Carter aide hints U.S. may use force in Iran

(AP) — The Carter administration hinted for the first time Tuesday at the possibility of U.S. military action against Iran if American hostages at the U.S. embassy were not freed.

The veiled threat came from White House spokesman Jody Powell after President Carter returned to Washington from his Camp David retreat to confer with top advisors, including military leaders.

"The United States is seeking a peaceful solution to this problem through the United Nations and every available channel," Powell said. "This is far preferable to the other remedies available to the United States.

"Such remedies are explicitly recognized in the charter of the United Nations. The government of Iran must recognize the gravity of the situation it has created."

Under the U.N. charter, an aggrieved nation is entitled to take defensive military action and seek Security Council sanctions, including the interruption of economic ties or air, sea and land communications.

It was understood that the statement was intended as a stern warning to Iran's revolutionary leaders that the United States is no longer ruling out the right of self-defense.

At the Pentagon, officials declined comment on the White House statement. They said, however, that no orders had been issued to alert or move any military units.

Defense Secretary Harold Brown and Gen. David C. Jones, head of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, took part in the White House meeting.

Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini said Tuesday that the 49 American hostages still held at the embassy in Tehran will be tried as spies if the United States refuses his demand to return the ousted shah. He called upon millions of Iranians to demonstrate Wednesday against American "imperialism."

Hours before Khomeini delivered his call over nationwide radio and television, militants released six more black men and four women from the embassy. State Department officials said all 13 hostages freed so far might be home for Thanksgiving.

Immediately after Khomeini spoke, thousands of people climbed to their rooftops and the capital rang with the cry, "Allah Akbar — God is great." The religious leader's remarks Tuesday night appeared to take a tougher stand than his statement Sunday that the militants had found evidence U.S. diplomats were spying on Iran from the embassy "and a certain number of spies...should be, according to our laws, tried and punished."

Iranian national television stoked the religious frenzy by broadcasting film taken last year of a series of bloody riots against Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi that led to his exile in January and the downfall the next month of the government he left behind.

State Department Spokesman Hodding Carter said any trial would be a "mockery" of international principles.

"If there is anything more unacceptable than the taking of hostages it would be this trial," he told reporters in Washington. "It is outright violation of diplomatic relations and diplomatic protection."

U.S. diplomats attempted unsuccessfully in New York to convince other Security Council members to condemn a possible spy trial for the hostages.

Committee formed

Police problems discussed

By FRIEDA BEATY
Staff Writer for The Cougar

Problems of police protection at university functions were discussed at a meeting Tuesday, with nine representatives from different areas of the university community.

The representatives decided to look into an ad hoc committee that would look at each group on an individual basis to determine whether the group needs to have police protection at the function it is sponsoring.

They also discussed treating organizations as responsible bodies, in reference to providing security with their own people, and having the university administration help with providing security in some circumstances.

The meeting was provoked by the recent incident with the UH-PD at the Oct. Kappa Alpha, Program Council, Kicker Dance, where a student was arrested, and taken to the Houston Police Station Downtown and booked. Similar incidents happened at the free fair, and the street dance.

Several representatives stated their concern for the control over the police officers that their organization is paying for.

"The concern we have is control," said Bobby Brownstien, manager of Residences Halls. "They are not working for the party, but for the sergeant on duty." Brownstien said if they hire outside staff, they would be working with the people in charge of the party. Outside security is cheaper, and we want someone there for show and to take orders, he added.

Brownstien said he was looking into the legality of bringing an outside force onto the campus to use as security during the groups events. Julius Gordon, associate dean of students, said he was not in favor of bringing outside security onto the campus.

Other representatives expressed their concern as to who has the say so on when to have security, and when not to. The present rule says any event that will attract more than 75 people should have at least one police officer on duty.

Panel to debate difficulties facing public transportation

Those tired of fighting the everyday traffic should tune in Friday night, Nov. 23 to hear a panel of transportation officials discuss possible answers to one of Houston's biggest problems — traffic.

