Caldwell resigns for personal reasons

By JEFF PIJANOWSKI
Staff Writer for The Cougar

Houston Police Chief Harry Caldwell Wednesday cited personal reasons for his sudden resignation from the force he served with since 1953.

Caldwell said Assistant Deputy Chief Brad K. Johnson will become acting chief on Feb. 29, the date Caldwell's resignation becomes effective.

Caldwell plans to take the position of director of security and community affairs with Quoin International, a private Houston investment firm, to work on corporate security, public affairs and potential projects, Quoin Chairman Wayne Goetsche said.

The position pays $90,000 per year according to news reports, but neither Caldwell nor Goetsche would confirm this figure.

"The last thing we need is a chief of police who is fatigued," Caldwell told a group of reporters in his office. "The next chief must have a burning desire to do the job."

Mayor Jim McConn received Caldwell's resignation immediately before Monday's city council meeting. McConn had appointed Caldwell to the post in June of 1977.

Caldwell refused to say if he had recommended a new chief to McConn. A source within the department said if Johnson were offered the job, he would accept it, but he would not request the position.

Justice of the Peace Al Green has voiced his disapproval of the next chief coming from within the department.

"I think it will be a big mistake for McConn to name someone who is already in the department," Green said. "The department is in the need of changes that only someone fresh could make." Caldwell said, "I think the next chief should come from within the department, someone who already knows the problems it's facing."

The next chief should consider an increase in the administrative staff "above and beyond what I've considered," because the "the job will become more demanding," Caldwell said.

Quoin Corp., 4615 Post Oak Place, concentrates on oil and rail supplies, Goetsche said. He refused to be specific as to when the offer was made to Caldwell except to say they were friends for "several years" and the offer "developed."

Caldwell said he is leaving the force at a time without any controversy.

"This is a propitious time for me to culminate my career as chief of police. I have kept the faith of the citizens of my city. I think that I have fought the good fight. I leave you a police department with no unresolved questions of integrity," Caldwell read from a prepared text.

"My only regret is that I was unable to communicate with every sector of the community as well as I would have liked to," he said.

Caldwell said his staff will remain intact and foresees no major changes within department personnel.

Caldwell

Caldwell thanked members of the community for their support during his administration.

HFA dean candidate supports merit rewards; two interviewees remain

By FRIEDA BEATY
Staff Writer for The Cougar

The third of five candidates for dean of the College of the Humanities and Fine Arts concurred with other dean hopefuls that HFA scholastic merit should be rewarded.

Dr. James Pickering said rewarding productive people should be done everywhere, not only in Houston. "What system I would use, I do not know." He added he did not know how he would go about distributing the amount allotted for rewards either.

"If you give an across-the-board reward, this does not make for academic excellence. Houston is a good place, and when you find good faculty, you treat them well. You keep them so, UH will be a better school," he said.

Pickering is presently director of the Honors College at Michigan State University, and received his doctorate at Northwestern University.

He said he would like to serve as dean of HFA because he enjoys working with people and projects, and because he likes to see things work smoothly in higher education. "I have dedicated my life to higher education."

He said, "Serving as dean would give me the opportunity to be on the firing line, and to work for a good cause."

If offered the position, Pickering said he would continue to teach English, preferably American literature. "I have been in an administrative position since 1967, and I still enjoy teaching," he said. "I get a real kick out of being in the classroom. I believe administrators should be in the classroom, because it keeps them in touch with the students."

He said, "There is tremendous opportunity in the college." However, he added he did not know of any plans he would make in changing the college. "I have heard a lot, but I will go back to Michigan, sort things out and try to come up with some conclusions."

The college has tremendous strength in the music, drama and art fields, and there is an opportunity and need to expand them, Pickering said.

While visiting the campus, Pickering talked with the faculty and staff of the college of HFA. In talking with the faculty, he said they are concerned with the lack of morale in the college, and that they feel they (the college of HFA) have been neglected by UH. "They have to figure out how to make do with a five percent raise when inflation is 13.1 percent. This problem, however, is not unique to UH. It's national," he added.

Automatic deferments cut

Religion only draft exemption

WASHINGTON (AP) — America's young men and women looking for a sure way out of being drafted will have to turn to religion, under President Carter's registration proposal.

Brayton Harris, spokesman for the Selective Service System, said that unlike previous drafts when there were many exemptions and deferments, the only automatic exemption if a draft occurs under Carter's proposal would be "minister of religion."

That doesn't mean, however, that there won't be some exemptions.

"The theory is that any deferments and exemptions should be granted on the merits of the individual case, such as hardship or conscientious objector," Harris said. "There will be no student deferments, no occupational deferments and no automatic deferments for family status, such as having children. The only automatic exemption will be for minister of religion."

Local draft boards will make the decisions about exemptions and deferments, Harris said.

President Carter sent Congress a report this week outlining his decision to call for the resumption of draft registration.

