college's individual departments. "The program limits the courses people can enroll in to one per semester," Forsyth says.

"The program is designed to give high school juniors and seniors and people in the community an opportunity to earn college credit and to taste a university atmosphere," Forsyth explains.

The majority of these Saturday students are regular UH students, Forsyth says.

The fee is $103.50 for all non-UH students. UH students can consult the fee chart in the class schedule for charges.

Cougars whip SHSU, up season mark to 8-2

By GREG ERICKSON
 Sports Writer

The surging women's basketball team won its second road game in a row over physical Sam Houston State 69-46 Monday night in Huntsville.

Although still battered from the A&M game, Sharion Higgins came through with her best performance of the year as she scored a season-high 36 points. The small, quick guard hit 57 per cent from the field and pulled down seven rebounds.

Cathy Bardwell had another good game as she blocked 10 Wildcat shots and grabbed seven rebounds in addition to her 12 points.

UH looked like a worn-out team in the first half and struggled to a 27-21 halftime lead. But, after a stern talk by coach Dot Woodfin, the Cougars came out and blew Sam Houston away.

Other high scorers in the game were Ingrid Pointer with 11 points and Linda Holland with six. Gale McDonald tossed in 14 for the losers.

The Cougars, now 8-2 on the season, will enter their first tournament of the year January 27 through 29. The Texas Basketball Classic will be in UT's Gregory Gym with Houston's first game scheduled at 7 p.m. Thursday against host Texas. Also competing are Southeast Louisiana, Trinity, Southwest Texas State and fourth-ranked Stephen F. Austin.

Delph, Hogs humiliate A&M

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
 AP Sports Writer

Step right up Steve Jones and tell us what it's like playing Arkansas and particularly machinegun Mavin Delph.

"Well, it's hell guarding

Delph," said Jones after 15th ranked Arkansas romped to its 14th victory in 15 games Monday night with a 72-58 victory over Texas A&M that kept the Razorback Southwest Conference basketball slate at 7-0.

"Delph isn't any quicker than Otis Birdsong of Houston but there's a difference in height and weight," said Jones, Texas A&M's senior guard. "It's just hell, that's all."

Aggie Coach Shelby Metcalf said, "Jones was tight on Delph, but Delph is some shooter. When he goes up for a shot, he believes it's going in."

Delph hit eight of 12 shots in the second half and finished with 22 points as Arkansas stayed ahead of Houston (5-1), which kept pace with an 111-89 thumping of Baylor. Southern Methodist sagged to a 5-2 league mark as Texas Tech escaped with a 58-57 victory.

Texas dumped Rice 74-68 after Owl Coach Bob Polk announced this would be his last year and TCU tumbled to Tulane, 100-82.

Arkansas Coach Eddie Sutton liked what he saw, but immediately began to fret about the rest of the games on this week's schedule.

"We have a crucial road trip ahead, the hardest swing of the

Netters to defend conference crown

By TIM CAPPOLINO
Sports Writer

An air of vengeance is evident when watching the UH men's tennis team pop the ball across the net at the John Hoff courts. The reason for the hard hitting is that the netters are hungry and ready to serve up their opponents for the 1977 season.

The men's team, preparing for its spring debut, is ready to defend its 1976 Southwest Conference championship with a combination of youth, depth and talent. The first tournament is on Feb. 10 at Wisconsin, and coach Lee Merry says his squad is hungry to play. "For many of the players, it will be their first chance to represent UH. They are eager to begin competition and continue the winning tradition of our past teams," he said.

Five sophomores and one junior make up this year's squad, but Merry is not too concerned about age. "We are probably the youngest team in the conference, but I think we will hold our own if we are consistent and confident of our games. We want to go for it all," he said.

The netters will draw a tough starting assignment when they face Georgia, a national power, in the Wisconsin tournament. On Feb. 16, the team will play at Lamar University.