The panel includes Walter J. Addison, executive director of the Metropolitan Transit Authority, Bill Ward, district engineer, Houston Urban Project of the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation and Dale Marvel, director of Traffic and Transportation of Houston.

The program is scheduled to air at 8 p.m. on Channel 8.

McConn squeezes by Macey in runoff race

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Mayor Jim McConn, seeking a second two-year term, held a shaky lead Tuesday over his longtime bitter political opponent, City Councilman Louis Macey, with about one-fourth of vote reported.

With 123 of the city's 355 precincts reporting in this non-partisan runoff election the count was McConn 31,092 and Macey 30,602.

McConn was running strong in the minority precincts while Macey was depending on a big backing from the affluent sections and those areas which normally vote Republican.

Houston voters also were selecting six council members and history may be made.

Two women are leading for council posts and never before in the history of this, the nation's fifth largest city, has a female served on the governing body.

Christin Hartung, 38, a former aide to a county judge, was leading in her runoff race against insurance executive Don Hogan, 37.

And, Eleanor Tinsley, former president of the Houston School Board, held a narrow 2,500-vote margin over incumbent Frank E. Mann, a 20-year veteran of the council.

Mann had been opposed by minority voters and was the special target of the Houston Gay Rights Coalition. No minority candidates were involved in the runoffs, a sharp contrast with the Nov. 6 election when three blacks and one Hispanic were named to the council.

Apathetic students cause CarGo loss

Houstonians still are married to their cars. And apparently, the driving habits of UH commuters are about as permanent as the engravings on the face of the Ezekiel Cullen Building.

This dedication to the one-person automobile led to the eventual demise of Cougar Car-Go. The program was offered to UH students as an alternative to the hassle of rush-hour driving which is getting more and more expensive every day.

What led to the failure of Car-Go? Maybe it was the cost. But the fares were calculated to beat the average 17 cents-per-mile that it costs most commuters to drive to school in one-person cars.

Maybe it was the inconvenience of the location. But the buses left from parking lots in the Almeda and Baybrook mall areas and were located adjacent to the Gulf Freeway.

So why did it fail? There's only one answer left — apathy. It's a worn-out excuse, but it's true.

Oil experts are predicting that early next year, the United States will be hit by the worst gas crunch to date. And the cause is the cutoff of Iranian oil to the United States. It has resulted in a 3 to 5 percent drop in our oil supplies, and whenever you have a decrease in such a high-demand commodity as oil, you're in for trouble.

In terms of what UH commuters will see, it will mean more expensive gas prices. It will also bring us closer to the point when we can no longer ignore the fact that our future energy consuming habits must change.

But apparently, most UH students choose to ignore the future.

Happy Thanksgiving

This Thanksgiving will mean many different things to different people.

To a lot of people it will mean a welcomed rest from a very busy semester. For others it will be an annual time of being thankful for the good that has come in the past year.

The Daily Cougar wishes everyone a Happy Thanksgiving.

Letters:

Faculty raises not enough

To The Editor:

Your reporter Ms. Jan Martin did an excellent job of reporting on "Faculty concerned with distribution of pay raises" in the Nov. 13, 1979 Cougar. I am writing this note to correct a probable typographical error in the reported percentage rate of average increase in instructional administration cost which rose 36 percent (instead of 6 percent) as compared to 14 percent per year increase in the total faculty cost during 1969-1979. Since 1977-78, when budget for UH Central Campus was separated, one finds that the UH instructional administration cost is increasing at approximately two and one half times the faculty cost. In view of the above HISD School Teachers who got an average of 10 to 12 percent net increase this year better than the lopsided distribution of 5.1 percent UH faculty pay raise in the face of 13 percent inflation rate. Governor Clements' suggestion to Texas State University Presidents to reduce faculty numbers was not only based on erroneous data but also misdirected.