The report, in which Carter asks for authority to register women, also said that, should a military draft become necessary, it would be based on a random lottery system that would take 20-year-olds first.

Shasta going for age record

Shasta III, the beloved mascot of the UH Cougars, is 15 years old today. The cougar's age may sound young to some, but if Shasta were a human she would be the equivalent of 105 years old.

The record age for a cougar is 17 years, according to Cougar Guard member Louis Binder. "Most cougars live 6 to 8 years in the wild and 8 to 12 years in a zoo," Binder said.

Binder added that Shasta III has a good chance to break the record for the oldest cougar because she is in good shape and well taken care of.

Binder said there will be a birthday party for Shasta III today in the Moody Towers lobby from 4 to 6:30 p.m. and the cougar will be present. Posters of the UH mascot will be on sale for $3.25.

David L. Clewis, another Cougar Guard member, said, "Shasta III is doing very well for a cougar her age, but she did fall asleep during the UH-Arkansas basketball game."

Binder said Shasta III retired in 1977 because of illness.

Editorial:

Caldwell restored integrity, honor to battered HPD

For the past two and one-half years, this city was honored to be served by one of the most dedicated individuals to work for this community.

Police Chief Harry Caldwell will leave his office in much better shape than it was when he first walked into it. Somehow, the Houston public never really appreciated the work he did.

In June, 1977, the department was scarred beyond recognition. Locally, the city hated everyone who wore the badge. The men in blue were looked upon by the citizenry as a menace. Nationally, the country regarded Houston as part of the "wild west" a la 20th Century. Everywhere, people saw this town as the Detroit of the South.

Time has healed those scars, but not without the dedication and determination of the one man who could still be found standing after taking all the criticism a city could toss at him.

Caldwell took a pile of rubble and glued the pieces together to create one department that functions with the single goal of serving the community. It is a department which by no means is perfect, but that has earned the respect of the people it is paid to protect.

The challenges are many for the next chief. The manpower must be increased by nearly 25 percent, police officials say, before the department can even come close to being as effective as it wants to be. Relations must be improved with the minorities in the city. Minority members are still cautious about police activities.

These are problems with which the next chief will have to wrestle. The community, thanks to Caldwell, now has a cohesive department to work with to solve the problems facing Houston.

Viewpoint:

UH journalists boycott Mannings

The SA Senate came up with a valid solution to the food service problem at UH—boycott Mannings, Inc. However, the senate has yet to carry out the boycott.

The members of Sigma Delta Chi, the Society of Professional Journalists, felt if students were going to call for a boycott, they should boycott. Sigma Delta Chi will boycott Mannings by refusing to conduct our initiation ceremony at the University Center, which uses Mannings as a caterer, even though it would cost us less to use Mannings' services.

SDX members, like many other UH students, are tired of waiting 30 minutes to be served by rude waiters and waitresses at the UC coffeehouse. We are also tired of the high prices Mannings charges at the Coffeehouse and the UC Satellite.

Last week, SDX President Tom Bell said we had tentative reservations for a UC room for the ceremony at the end of February. However, after a unanimous vote, we decided to hold the ceremony a week later, in order to have it at a private home.

SDX would rather use more of our general treasury funds to pay more for the food than hire Mannings at a lower price, and get Coffeehouse service.

The UC Policy Board has met with Mannings several times, trying to get it to improve its service. But Mannings has shown no improvement, and the UH administration has shown no desire to hire another food service.

If this campus' students want better service and reasonable prices, they will have to do something to get the attention of UH administrators.

SDX thinks a boycott of Mannings would grab the food service's attention. And if we make Mannings hurt by slicing their profit margin significantly, Mannings just may mention to UH administrators that they are unhappy with their contract.

It is not impossible to hire a food service with which we can be satisfied. Texas A & M has a university-run food service, and a majority of students there say they are satisfied. Baylor employs ARA for its food needs, and students indicate they are happy with the service they receive.

Why has UH not changed the company with which it does business? Simply because we have used Mannings for a few years, and UH does not want to go through new negotiations.

As students, SDX members do not want to see UH students laughed at for constantly grumbling, yet doing nothing about our dissatisfaction. Mannings, this is official notification of an SDX boycott of your services.

What St. Valentine's Day is really all about

Some 1,500 years ago this very day, Bishop Valentine refused to pay homage to a false idol. For this brave act, the good prelate was chopped to bits and later canonized.

Choppers also played a role in a 1929 Valentine's Day celebration. A west-side Chicago businessman sent holiday greetings to a colleague who operated the Windy City's north side. When the party ended, seven of Bugsy Moran's torpedoes lay in a bloody heap on the floor of the North Clark Street garage.

Even the cherubic Cupid should dispel any notion that the so-called hearts and flowers day has little to do with posies and promises—have you ever been shot with an arrow? Valentine's Day is pain.

