Poem on Woman Suffrage contributed by R.A. Daniel, 1410 M, Galveston, Texas.

Original with letter, sent to Mrs. Cunningham, Dallas, 1-15-18 Acknowledged here and explained delay.

In Politics alone they're barred There's where man holds full sway
He heads the list with an iron fist
And women have naught to say.

It may seem fine as told in rhyme
But right will always win,
And women will march to Victory Victory in the end.

We often read of poets great,
Of Politicians too;
Of millionaires with gold to burn
And nothing else to do;
Of generals bold
With brave deeds untold
Of the fame that they have won,
Yet we seldom praise the Hero
That is within our every Home.

Pres State Woman Suffrage

Worthy President

I enclosed herewith you will please find a poem I have just finished and submit to you for your consideration of its merits

Believing it to be impressive of the thoughts of all lovers of Home and Clean Politics and hope, yours or your Official

Editor will consider same, as worthy of publication

I Beg to Remain

Respectfully,

R.A. Daniel

We often read of Poets Great
Of millionaires with Gold to burn
And nothing else to do.
Of Generals Bold!
With brave deeds untold
Of the Fame that they have won
But we seldom praise the Hero.
That is within our every Home.

They Brought up in This world The men Who make our Country's Laws
They also raised The soldier Boys
Who fight to win our wars
For they who must conserve
The food.
With which the world to feed and there's not one great achievement
But which felt a woman's need.