Provost Manager's response to working with faculty and the University Grievance Committee decisions is ironic, since his office has been the grave yard for all decisions in serious grievance cases with campus-wide policy implications. Previous years Provost-Chancellor's Office decision are almost never reversed by the Provost Office, and rarely our deans are over ruled by the Provost Office. I guess that makes it a good academic administrative team!

Faculty will have to have representation in the Board of Regents before it's input is heard seriously enough to make any difference in our operation under very transient administrations. The same is perhaps true of student input!

UH gets the royal screw again

To The Editor:

The University of Houston has been screwed once again and this time screwed Royally. I am referring to the bowl invitations that went out this past weekend. Sugar Bowl officials, as far as I am concerned, you can take your bowl along with Darrell Royal, Frank Broyles and shove all three of them up your asses.

Any major bowl that would stop to the type of finagling and political dealing that the Sugar Bowl has engaged in this year, I would not want to play in anyway. What the hell did Darrell have to do, offer you bastards a ten percent kick-back, or maybe a $1,000 rebate on one of his Chrysler pieces of junk? And what about Arkansas? Has Frank promised you free coverage on ABC?

Well Darrell, it looks like you have won this one too, just as you did the matter concerning our quarterback, Darrell Shepard. I do have a suggestion for you. I think you should bend over, grasp your ass firmly with both hands and hold on tight, because the Cougars are going to kick it all the way out of Memorial Stadium next November.

Sugar officials, the day will come, and not too far in the future, when you will beg Bill Yeoman and our University of Houston Cougars to come play in your bowl. I hope at such a time, that Mr. Dempsey tells you to take a Chrysler New Yorker and shove it.

Terrorism not condoned

To the Editor:

Political science professor G. Hossein Razi is wrong. There is nothing in other Eastern or Western culture that condones terrorism, hostage-taking, or rampaging violence. In fact, most other Islamic nations have publicly condemned Iran's recent actions.

"Cultural Conflicts" is simply a term popular with political scientists and sociologists in their efforts to explain away irrational violence.

Watt appoints himself to fill opening on service fee board

By RICHARD CONNELLY
Staff Writer for The Cougar

The SA senate had another business-as-usual meeting Monday night, hearing committee reports, voting on a few bills and making two appointments.

But the senate took care of first things first, signing up their names and student numbers for priority registration for the spring semester.

SA President Ed Watt appointed himself, pending Senate approval, to fill a vacancy on the Student Service Fees Committee. As president, Watt serves as an ex-officio member of the committee, but said he would appoint someone to act as his designate in that position.

Watt said he wanted to serve on the committee to preserve continuity when his term runs out in April.

The ex-officio designate will be appointed with the advice and consent of the senate, Watt said. Two of Watt's earlier appointments were confirmed Monday night. Mike Noonan and Stephen Rubin were approved for the Religion Center Policy Board and Stacey Riley was approved for the Athletic Committee.

Riley was appointed to replace Charlie Dorn, who was not approved by the University because of Title IX regulations. Those regulations deal with equality of sexes in academic matters, and the university felt one of the two student appointees to the committee should be a woman.

All committees made a report to the senate Monday night, with Campus Governance reporting on the appointments, and Fiscal and Governmental and Student Life reporting on bills. Educational Affairs Committee Chair Myrna Herrera told the senate her committee is "finally on the ball and rolling."

Speaker Martin Weiser again

commented on a lack of senate activity. "There has to be some opinion on campus, for instance about Iran, that can be expressed through the senate," he said. He offered to help any senator with the drafting of resolutions and bills.

The senate approved two bills at the meeting. One bill allocated $260.60 from the senate contingency fund to cover the cost of paper for the senate and the senate journal.

The senate also approved a resolution supporting the student government of Southwest Texas State University. That student government is currently involved in a battle with the SWTSU administration about a student government constitution.