Why just last night I was remembering... (Slow dissolve to a one-room schoolhouse with a gaggle of eight year olds clustered around a large box that is gaily decorated with ribbons and doilies. The date—Feb. 14, 1962.)...

"Now children, quiet down so we can exchange our valentine cards," Miss Flickenger said excitedly, clapping her hands together for order.

"Oh I hope I get a card from Penelope, I hope I do," I prayed breathlessly to myself. Penelope was a cute little girl who wore frilly dresses with lots of petticoats and shiny Mary Janes to class everyday.

Miss Flickenger, playing Cupid's mailman, handed out the cards amid giggles and groans of embarrassment from all the children.

I only got three cards that day. One was from Butch, the class cut-up, and two were from Bessie. Bessie was the girl that looked like a mud fence, dressed like a hod carrier, and smelled like burning hair. She had a crush on me, and nothing I could do would make her leave me alone.

I fled the schoolhouse in tears. Reaching home, I raced to the basement to play with my pet rat, Mickey. Listening to him playfully chirrup never failed to cheer me up, but I was in such an agitated state I accidentally twisted poor Mickey's head right off his little shoulders.

...(Freeze the scene. Let pages from a calendar ruffle over the freeze. Stop at Feb. 13, 1980. Fade to the inside of a newsroom in Houston, Tex.)...

That day was certainly distressing. Mostly because my mother would not let me have another rat.

I have heard other ideas about why St. Valentine's Day is so painful to some. For instance, one notion holds that you must cut your heart out before giving it to someone else, but that should be dismissed as gushy, emotional nonsense.

I am talking about real physical pain and anguish. Like the kind I am going to be in for if I don't quit jerking around with this column and find a snazzy card for my wife. She believes the Valentine's Day ritual is not voided by the nuptial vows.

But even if Mary does get mad at me, there is no problem. You see, right after I left home to join the Marines I bought another rat, Mickey Jr. In fact, I bought two rats. The other one is named Minnie. Now I have lots of rats, and if I get in trouble tonight, I'll just go down to the basement and teach them what St. Valentine's Day is all about.

Athletic director extends apology

To the Editor:

I would like to apologize on behalf of SMU for the sign that was displayed at the Houston-SMU basketball game on Saturday, Feb. 2, 1980 at Moody Coliseum. Quite frankly, I did not even see the sign until the matter was brought to my attention by a University of Houston athletic official.

You have my sincere apology for this incident. There is no place for this kind of conduct in intercollegiate athletics, and I want you to know that this behavior does not reflect the attitudes or traditions of SMU.

I am embarrassed and angry for the conduct of any of our students, and I'm disappointed that something like this could happen.

I have the utmost respect for the University of Houston and your fine institution, and I value my personal friendships with many of your athletes, and the athletic administration at the University of Houston.

Please accept my sincere apologies. Sincerely,

Russ Potts

T. Bell gets slammed again

To the Editor:

T. Edward Bell is listed as Amusements Editor for The Daily Cougar. I personally was not amused by his biased article in Monday's paper.

His opinion of the unfortunate experience of Chancellor Munitz was disrespectful and in very poor taste. I may not like the Chancellor either, but I think taking cheap shots at someone else's misfortune is beyond the scope of decent journalism, no matter who was the victim.

Have you been robbed of your possessions, Mr. Bell? If not, at least try to show some sort of compassion for those of us who have been robbed, including Chancellor and Mrs. Munitz.

Education fund created

Professor donates $50,000

By DEBBIE SOKOL

A foundation fund for the UH College of Education has been established with a $50,000 donation from a faculty member, Associate Dean of Education Ronald McIntire said this week.

Dr. Theresa Monaco, who has been on the UH faculty for 10 years, said she feels very strongly about the quality of education, and this fund is intended to supplement the present programs in the College of Education.

"Higher quality programs are needed which will benefit both faculty and students," Monaco said. Some of the money will be endowed, McIntire said, and the interest will go towards funding research grants, scholarships and new faculty recruitment.

McIntire said the College of Education has a strong commitment to recruit "quality" students and to turn out better teachers into the area. Recruitment requires money for publicity, workshops and advertising, which is very expensive, he said. Students currently need a 2.5 GPA to be admitted to the College of Education.

The dean is authorized to use these funds in a discretionary manner, McIntire explained, which means he does not have to put the money into endowment, but may spend a portion of it right away in the way of campaigning the program's information to potential clients. "Probably $100,000 of this year's $150,000 goal will be endowed," he said.

Other unendowed money will be spent on new faculty recruitment, McIntire said, because this cannot be covered by state funds. "Sometimes 'extra purchases' are necessary in the recruitment process and discretionary funds are needed for that purpose," McIntire said.

"The Challenge Club" was created to help attain this year's $150,000 goal, McIntire said. This group of 10 community leaders will raise $5000 each in donations of $1000 or more for the college, McIntire said. "The quality of the teacher is the most important variable in terms of whether students learn or not," McIntire said.