The 1977 edition of the Cougar squad will include Dan Valentincic, Robert Buchalter, Bob Dowlen, Tony Stockman, Scott Mueller and Hans Rusli. Valentincic made the biggest splash of the young season by winning the 21-and-under National Indoor title over the Christmas holidays. A sophomore out of Fort Worth, Valentincic's victory proves Merry's contention that he is a fighter.

"Dan is a fine player because he can vary his game. He has a good topspin backhand, is a fine volleyer and can win points outright," Merry said.

Buchalter, a junior from Tuscaloosa, Ala., was ranked number three in the Alabama Men's single division and has a big serve and volley game, according to Merry.

Dowlen, a sophomore out of Houston and UH's top recruit in 1974, was the 1975 Canadian Junior Clay Court champion and was junior champion of Oregon and Washington. Dowlen compiled an impressive record last year, going 4-1 in singles and 15-5 in doubles. The only lefthander on the team, Merry classifies the Houston sophomore as a winner, a player that "can beat anybody on a given day."

Stockman, a junior transfer from San Diego, is seen as a welcome addition by the coach because of his sound game and strong overhead shots.

Mueller, a 19-year-old sophomore from Houston, was the Western Junior College Athletic Conference champion while attending Midland College last year.

Merry believes that Mueller is the most talented player on the team and "can be as good as he wants to be."

"Scott is an incredibly talented player with good hands and excellent racket control," Merry said.

Rusli, a 19-year-old sophomore from Hong Kong, was the number-one player on the Hong Kong Junior Davis Cup team and is a transfer student from Jefferson State Junior College in Alabama.

With the loss of All-Americans Ross Walker and Ricardo Ycaza, the most valuable player in the conference last year who turned pro, Merry had a job to do in building a team which could shoot for national honors. The coach has accomplished the job with a style all his own.

"I enjoy practicing with the players, being one of the guys," he said. "But I enjoy coaching the most. If I can communicate to the players and give them the incentive to win, then I am satisfied."

La Bastille to reopen with top performers

By JOHN ATKINSON
Amusements Staff

Houston's first and only club dedicated to the presentation of jazz, La Bastille, is scheduled for yet another reincarnation. The a most auspicious day.

The performer opening the club is the pianist who gave the John Coltrane Quartet a sort of magical cohesiveness the jazz world has seldom seen since. McCoy Tyner is a rarity, an uncompromising artist in a world of commerciality, and he is the possessor of a style and technique of utter uniqueness. The shows on the third will be at 9:30 and 11:30 p.m.

Danny Zeringue, spokesperson for new owner Audio Village West Corporation, listed several advance bookings: Lonnie Liston

Smith, Charles Mingus, Eddie Harris, Bill Evans, Larry Coryell and Pat Martino.

Zeringue intimated that the club's management plans to bring the big guns of jazz-rock to the halls of Houston, such as Jones or the Music Hall. Chick Corea has already contacted the owners in this regard, and this endeavor promises to be one of the promoter's most promising undertakings.

The club's format will be slightly altered at various times throughout the upcoming months. According to Zeringue, the owners would like to make a go of weeks with two "dark" nights, and bookings of local jazz talent a couple of times a month. The jazz scene in the Bayou City is just beginning to rouse itself and Audio Village West Corporation intends to give it some room to blossom.

THROUGH THE DARK NIGHTLY

By Bill Cade, Stephen Jarrard, Lynn Langham, Don Sanders and Eric Taylor
On Fair Retail Records

When I first moved to Houston a friend took me to this great little Montrose restaurant which served all the spaghetti you could eat for a buck and a quarter. Besides the excellent food I was treated to the singing of a skinny folkie-type named Don Sanders. He, and everyone else who played at Anderson Fair, worked for the contents of a tin can into which patrons pitched their coins.

Anderson Fair still has the great food, and their lineup of talent has expanded to include such staples of the Houston folk scene as Bill Cade and Eric Taylor. But perhaps that is wrong. It would be better to say that Anderson Fair is the Houston folk scene.