The meeting wrapped up about 45 minutes after it began, a difference from SA meetings of other years. Senators explain this by saying much of the work is now done in committee and not on the senate floor.

Clements blasts White over spill

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements accused Attorney General Mark White in a hotly worded letter Tuesday of misrepresenting the attorney general's authority in regard to oil spills and of "politicizing" the issue of the Campeche Bay runaway oil well.

Clements' letter to White was distributed by his press secretary late Tuesday afternoon.

Attached to it was a copy of a telegram Clements said White sent to various oil companies on Nov. 12. The telegram invites the companies to send representatives to a meeting in White's office Tuesday to discuss what might be done in response to future spills.

In the telegram, White says he had been "unimpressed with the ability of the existing governmental and commercial structures" to respond to the Mexican oil spill and the collision of a tanker and freighter that has resulted in an ongoing spill fouling beaches around Galveston. "As I told you in a telephone conversation today, I take strong issue with inferences you made in the attached telegram," Clements told White.

He said the telegram impugns actions taken during the oil spills by agencies ranging from the U.S. Coast Guard to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, as well as the governor's office.

"Your communication inviting attendance at today's meeting amounts to a misrepresentation of your authority, and I hereby urge you to limit your activities to those matters within the purview of your office. I also call upon you once again to quit politicizing the oil spill issue," Clements said.

He said White had refused the governor's request to allow either Clements' general counsel, David Dean, or Frank Cox, state coordinator of disaster emergency services to attend Tuesday's meeting with the oilmen. This, the governor said, "clearly calls into question your motives and intentions in this matter."

Clements told White that the attorney general has neither constitutional nor statutory authority to involve himself in state actions to clean up oil spills.

"I take offense when you purport to exercise authority over matters outside your jurisdiction, and I will not let such actions go unchallenged," Clements said.

White filed suit recently against SEDCO, Inc., the drilling firm founded by Clements. SEDCO owned the drilling rig Ixtoc I, leased by a driller under contract to the Mexican national oil monopoly, which drilled the well that blew out in June in the Bay of Campeche. The blowout resulted in large quantities of oil washing ashore on Texas beaches.

White's suit seeks to hold SEDCO partially responsible and obtain money damages from the company.

WHAT IS A PARALEGAL CAREER?

A paralegal career is one of the most exciting new careers for college graduates.

A paralegal is a lawyer's assistant who is able to do many tasks traditionally done by attorneys. Not a clerical or a secretarial role, the paralegal is a new legal specialty with excellent job opportunities in law firms, corporate legal departments and banks.

Three months of intensive training in courses taught by law professors and lawyers can give you the skills to interview witnesses, conduct legal research, prepare pleadings, draft transaction documents and prepare cases for trial all under the supervision of an attorney.

The Basic Legal Assistant Course begins January 28, 1980. In addition to the three-month daytime program, the same course is offered as an eight-month evening program. A representative will be at the Career Planning and Placement Center on Wednesday, November 28, 1979.

Tech invades Dome on Friday

By GREGG STENGEL
Sports Writer for The Cougar

It's back to business as usual for the Houston Cougars the day after Thanksgiving, as the Texas Tech Red Raiders come to the Astrodome for a nationally televised game at 2:07 p.m.

Everything is looking sunny for the Coogs. If UH wins its last two games, and Texas wins theirs, UH will go to the Sun Bowl in El Paso to meet either Washington or USC on December 22. Texas will be in the Cotton Bowl on January 1.

If Texas should lose once, the door for the Coogs to return to the Cotton Bowl is wide open. One bowl for sure the Cougars will not be going to is the Sugar, where Texas and Arkansas dealt themselves to.

Texas Tech comes into the Houston game with an injury riddled team that has lost its starting quarterback Ron Reeves, and was routed by SMU last weekend 35-10.