UH African Studies program sponsors tour through Kenya

UH students will get the chance to learn first-hand about Africa and its environment through a trip to Kenya sponsored by the UH African and Afro-American Studies program.

Students can not learn about Africa in the classroom and understand it fully, said John Indakwa of the African and Afro-American Studies Program. Students will also be able to make new friends in Africa, something they would not be able to do otherwise, he added.

Indakwa, a native of Kenya, said this is the first tour of its kind sponsored by UH.

Though it was announced only a short time ago, about seven people have already signed up, Indakwa said. People wanting to go have called from as far away as Detroit, he added.

The tour costs $2,187 and includes round-trip transportation from Houston, bus and air fares in Kenya, plus room and board.

The tour plans to leave Houston May 14 and return June 11. UH students who go on the tour will be able to receive three credit hours.

The tour program calls for stays in Nairobi (the capital of Kenya) and other cities such as Nakuru and Mombasa.

Those people interested in going must pay a $200 deposit by Feb. 21 and pay the balance by late April.

For more information contact Dr. John Indakwa at 749-1772 during business hours.

Insurance subscriptions down

The University Health Center Policy Board decided Tuesday to ask the chancellor's office to include insurance packets in the registration mail-outs sent to students.

For the past two years, insurance information has not been included in the registration mail-outs, resulting in a drop in subscriptions, Associate Dean of Students Connie Wallace said.

UHCPB Chair Greg Edwards said, "The insurance subscription rate is down. The insurance company will have to raise premium rates because they don't have the insurance (business)."

Edwards said the subscriptions are down to approximately 1300. However, when the insurance packets were mailed with the registration information, the enrollment was "a lot better," Edwards said. He said two years ago subscriptions to insurance numbered 1900.

"The more students using the insurance, the cheaper it is," Edwards said.

To make the insurance as inexpensive as possible, Edwards said the UHCPB will open the insurance service for bids.

"We have a consulting firm for the Health Center to take bids and give us recommendations," he said.

Auditor takes position

UHDC financial head named

Vincent J. Rodnite, director of auditing for the UH System, has been named as acting vice chancellor for finances and operations at the UH Downtown College, according to Dr. Charles Bishop, president of the UH System.

As acting vice chancellor of UHDC, Rodnite will be responsible for overseeing all financial affairs and for assisting acting Chancellor Allen Commander, Bishop said.

Before joining UH in 1978, Rodnite served as director of internal auditing at the University of Texas at Austin, where he established the internal auditing function. From 1965 to 1976, he was a member of the state auditor's staff in Austin and was responsible for auditing state-supported colleges and universities.

Rodnite holds a bachelor's degree in accounting from UT at Austin. A certified public accountant, he is a member of the American Institute of CPA's, the Texas Society of CPA's, the Institute of Internal Auditors and the Association of College and University Auditors.

Rodnite will continue as acting vice chancellor of UHDC until a permanent vice chancellor has been approved by the Board of Regents.

Rodnite said that he does not know yet if he would like to be a candidate for the position of vice chancellor. After he has taken on the duties of his new position, he said he will see if he would prefer to stay in auditing or make the move.

The search committee has yet to fill the UHDC chancellorship.

Boogie and be healthy

Houstonians are urged to "Put Their Money Where Their Heart Is" in the American Heart Association's Valentine Heart Dance and hypertension screening today at the Downtown Sheraton Hotel.

The daylong affair kicks off the Association's yearly funding campaign. The hypertension screenings will be available from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. in the hotel's second floor lobby. The Valentine Dance is scheduled for the second floor ballroom from 4 to 8 p.m.

"This will be one of the first such events to be held in the downtown area and we hope the public will participate by getting their blood pressure screened and having fun at the dance," commented Dr. Richard Miller, program chairman.

The hypertension screening is an early warning detector of high blood pressure and takes very little time. Specialists in diet, nutrition and drugs as they relate to hypertension will be present to answer questions.

The informal dance will highlight 50's and 60's music, featuring the 17-piece James Williams Big Band and the popular Jazz Medics. In addition, prize competition and refreshments will be provided.

A $5 tax-deductible donation for the dance will be requested. More information on today's event is available from the Association's Houston chapter, 797-1812.

 Mirella Freni; Luciano Pavarotti, Sherrill Milnes, Nicola Rescigno
 London OSA-1355

One opera that never fails (even with a less-than-excellent cast) is Puccini's "Tosca". Why? Because it has everything: gorgeous music, action, drama, and a villain who's nasty as hell! Put this all together and you have what critics from the premier in 1900 to now have called "Puccini's shabby shocker." Put it with an excellent cast and you get an evening of great theatre.