And so it seems only fitting that the best of the Montrose-area folkies get recorded. Sanders has made two albums on his own Mean 'n Low label, but the others have yet to be "discovered."

Each performer is given three tracks in which to display their talent. While each of them shows a fine knack for the folk idiom, Lynn Langham and Sanders stand out.

Langham has a beautiful voice which can go from a husky barroom style to a divine warble effortlessly. Sanders' professionalism and experience show through here with an unselfconscious performance of his "You and Me," "Bayou Song and his hilarious hangover song, "Mean Old Alcohol."

Bill Cade is the most traditional performer of the five and his tunes, "Ripped Off," "Too long in the City," a fairly standard lament of the trials of urban life, and "Texas Was My Home," reflect a leaning toward a country style.

Garrard shows more raw songwriting talent than the others. His "Pineapple and Rum" portrays the most imagination of all the cuts on the album.

Eric Taylor is also a talented writer but his vocal capabilities are limited and this affects his performance. Even so, he, like the others, shows a special commitment which sets them apart from other "house" musicians.

Maybe it's the overall idealism which permeates Anderson Fair and its patrons; a general good feeling.

—T. EDWARD BELL

DOUBLE TIME

By Leon Redbone
On Warner Brothers Records

To say this album was "long awaited" would be a bit ridiculous. For although Leon Redbone has been around a good while, his break came only after an appearance on NBC's "Saturday Night" show. His first album, On the Track, had been out for over a year with only modest sales, but after that one television shot it took off like a wild camel.

Double Time is little different from On the Track; just more good old Depression songs and ancient novelty tunes sung in that unique mumble that sounds like a Victrola with Vaseline in its works.

There's Blind Blake's immortal "Diddy Wa Diddy" (would someone please tell me what that means?), "Shine On Harvest Moon," with lovely tuba backing by Jonathan Dorn, and Jimmy Rodgers' "Mississippi Delta Blues."

Redbone

My favorite has to be "Sheik of Araby." Redbone does the strangest version of this I have ever heard. He grunts, he snorts, he slobbers all the way through and occasionally he gets out a lyric or two. You can bet your ass he'll creep into your tent.

3D picture back from grave

By DEBBIE PARISI
Amusements Staff

Despite the deluge of new film endeavors, re-makes and re-releases of Hollywood's classics must be proving profitable at the box office again. "King Kong," somewhat altered in appearance, has been resurrected to thrill audiences, clips of film giants of the 30s and 40s were conglomerated into two parts of "That's Entertainment" and now the 1950's classic "House of Wax," in a multiple run engagement, has been revived to draw the crowds.

Starring Vincent Price and Carolyn Jones this 3D horror flick introduces a new-comer to the screen, Charles Bronson, in the role of the brawny, deaf and dumb mute, "Egor." (Bronson's verbal acting talents, incidently, have never been better.)

Price is truly adept at playing the role of the phantom sculptor who seeks revenge after his precious Museum of Wax was destroyed by fire by an avaricious business partner seeking insurance money. Crippled and maimed in the fire himself, the artist, now somewhat demented, is determined to rebuild his masterful figures of wax.

This time, however, he devises a method of employing human corpses sealed in a skin of wax to be the subjects in his museum tableaux. Suspicion is aroused as people begin to notice the uncanny resemblance of the wax figures to recent homicide victims. The truth is eventually discovered in the "nick of time" as Price is on the verge of coating yet another victim.

The "three-dimensional" gimmick in movie history never really caught on as producers had hoped. The biggest obstacle was probably the cumbersome 3D glasses that must be worn in order to achieve the full "in depth" effect. However, when one finally adjusts to the awkward plastic lenses it is awesome to watch the screen's action.

In fight scenes chairs and punches seem hurled directly at you resulting in gasps and automatic ducks by the audience. "House of Wax," in exploiting the new technique, employs several obvious tricks to heighten the audience's sense of being right in the middle of the screen.