Houston will remember Tech very well as the Red Raiders derailed the Cougar express en route to its Cotton Bowl last year, winning 22-21 last season in Lubbock. The Astrodome has been a tough place to play for Tech the last couple of seasons. The Raiders dropped a 24-17 decision to Nebraska in the 1976 Bluebonnet Bowl, and then lost 45-7 to Houston in 1977.

Big fullback James Hadnot of the Raiders needs just 24 yards to move into the Top 10 career rushers in SWC history. Amazingly, though, Hadnot has not scored a touchdown this season. Despite Tech's 3-5-2 record this season, it has not been unusual for the Raiders to lead games early this season. The Tech defense has allowed just 10 total points in the first quarter this year.

"It goes without saying Houston is a tremendous football team," head coach Rex Dockery said. "Bill Yeoman does an exceptional job every year."

"We are going to be giving up quickness at some positions and what will concern us the most is their great overall team speed," Dockery said.

Hit by four suspensions last week before the SMU game, the Ponies hit the Raiders in their depleted secondary where two of the players were starters. "It was a tough decision to make, but we felt like it was the best thing for the future of our program," said Dockery.

The Coogs come into the game losing two starters, cornerback Donnie Love with a broken hand, and James Wilson has a bad back. Both will be lost for the season according to Yeoman.

Kickoff for the Friday battle in the Astrodome is 2:07 p.m.

Guest tickets available for Friday

All UH students will receive special guest ticket prices for the Texas Tech game this Friday afternoon. All UH students may purchase guest tickets for $4 with no limit and subject to availability the remainder of this week. These student guest tickets will be available at Hofheinz Pavillion through Wednesday night.

Tickets for Friday's game will go on sale to the general public at the Astrodome Friday morning starting at 9 a.m. from the advanced ticket window. The Astrodome gates will be open at 12:30 p.m. The UH-Texas Tech game on ABC national television at 2:07 p.m. will be followed by two high school state playoff games. Memorial faces Houston Lee at 5:30 p.m. and Yates takes on Kashmere at 8 p.m. Tickets for these two contests may be purchased right after the UH Texas Tech game.

Fans purchasing tickets for the UH-Texas Tech game will also gain free admission into the First Annual Harris County Fair going on this weekend in the Astro Arena. Likewise, anyone currently holding a ticket for the fair may purchase a football ticket and receive a $2 discount.

UH basketball season ticket holders are reminded that they have the remainder of this week to reclaim their 1978-79 seating area, or to change seat locations for the upcoming 1979-80 campaign.

Basketball season tickets will go on sale to new customers starting next Monday. Fans are also reminded that they have an additional seating area for season tickets this year, located on the opposite side of the Hofheinz Pavillion court from the normal seating areas. Houston opens the 1979-80 basketball season against Arizona on November 30 in Hofheinz.

UH basketball fans interested in purchasing season tickets for the first time may do so by contacting the UH ticket office in Hofheinz Pavillion at 749-6588.

Season ticket orders may be placed from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Wednesday and will continue to be taken next Monday through Friday.

Block seats are priced at $58 while reserved seats are $46.

Cougars, Angels slate doubleheader in Hofheinz Pavillion Saturday

UH and Houston Angel fans will be treated to a unique basketball doubleheader Saturday night when Guy Lewis unveils his 1979 UH club and the Angels meet the California Dreams in Women's Professional Basketball action in Hofheinz Pavillion.

The Cougar basketball team will face off against its own team as Lewis will divide his squad in the annual Red and White intersquad game at 7 p.m. Then the Angels will tip-off around 8:45 p.m. with reserved or general admission tickets honored at both games.

The Coogs, with many new faces on Lewis' roster, will give UH fans their first opportunity to see many heralded freshmen before the season opener against Arizona on November 30.

The Angels, 1-0, will be trying to defend their league championship from last season. Tickets are on sale at Hofheinz Pavillion.

NOVA

Turkey issue!

vol. 8 no. 6, wednesday, nov. 21 1979

Houston:

By David Quine and John Atkinson

Any great city has its points of interest.