So far, all but one complete recording has fallen into the "good but not quite" category. That "one" is the 1952 Angel monaural set starring Maria Callas, Giuseppe di Stefano, and Tito Gobbi that is full of blood and thunder. Despite the dated sound, it is still the one by which to judge all others. Sometimes, the comparisons aren't so nice. Fortunately, the new set comes out very well.

First of all, Freni as Tosca? Her voice, judging by past roles, is too light for the dramatic demands Puccini makes. She is an excellent Mimi, Liu, or Manon but Tosca? YES! She may lack the last bite of Callas' fire but she makes the role one of power and beauty. Here is a woman full of passion and determination. The voice holds up superbly and meets every demand head on. Brava!

Also, Pavarotti is not the most exciting choice for Cavaradossi. At least not until you hear this record. His voice partners Freni marvelously and he, too, meets Puccini's demands that call for a powerful, metallic sound as well as a caressing love duet. Neither should be strained or bellowed. Pavarotti does neither and is wonderful. In fact, the voice here sounds like his splendid instrument of a decade ago.

This is Sherrill Milnes' second go at the Baron Scarpia, one of the most vicious of operatic baddies. The other attempt was on RCA with Price and Domingo. He has learned quite a bit in the meantime and surpasses himself. The voice is one of the best, if not the best, baritones today and Milnes is a very intelligent singer as well as a fine actor. He puts it all together and comes up with one of the best Scarpias on record.

Nicola Rescigno leads the National Philharmonic with distinction as well as a knowing hand. He drives but never loses the poetry of the score. All too often, this score is driven to the point where the results are enjoyable for the moment but nothing memorable or something you'd care to come back to. This one is more than worth returning to.

This one may not replace the old Callasdi Stefano-Gobbi but it is the best stereo alternative. The singing is superlative, the conducting magnificent, the surfaces quiet, and it's easier to find than the older mono set. So, if you like Puccini, "Tosca," Freni, Milnes, or Pavarotti, grab this one. But be careful. Even an old jaded operaphile couldn't resist hearing the whole thing at one sitting.

'The Fugitive' finishes his run

HOLLYWOOD (AP) Actor David Janssen, who led detectives on a tense chase for years as the falsely accused murderer in television's "The Fugitive," died of a heart attack Wednesday at age 48.

Janssen suffered the attack at his Malibu home, said actor Stuart Whitman, a longtime friend who happened to be driving by about 4:30 a.m. on his way to his ranch in Santa Barbara.

"They had taken him out of bed and they were working on him, and working on him," Whitman said. "It must have been half an hour altogether. One of them said, 'I think I've got a heartbeat,' and they took him to the hospital."

Janssen was pronounced dead at Santa Monica Hospital.

The death came as a shock to friends and colleagues. Janssen's agent and manager of 21 years, Abner Greshler, said Janssen had "no history whatsoever" of heart problems and his doctor "is in just as much of a state of shock as we are."

Janssen was born David Meyer on March 27, 1931, in Naponee, Neb. His parents divorced when he was young and his mother brought him to Hollywood, where he made his film debut at age 9 in "Swamp Fire," portraying the brother of Johnny Weissmuller. Janssen made his mark in television playing the title role in the detective series "Richard Diamond" from 1957 to 1960.

But it was "The Fugitive" that made him a star. From 1963 to 1967 he played the role of Richard Kimball, who was accused of killing his wife.

"The Fugitive," loosely based on the famed Sam Sheppard murder case in Ohio, earned Janssen three Emmy nominations. The last show of the series, in which the true murderer finally came to light, won the highest-ever A.C. Nielsen rating for an episode of a continuing series with 72 percent of the audience.

Before his TV career skyrocketed, Janssen had been under contract to 20th Century Fox and later Universal where, after spending two years in the Army in Korea, he made what one of his own publicity releases described as "32 forgettable films."

MARATHON
Santana
Columbia Records

"Marathon," Santana's latest release, features few of the ingredients that made the group so successful in the late '60's and early '70's.

With each new release, Carlos Santana's soaring, stinging guitar leads are becoming rarer and instead, the group's albums are filled with rehashed schlock from old Dennis Yost and the Classics IV albums.

Fortunately, Santana has canned Greg Walker, the lead singer on the last few Santana albums who subscribes to the Saturday Night Live-Bill Murray school of butchering songs in the best Holiday Inn style.

Unfortunately, his replacement, Alexander J. Ligertwood, is not much better and makes one wonder why Carlos bothers hiring these pathetic brothers for a group known basically for its instrumental quality.

What is sorely needed is a return to the spiritually influenced, jazz-rock fusion sound of "Caravanserai," "Welcome" and "Borboletta." On these albums Carlos and his band really gave themselves a musical workout, constantly testing their abilities, which is a far cry from the middle-of-the-road pap the group is dishing out on "Marathon."

"Marathon" compares rather palely with the fiery Latin-rock excitement generated on Santana's first two albums, which is what the new album is being billed as a return to.