The humor added to this classic monster movie is the most dated thing about it, unfortunately. But Price created and sustained a gruesome character and his performance alone warrants a renewed look at one of Hollywood's most novel attempts at horror on the screen.

Senate nods Carter choice

WASHINGTON (AP) —The Senate Tuesday confirmed President Carter's nomination of Griffin B. Bell, an Atlanta lawyer and former federal judge, to be attorney general. The vote was 75 to 21.

Carter's selection to head the Justice Department stirred more controversy than any of Carter's other Cabinet appointments and the Senate vote was preceded by more than six hours of at times acrimonious debate.

Republican opponents contended the Democratic majority was not applying the same standards to Bell that they would have had he been the nominee of a GOP president.

Some of them also raised questions of "cronyism" because of Carter's longtime friendship with Bell.

But most of the debate over Bell centered around his civil rights record, an issue emphasized by blacks and liberal organizations who opposed his nomination. Carter has called Bell's civil rights record "superb."

Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., said six days of hearings by the Senate Judiciary Committee left "great gaps" in the record. He moved to send the nomination back to the committee for further hearings. The Senate rejected his motion by a vote of 70 to 25.

Earlier Brooke had clashed sharply with Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., who led the floor fight for Bell's confirmation. The two liberal senators usually are allied on civil rights issues but this time were on opposite sides.

Brooke was among Republican senators who suggested that if Bell were the nominee of a GOP president, he would be rejected by the heavily Democratic Senate.

Bayh denied Democrats were "rubber-stamping" the Atlanta lawyer because he was the nominee of a Democratic President and at one point accused Brooke of demagoging. Brooke protested and asked for an apology. Bayh said he had made the remark inadvertently "in the heat of passion."

Bell, 58, served on the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for nearly 15 years by appointment of President John F. Kennedy and has been described by Carter as the best qualified person he could find to head the Justice Department.

But at hearings held by the Senate Judiciary Committee his nomination drew strong opposition from the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the Congressional Black Caucus, Americans for Democratic Action and other civil rights and liberal organizations.

Brooke, the Senate's only black, called the six days of hearings held by the Judiciary panel "pro forma and perfunctory" and said additional witnesses should have been summoned in an effort to get all the facts about Bell's record.

Bayh, who took the lead in the Senate debate in urging Bell's confirmation, said Brooke's indictment of the committee was unfair. He said its questioning of Bell, lasting some 13 hours, had been probing and detailed.

The committee voted 10 to 3 to recommend Senate confirmation, with all the dissenting votes cast by Republicans.

Sen. Charles Mathias, R-Md., one of the committee members who voted against thenomination, told the Senate that Bell's confirmation "would raise grave doubts about whether the people could look to the Justice Department in the future as a citadel of equality and justice."

During the debate Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo., disclosed he had received a letter from FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley saying he intends to retire next Jan. 1.

Danforth said he had concluded this was a voluntary decision by Kelley and was "not in response to pressure" from Bell or anyone else.

Kids wanted for nursery

The home economics department is still accepting applications for the spring session of the Laboratory Nursery School. Under the new directorship of Dr. Carol Quarton, the school is offering educational classes for children of the university community ages 2½ to 5.

Class scheduling is from 8:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and an extended care program from 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. daily. Additional scheduling is also available for child care in the morning before classes. For more information, phone 749-3121 or 749-1378.

Trees get clip job

Pruning work has begun on trees west of the new wing of the Science and Research Building and north of the site for the Humanities Building.

UH landscape architect Merri Talley said the university negotiated a good deal on the contract because it is the slack season for outdoor landscaping work.

Workers will trim branches and remove deadwood, Talley said, and will inject fertilizer into the soil.

"This is a very good fertilizer that is active for about 18 months," she said. "Most fertilizers are only good from two to three months."