In some cities they are only points. In other cities you could point and be wrong.

Houston, like all of these other great cities which have not been mentioned, has its interesting areas.

Looking around for these areas and finding them could very well prove impossible, so NOVA is going to make it easy for you by telling you where to go.

One place we were going to tell you to go is right out, because we are confining this travelogue to the Earth.

So, the first and quite obvious point of interest has to be Pasadena. If you have never been to this fair town which is completely surrounded by Houston, its probably been awhile since your nose really got a good work out.

It's best to plan your stay in one of the city's two or three fine franchise motels when there is a brisk north wind, so that the full effect of all the chemical and waste treatments plants can be had. You're bound to get a snootfull.

There are certainly many cultural points of interest in Pasadena. One of the nations most modern Chevrolet dealerships makes its headquarters there. Pasadena's little league ball teams are certainly works of art.

And of course, Pasadena is one of the few places on the face of the earth where one can see more Nazis than Negroes. No one has yet figured if there is a causal relationship here or not.

If Pasadena is too much to soon, or if a sidetrip is indicated, there is Galena Park, undoubtedly the ugliest town in the state. Everywhere one turns in Galen Park is a picture of ugliness, unsurpassed even in Pasadena. This town can make you feel better about where you live.

In Houston proper, there is Montrose.

Now a lot of unkind things have been said about this neighborhood like there is a lot of crime. This is only true if one forgets his armed escort. Otherwise, it can be a swell place to go and get clipped in a lot of cheap restaurants.

After dropping a few bucks in a cheap restaurant, one needs a relaxing bar or club to drop a few in. The Montrose area, particularly along Westheimer, has plenty enough of these establishments.

Next time you're in Mexico, stop by and visit the Cuervo fabrica in Tequila.

Since 1795 we've welcomed
our guests with our best.
A traditional taste of Cuervo Gold.

Visitors to Cuervo have always been greeted in a special way.

They're met at the gates and invited inside to experience the unique taste of Cuervo Gold.

This is the way we've said "welcome" for more than 180 years. And it is as traditional as Cuervo Gold itself.

For this dedication to tradition is what makes Cuervo Gold truly special. Neat, on the rocks, with a splash of soda, in a perfect Sunrise or Margarita, Cuervo Gold will bring you back to a time when quality ruled the world.

Cuervo. The Gold standard since 1795.

work for you.

Houston's appeal stems from lack of culture, past

If you'd like a butterfly on your butt, er, a tattoo, anyway, there are a lot of places to service your needs in this area of town. When you crave the smell of leather, there are a number of places that can tickle your fancy. Some of these places even give you little rings to wear while you're there.

Montrose's decaying surroundings supply the character which Houston so desperately lacks, and the obstacle course created by dog leavings adds a touch of the risqué to an evening on the town.

This shady area in the shadow of downtown is also an excellent place to observe the sexual revolution on parade, and boy do they parade down Westheimer.

Another species indigenous to Montrose is the natural person. You can usually see a lot of these people coming out of Purple Heart Thrift Shops and coming out of the people is the kind of wind that could only whistle across a vegetable patch.

If you're looking to get shot, there's a wonderful selection of pornography and topless revues. Just look for the buildings that look like a peacock threw up on them.

If your looking for how the suburbs would have turned out had Hitler lived, there is Sharpstown. Some of the finest examples of concrete in the country can be found on every corner.

The hub of Houston's excitement is downtown. It's down there and its tall. You'll know you're there with the aura of excitement and electricity all around you. Down there. Smell those exhaust fumes; eat your lunch in one of the wonderfully modern parks. Those silvery, tinkling phallic shafts inside Tranquillity Park honor our great men in space and make it possible to wash your hands in public after doing something else inspired by the sound of the ocean in those shafts.

If you'd like to meet a wino, Market Square is reasonable. Just jangle some coins in your pocket. If you'd like to see a wino in a reclining position, there is the park across from La Carafe which consists of a pile of dirt with grass on it.