Only the instrumentals, "Marathon," "Aqua Marine" and "Runnin'" bear any resemblance to the famous Santana sound. "Aqua Marine" especially stands out as beautiful as anything the group has ever done.

This latest incarnation of the band seems pitifully inadequate when compared to some of the talented groups of musicians Santana has previously put together.

Carlos promises the next album will be more like "Caravanserai." Let's hope he's a man of his word.

INTRAMURAL BASKETBALL

1978 was the year of the horse. 1979 was the year of the cat. After viewing last weekend's intramural basketball action, 1980 must be the year of the goat, as several ranked teams wore "goat horns" by being upset in games they were favored to win. Actually, most of the upsets occurred in fun league competition, where upsets are an every-week occurrence. Also, the IBA (Intramural Basketball Association) appears to be much more balanced this year, and the word upset is more a figure of speech than it is a reality. Look for more "upsets" before the season ends.

Of course, the big game of the week pitted a determined HUH?! Women's team (ranked second) against the gritty Crescendells (ranked first). When the smoke cleared after four regular periods and one overtime period of spine-tingling action, an emotionally-drained standing-room-only crowd gazed at the scoreboard which read HUH?! Women 27, Crescendells 24. HUH?! Women led by only a point with about twenty seconds left in overtime when a long downcourt pass against a Crescendell press to Darlene Myer resulted in a game-clinching layup. Myer had eight points and ten rebounds in the win, while teammate Jeri Graves directed her team's offense. Sherrie Boone of the Crescendells was the game's dominant player as she skyed for 12 points and several crucial rebounds, while Amy Davis jumped in six, including the free throw that sent the game into overtime.

Fun League—This weekend's biggest shocker was Political Science's 41-32 win over top-ranked fun league team, the Retinal Degenerates. Ted Harpham bombed home 13 points and John Tatlock 11 for the winners, while the Degenerates Carlisle had 12 points in defeat. Fifth-ranked fun team 11th Floor "B" was stunned 50-28 by the Accomadative Spasms as Jim Eitek and Chris Warford gave th Floor fits by scoring 16 and 14 respectively. Steve Cross mopped up for 11th Floor with 5 points and 3 steals. The Phuc Ups lived up to their name by losing to Dissentary 31-19. Tom Ivy scored 10 for Dissentary, while John Gruber had 9 for the losers. Mike Taylor of Kappa Alpha "B" overcame a severe stomach virus to throw up in the bucket 13 points in his team's courageous 29-20 win over the "B" group from Lambda Chi Alpha. Mike Shanenburger had 15 for the short-handed (4 players) winners, while Rick Austin had 6 and Kenneth Rollo 4 in losing.

Women's Open and Sorority—In Sorority action, Karen Altfarber gunned home 10 points in Alpha Chi Omega's 24-10 win over Phi Mu. Paula Simmons and Mary Carnero had 4 points each for the loser's, while the winners also received 6 points from Diane Wells. Also, Delta Gamma surprised Chi Omega 13-10 in a mild upset behind Katherine Gonzalez's 6 points and Lea Ann Havenman's 3 points. Chi Omega was led by Margie Paetz's 6 points and Debbie Mitchell's 2 points and 5 steals. In Open action, Tropical Storm's Elaine Adams, Kathy Starr, and Mary Kleinhenz scored 4 points each in their 14-3 victory over the HRMS Women. Jennifer Embe and Susan Dunn starred in defeat. Finally, the Ebony Pearls raced by the Foxy Foveas 38-6 as Kim Turner hit for 12 and Cassie Piland 10. Evelyn Bailey scored 4 in defeat.

Blind rally to ease by in a 57-53 squeaker. Wheatie Harris must have eaten some of the cereal with the same name as he popped in 16 points in winning, while teammate Rick Delgado canned 15. Dave Vicars scored 17 for Snow Blind, while Mark Keller hit for 16 in the thwarted comeback attempt. Third-ranked Kool Aid Gang runned and gunned past Mass Destruction 64-38 as Alex Oria canned 18 points and Keith Gilbreath 14. Jeff Weyer had 16 for the losers. The Hustlers used an aggressive defense led by Craig Haptonstaid in their 43-24 win over a much-improved Organization of Vietnamese Students team. Pham Dung scored 6 points in defeat.

Pro Club—Kent Nickell's 9 points paced the way for the Nittany Lens 34-23 slugfest over Theta Tau. Eddie Monroe had 6 for the losers. ROTC paraded past Chemical Engineering 26-24 as John Longoria rifled home 8 and Wayne Mays skyed for 10 rebounds. Billy McElain poured 4 points in the tube for the Chemical Engineers. Kappa Psi's Chuck Forest rampaged for 20 points in their 64-15 route of Delta Sigma Pi. Although the losers couldn't see the trees for the forest, David Mosley scored six points and played well in defeat. HRMS dined on E. Robinson's 26 points in their 55-33 roasting of ASCE, who received 11 points from Mike Smallcombe. The Scleral Spurs beat Phi Delta Chi by the wink of an eye 34-28 as the Spurs' Holloway hit for 15, while Phi Delta Chi's Pearlman scored 8.