Davey Trees, Inc. was awarded a contract near $10,000 for the work by the Office of Facilities Planning and Construction. No trees will be removed, Talley said.

Cons learn from TV

MARQUETTE, Mich. (AP) —Police shows on television often give convicts ideas for future crimes, according to a three-month survey at Michigan's maximum-security penitentiary in Marquette.

The study was done by Grant H. Hendrick, a 31-year-old inmate who has served five years of a life term. He said he was "really quite surprised" by the results. "I didn't think television was that educational in terms of crime."

Hendrick said nearly 90 per cent of the 208 prisoners he talked to claim to have improved their criminal talents by watching TV.

And 40 per cent said they actually attempted crimes they first saw on television—although only about a third of those claimed to have succeeded.

One inmate said he got away with a theft inspired by a "Mission Impossible" episode in which a safe was burglarized after a false wall was built to conceal the crime.

"He made up a fake wall of canvas and carried it into a store," Hendrick said. "Then he set it up inside so passersby couldn't see that he was cracking the safe. He was successful."

The survey was conducted for publication in the Jan. 29 issue of TV Guide magazine.

Faculty group elects head

The Faculty Senate will hold an election today to choose a new chair to replace Dr. John McNamara, who is on a leave of absence.

Dr. Gertrud Pickar, German department chair, is the only nominee so far. The Senate's Committee on Committees proposed a slate of officers at their last meeting in December and nominated Pickar as chair. These officers will be proposed again at the meeting, and other nominations will be accepted.

proposal must be approved by the board and authorized by the legislature during this session, and some construction must begin by 1981.

If these conditions of the donation are not met, the land, valued in excess of $10 million, would revert to MEDC, Hoffman said.

Board member Betty Jo Hay said she was tired of real estate developers "dangling something in front of our noses.

"I don't like it when we're forced into a decision by real estate developers," Hay said.

The board is expected to hear testimony from members of the legislature and representatives from other universities today before voting on the Woodlands proposal. Hoffman said UH would not seek legislative approval for the campus without the board's endorsement.

German lectures set

Six lecturers described as "leading authorities in their fields," by Dr. Edward Haymes, assistant Professor of German, will be speaking at UH this semester.

Their field, German expressionism, is "a movement in all of the arts which took place during the first decades of this century," said Haymes.

"It is an external expression of something deep down within the artist. No one will be quite the same again as a result of this movement," Haymes said.

Dates of the public lectures will be announced at a later date.

Speakers will include: Walter Sokel, "one of the major experts on Kafka in the U.S.," according to Haymes; Reinhold Grimm, a leading authority on German playwright Bertolt Brecht; and Helmut Kreuzer, of the University of Siegen, Germany, who will join the UH faculty in the fall as an M.D. Anderson Professor of German.

Most of these courses will be open for enrollment until Friday, according to Haymes. The courses are: Art 393T, English 233T, English 477B, German 469A, German 430T, German 671T and Drama 675.

UH TAE-KWON DO KARATE CLUB

Why is there a Karate Club? Why do college students spend their time punching and kicking instead of watching TV? First in many people's minds is the idea of self-defense. But that interest can wane as energies flag. What keeps one going is enthusiasm and a sense of determination. As movements that first felt confused and clumsy gradually become fast and strong, there is a satisfying feeling of accomplishment and growing self-respect. Daily tasks become easier to face. Working week after week, the student develops patience and self-confidence which find their way gradually into his other endeavors—school, work, family. He becomes a more positive person.

There is no such thing as instant karate. Any college student will learn, if he doesn't already realize, that there is no instant education. A bachelor's degree indicates that he has devoted a period of several years to study. A black belt in karate is the same thing. It means a person has studied the basics of his field and is proficient at them. As a matter of fact, like having a double major, it is possible to earn a college degree and a black belt at the same time.

If you are interested in finding out more, come to our meetings at 7 PM every Monday and Thursday in Room 205, Hofheinz Pavilion. See you there...