And then there's the Astrodome. It's there and it's round.

And what of River Oaks? Just how did it get its name? Just what does "Oaks" mean anyway — do you eat it for breakfast or rub it under your arm? Why do the squirrels eat better than anybody in Sunnyside? Do the beautiful people smell better? Do they really have sex with their cars, or do they just let 'em watch?

The city — spread-eagled before you in all its nicely proportioned, many splendored uh, well units, no, sections, no divisions, no plumages, well maybe units, no it's more like appendages or digits or subgroupings or eveny shaped lots, or something with a lot of stuff in it. The city.

System says 'We're in the money'

By T. Edward Bell

The UH system has completed its move into new office in the new Houston United Bank building on the Gulf Freeway near Calhoun. According to UH Vice-president Roger Singleton, the move was necessary in order to "improve the image of the system."
 "As any child of four can plainly see, our new building is shaped like a giant cash register," Singleton said. "After we lost all that money we thought we'd better come up with a good gimmick to re-instill the public confidence in our ability to handle large sums of money." Singleton was referring to the $14 million UH lost two years ago in a wide ranging short-term investment scam known as "Pyramiding," made famous by noted swindler Carlo Ponzi in the 1920s.

 Singleton said the reasoning behind the move was the UH regents' contention that when people saw a cash register, they thought of a safe place to keep money.
 "It's perfect," said Singleton, "There's a bank in the bottom, where the drawer would be on a real cash register, and we're up on the top, where the little "No Sale" sign would be." Singleton said in conjunction with the system move, the UH motto would be changed from "In Time" to "Money Talks, Bullshit Walks."

 The Houston United Bank Building was reportedly bought from the National Cash Register Company, which used the building as its exhibit in the 1938 Chicago World Fair. The building was moved from a Rockdale, Ill., warehouse, where it has been stored for the past forty years. It was painted white from its original red color.
 UH Actng president Robert Maxson said the university was considering putting bells in the top of the building to make a "ching, ching" sound whenever an endowment was made to the university by a large corporation.

Ayatollahs have feelings

TEHERAN—The Ayatollah Ruholla Khomeini, nominal leader of the alleged Iranian Holy Islamic Republic, has folded under the pressure of anti-Iranian demonstrations in the United States. He has ordered the release of all hostages now being held in the U.S. Embassy.
 "Allah akbar. It pains me greatly to see the American students calling us ragheads," the holy strongman was heard to lament shortly before ordering the release of the hostages.

 "Besides, I would trade all of the oil in Iran for one night in the bag with the doll in the picture," he told a cheering crowd of 100,000 militant Iranian students.

Burmah Agate ripped again by new explosions Tuesday

GALVESTON (AP) — Four explosions rocked the stricken tanker, Burmah Agate, Tuesday for the first time in more than a week, releasing more oil into the Gulf of Mexico, the Coast Guard said.

"There was one explosion about 5:30 p.m. and three more around 6 p.m.," said Coast Guard spokesman Larry Clark. "There was a slight increase in the fire, but it was hard to tell what effect the explosions had on the vessel because of the fire and smoke."

Oil from the tanker, which has been leaking since it collided with the freighter, Mimosa, Nov. 1, continued to coat beaches along the entire length of Galveston Island, Clark said, as winds from the south pushed it ashore.

Clark said there has been no more oil leaking from a crack in the left side of the ship that developed Sunday when the deck of the ship buckled. The fire spread from the right side of the vessel to the left, but that went out when the crude stopped leaking on that side.

"There is heavy beach impact," he said. "There are only spots in some places, but in other places the oil is an inch thick and eight or nine feet wide."

Most of the oil is coming ashore on Galveston Island because the currents are fairly slow and the wind is coming from the south, blowing the crude straight onto the beaches, Clark said.

The Coast Guard spokesman said the winds were expected to shift.