Dorm and Fraternity—In the only fraternity matchup, 13-rated Sigma Chi routed Beta Theta Pi 86-34 as Jerry Edington exploded for 32 points and Mark Knoblauch 22, while Ralph Adams hit for 12. Doug Roderick worked for 14 points for Beta Theta Pi, while Nadim Nasir canned 12. Finally, F Troop survived a scare from a fired-up Jerry's Kids team 42-41 in a helter skelter dorm matchup. Tom Lukish's baseline jumper from the right corner with two seconds left proved to be the winning shot, two of Lukish's 15 points for the day. Brent Smith also scored 10 for the winners. Jerry's Kids received 14 points from Mike Gifford and 11 from Neil Solomon.

In a related matter, Joe Pierce of HPER hit 93 out of 100 free throws to win the men's free throw competition. He edged out Burt Holloway of Sigma Nu in a shootout. Meanwhile, Carol Wells of the Cougar Brass won the women's competition by sinking out of 50 shots.

Gridders pledge to SWC schools; UH to get Archie

(AP)—The Texas Aggies sacked the most schoolboy bluechips on Southwest Conference letter-of-intent signing day Wednesday, but the Baylor Bears made big hometown headlines by landing local glamour boy quarterback Alfred Anderson of Waco Richfield, who ran and passed for 32 touchdowns last year.

Coach Tom Wilson of the Aggies said he was "pleased and excited" about his crop which included large and mobile linemen, a highly sought running back and the No. 1 rated placekicker in the state.

"If the people who evaluate Texas high school players know what they are doing, we've got an outstanding crop," Wilson added.

Wilson's delights included such all-staters as linemen Tommy Robinson, a 260-pounder from Gregory-Portland, Scott Polk of Dallas White, Kermit Foster of Beaumont Hebert, running back Bubba Hill of LaPorte and placekicker Alan Smith of Texas City.

Baylor Coach Grant Teaff motored a few miles from his home to sign Anderson, who was highly coveted by the University of Houston.

Nobody was more delighted than Anderson's mother, a big Baylor fan, who said, "I'm very happy Alfred decided on Baylor. Now I can see him play in every game."

Teaff said he, too, was happy to get the chance to see Anderson play, wearing the green and gold.

"He's a great kid," said Teaff. "He'll work very hard and could help us right away."

Most schools had reasons to be happy although Arkansas, Houston, Texas Tech, SMU and Texas banded together in a news blackout because they feared raids from other schools before the Feb. 20th national signing day.

Word filtered out anyway that Texas had signed bluechip running backs Terry Orr of Abeline Cooper and Mike Luck of Houston Spring Branch; Houston signed sensational wide receiver Lloyd Archie; SMU signed bluechips quarterback Lance McIlhenny of Highland Park and tight end David Randle of Dallas White; and Texas Tech got running back Freddie Wells of Lewesville.

Arkansas made its usual homestate haul, including top-rated quarterback Bill Pierce of Crossett and running back Eddie White of Camden.

Regarding the signing of Archie, Huntsville Coach Joe Clements said Colorado is still in the running for the national signing date, but thinks it is 80-20 that Archie will stay with Houston.

"Lloyd is a good friend of Allen Polk, who played here a couple of years ago and now is a running back at Houston,"

Clements said. "He lives across the street from Lloyd and he's been a great influence on him."

Rice got two top quarterbacks in Doug Johnson of Pasadena Dobie and Phillip Money of Edinberg.

Coogs stumble in Princeton

By DEBBIE KELLEY
Sports Writer for The Cougar

The men's tennis team opened the season on an unsuccessful note at Princeton this past weekend, but will try to regain possession of their season record on the John Hoff courts, 1:30 p.m., Monday. They will be taking on Northeast Louisiana.

In the opening round against Princeton, Houston's Juan Ayala defeated the Tiger's Adam Coith in a triple match. Ayala came out on top, clinching the winning points for the Cougars.

Van Manning also played a crucial role for the Coogs. He finished off the singles matches with a win over Flip Rueben, also in a triple set match. Manning lost out in the first round, but proceeded to grab wins in the remainder of his matches.

In the doubles division against the Tigers, Houston lost some tight matches, especially in the hands of Nduka Odizor and Joel Hoffman.

Against Michigan the next day, Odizor began singles competition a little slower than usual, but pulled himself on top for a win. Houston's David Dowlen also defeated Princeton and Michigan.

"It was a tough meet, as I had expected," said Lee Merry, coach of the nationally-ranked Coogs. "It went well for us, though. Both Princeton and Michigan are primarily indoor teams," he said.