Clark said crews were scraping and mopping the oil off the beaches Tuesday, and as many as 300 men were expected to participate in cleanup operations.

Soft contacts subject of paper

By MARGARET MATCHETT
Features Writer for The Cougar

Dr. Sheldon Wechsler, associate professor of optometry at the UH College of Optometry, will present two papers at the annual meeting of the American Academy of Optometry. The papers pertain to studies Wechsler made with an assistant professor and an intern on soft contact lens.

The first paper, entitled "Eye Cosmetic Contamination of Hydrogel Lens," concerns a study of cosmetics and their effects on soft contact lens. Wechsler said, "the study evolved from a long-time belief that mascara could permeate the soft contact lens, and led to an opportunity to prove or disprove the theory."

Luann Morgan, an intern at the college, worked with Wechsler throughout the study. Using samples of mascara, eyeliner and eye shadow obtained from two major cosmetic companies, neither Morgan nor Wechsler could get the cosmetics to adhere to or permeate the soft contact lens.

The results of their work indicate that "when the soft contact lens are correctly cleaned on a regular basis, eye make-up has no effect on them," Wechsler said.

"Effects of Swimming in Chemically Treated Pools on Hydrogel Lens" is the second paper Wechsler will present to Academy members. This study was made in conjunction with Dr. Ian Lane, visiting clinical assistant professor at the college.

Lane and Wechsler investigated the effect of swimming pool chemicals and regular water on soft contact lens. Both swim team members and other swimmers were used in the study. Wechsler stated that results of their work showed "no evidence of harm to the soft contact lens due to swimming pool chemicals."

Lane and Wechsler did note, however, that for the first 30 to 45 seconds a person is in fresh water, the lens tends to be loose and can come off easily. But after that initial period of adjustment, the eyes adapt to the lens and the lens then remains fixed in place for swimming.

The international conclave will be held in Anaheim, California during the week of December 10.

Production down

U.S. needs more Texas oil

AUSTIN (AP) — Chairman John Poerner of the Texas Railroad Commission urged Americans Tuesday to "ring in the new year" with more oil production to protect the United States and its allies.

As a backdrop for his comments, Poerner said Texas crude oil production in 1979 — for the first time in 15 years — will not reach one billion barrels.

Poerner said Texas' oil output for 1979 will total approximately 980.4 million barrels. Texas production last year exceeded 1.04 billion barrels.

He said the United States led world crude oil production from 1902 until 1974, but, "Today, the role of top producer is being filled by the Soviet Union with 11.2 million barrels per day."

"Unfortunately," Poerner said, "federal disincentives in pricing and taxation have forced us to take a backseat to the Russians."

"Energy resources and adequate production have been and always will be the key ingredients for the success of this No. 1 industrial nation," he said. "Without these necessities, we cannot produce, or provide the military strength we need to protect ourselves and our allies."

Poerner concluded his brief remarks to the statewide oil allowable hearing by stating:

"Let's be positive for a change; let's oil up the rigs, dust off the pumpjacks and be prepared to ring in the New Year with a strong theme of 'Domestic Energy for the '80s.'"

The commission routinely set the statewide oil allowable for December at 100 percent. The allowable, or production factor, is geared to market demand.

The commission, Texas' oil and gas regulatory agency, has maintained a 100 percent allowable each month except three since April 1972.

Major buyers of Texas crude oil told the commission they wanted to obtain 2,672,973 barrels a day in December, a decrease of 11,967 barrels a day from November.

The buyers' nominations are pegged to what they think they can obtain, and seven of the 14 major buyers submitted lower nominations, which indicated declining production.

In Memory. . .

You would know the secret of death.
But how shall you find it unless you seek it in the heart of life?

The owl whose night-bound eyes are blind unto the day cannot unveil the mystery of light.

If you would behold the spirit of death, open your heart wide unto the body of life.

For life and death are one, even as the river and sea are one.