The Cougar squad made a comeback in their third and final matches against Utah in both the singles and doubles division. Odizor, Dowlen, and Ayala outwitted the Utah squad in the singles race.

In doubles action, Odizor and Hoffman teamed up for a pair of wins, while the team of Dowlen and Gibbons swept their match. The Coogs are now posting a 1-2 season record.

Women divers to attempt AIAW qualifying

By JULIE MAUDLIN
Sports Writer for The Cougar

The UH women's diving team will travel to Columbia, South Carolina Friday for the pre-qualifying meet of the Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (AIAW).

Peggy Plough, a sophomore from Corpus Christi, and Debbie Hill from Salisbury, Rhodesia will be representing UH in its bid for a national title.

Hill was the national champion in 1976 and 1977 for both Rhodesia and South Africa. She was also the national champion in Rhodesia for 1978.

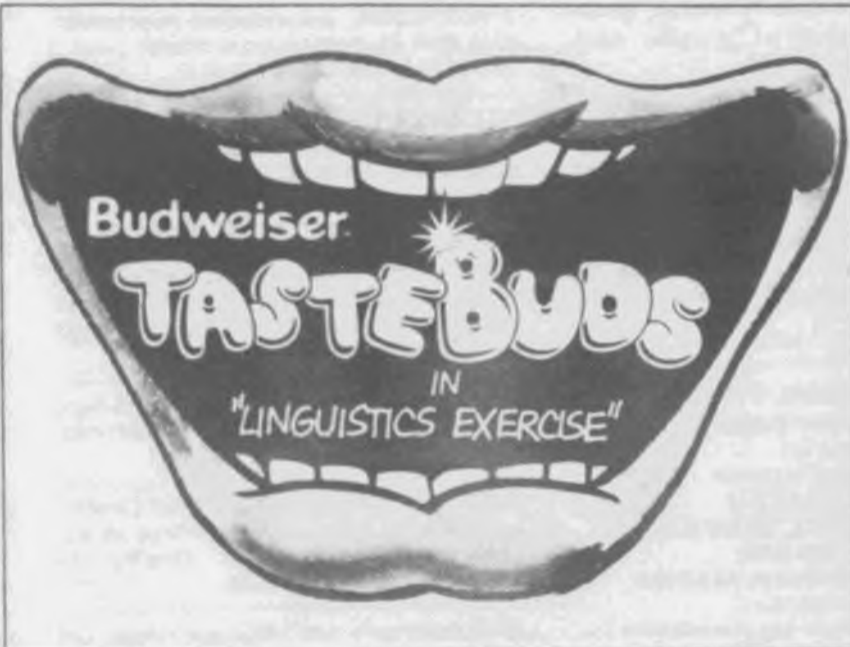

"Debbie has met her qualifying time of 140 in several meets. She scored a 292 last weekend against A&M," Scott Pierson, UH diving coach, said. "There should be between 30 and 40 competitors at the meet. Debbie should place in the top 12, which is what you need to qualify for the national championships. She may even make the top three," Pierson said.

Peggy Plough, who went to the AIAW meet last year but did not qualify, is expected to do much better this year. "Peggy has made a lot of improvements over the past year. She has made her qualifying time and should fair pretty well," Pierson said.

The men's diving team, which consists of Jason Juback, Dave Parrington and Glen Evans compete in the SWC. Parrington was also a national champion for Rhodesia for several years.

The scoring of a diving meet is done on the basis of six dives. Each dive has a degree of difficulty (DD). As each competitor dives, the judges rate the dive on a scale of one to ten. There are seven judges in a championship meet. The two highest and two lowest scores are dropped from scoring. The three remaining scores are then multiplied by the degree of difficulty of the dive. This is done for six dives to get the divers score.

The B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation in Houston exists to meet the many needs of a diverse community of Jewish students and faculty-religious, cultural, intellectual, political, social and personal. While located on the University of Houston campus, Hillel also serves Rice University, the Texas Medical Center and all campuses in the greater Houston area.

Hillel aims to foster a sense of a campus Jewish community through a variety of activities—lectures, social events, classes, and informal group discussions. In addition, Hillel offers many concrete resources such as a library and information on jobs, housing and study/travel in Israel. Hillel is more than an office. It is people, ideas, issues and community.

For more information contact Rabbi Shaul Osadchey at 749-1231.

The Baptist Student Union offers a wide variety of activities for students, including Bible studies, mission opportunities, luncheons, socials, and international ministry. There are also opportunities for expression in the creative arts including music, drama and art.

Several Bible studies are held each week in A. D. The BSU Executive Council, along with their committees, plan and coordinate the BSU activities. There are also five full-time staff members who act as resource and support personnel.

Each Monday at noon over 75 students enjoy a hot lunch, fellowship and a short program. This is only the beginning of a busy week for the BSU. For more information about BSU and the weekly schedule call 749-2942.
