Board approves new building

MODEL OF NEW HUMANITIES BUILDING

By DARLA KLAUS
Cougar Staff

The Board of Regents Monday approved plans for a new Humanities Building to house the Departments of Drama and Communications.

The building, which is expected to cost $4,145,000 is scheduled for completion in August 1977, according to Clifton Miller, vice president of Facilities, Planning and Operation.

Plans for the building include a 600 seat theater in a trapezoid shape with a sloping metal roof. Also included in the plans are television studios, studios for radio station KUHF and offices for student publications.

The site of the two-story, 76,000 square-foot building is north of the UC Satellite and south of Fine Arts Building in an area presently used as a parking lot.

"I'm delighted to hear the news," communications department chairman Campbell Titchener said. "This marks the first time radio, television and journalism will have decent housing in the more than 20 years that communications has been taught on this campus. This will be the seventh home for some of our faculty members."

"We greatly appreciate the endorsement of a new teaching facility by the regents" drama department chairman Sidney Berger said. "The experience of working with the architects on the design has been tremendous. As a consequence, we have come up with a strikingly dramatic and functional building. The marriage between drama and communications is a natural one."

In other business, the board approved the appointments of Dr. Roger Singleton to the newly-created position of vice-president for academic affairs and Dr. Ronald F. Bunn as acting vice-president and dean of faculties.

The board also awarded a $52,857.46 contract to Cornelius Nurseries for landscape development for the new computing center building.

Dr. Patrick Nicholson announced the appointment of Houston attorney Max Levine as chairman of the 1976 UH Foundation Excellence Committee. Chairman of the 1975 Excellence campaign is George R. Jordon Jr., president of Great Southern Life Insurance Company.

The board also approved a change in title for Dr. Reginald Traylor from Director to Chancellor of the Victoria campus.

Commissions as security officers for the central campus for Karen French, Gilbert Ward and Gordon Morgan were also approved.

Self-Study input analysed

By ROBIN WRIGHT
Cougar Staff

Members of the Steering Committee for Mission Self-Study reported Monday on a two-day retreat last Thursday and Friday at the Woodlands Inn to review input they have received on the Self-Study Preliminary Report.

Dr. Wallace I. Honeywell, Director of Mission Self-Study and member of the Steering Committee, said "The committee discussed comments received from the Faculty Senate's open hearings and from all the written comments we have received from students and other interested parties."

"There were very few major suggestions made," Honeywell said. "Mostly matters were discussed concerning clarification of wordings within the report."

Honeywell said the Steering Committee will now work on clarifying the Preliminary Report and will begin writing the first draft of the final Self-Study report.

The Steering Committee, headed by Pres. Philip G. Hoffman, is scheduled to meet again at 1 p.m. today in the Cullen Building for further discussion.

Hoffman stated his plans for the outcome of the Mission Self-Study at Monday's Board of Regents meeting.

"As I conceive my role, I have been wearing two hats," Hoffman said, "one as chairman of the Steering Committee of Self-Study, and one as president of the university."

"Acting as president, I will review the study and recommend the adoption of all or part of the study at the Board of Regents meeting in February," Hoffman said.

Shen pleads not guilty

The trial of Alfred P. Shen, accused of two criminal counts to murder on the UH campus, began Monday with the selection of the jury and a plea of not guilty by Shen.

Shen is charged with the shooting on campus of Dr. Guy Cameron, biology assistant professor, and Bruce Johnson, organizational behavior teaching assistant, on April 7 in the Science and Research Building.

Testimony began Monday afternoon and will continue at 10 a.m. today in the 174th Criminal District Court.

Shen allegedly fired three shots in a first-floor classroom of the Science and Research Building, wounding Cameron in the right leg and Johnson in the right shoulder. After his shooting spree, Shen attempted suicide, firing one shot near his heart, according to University Security reports.

Fred Heacock, Shen's attorney, said Shen recovered from his wound and is presently in the Harris County jail.

Communication weakens

By FRANK MAY

Coming down the stretch, out in front is Gerald Ford riding Tariff Increase. Right on his tail is Rationing, jockeyed by Scoop Jackson. Two lengths back and moving out of the pack is Lloyd Bentsen pushing his horse, Gas Tax. Behind Gas Tax, hugging to the rail, is Unknown, jockeyed by Morris Udall. Next and holding steady is Hubert Humphrey riding Old What's His Name. Finally, way back in the pack, is Age, jockeyed by Nelson Rockefeller. They're coming down to the wire now, and the winner is...

One year before the election, the 1976 bicentennial presidential race is on. The candidates, each with their own economic solutions, are beginning to jockey for position. The resulting president, however, will be nothing like a "man on horseback," such as Presidents Washington and Jefferson. Instead, the new president will be someone who can understand and deal with such complex economic problems as inflation, recession, consumption, stagflation, taxation, stagnation, depletion, unemployment, surpluses, deficits and many others.

In an attempt to rid the country of most of these economic problems and thus be in strong contention for the 1976 election, Pres. Ford has proposed massive complex measures designed especially to stop the double-digit inflation and high levels of unemployment.

The Democrats, especially those hoping to be the nation's next president, such as Jackson and Bentsen, are also proposing complicated measures to get the economy back into a healthy condition. The Democrats' main desire, then, is the same as Ford's—to establish the economy. Even though the Democrats and Ford have the same goals in mind, they are miles apart.

The somewhat liberal policies of the Democrats and the conservative viewpoints of Ford are causing economic deadlocks. So, while the President is traveling through the country in his fuel-burning jets and limousines, pushing energy consumption reductions, and while the Democratic nominees are taking their numbers and getting in line, what can the public do to help stabilize the economy? To bring it down home, what can UH and its students do?

Well, you'd be surprised. To reduce gasoline consumption, every student could demand the personal use of a Cushman cart to drive to and from campus. Since Cushmans use such small amounts of gas, the consumption would be reduced. If that doesn't work, a moving van could serve as UH's "school bus." The van would pick up as many students as possible and take them to campus. By not using the students' cars, the van would be reducing gas consumption greatly. The van could be justified by saying it is a psychology experiment to determine how students act when they "get together."

Inflating prices is another severe economic problem facing Americans today. To combat this at UH, books could be sold at discount prices. Soda, beer and other beverage prices could be decreased by letting students get the merchandise from the various warehouses themselves, thus eliminating the middle man. At first, students would probably be reluctant to follow this plan, but as soon as they realized how low the prices are, they'd get with it.

To increase the money supply and thus hopefully encourage investment at UH, a 10 per cent tuition rebate could be given to all students. An alternative to this would be to have the UH Horncoming Queen marry the next oil-rich Arab that arrives in town. The Queen, being totally dedicated to her school, would then distribute some of the Arab's money by putting, say a $20 bill, in every Daily Cougar for one or two days. This would not only increase the money supply, but also would ensure the Daily Cougar of an enormous number of readers.

The problem of unemployment at UH can be solved rather easily. By removing the UH computer (the one that gives you headache at registration and ulcers when you get your grades), a large number of jobs would be created. Another solution to the problem of unemployment would be to utilize the newly created parking space produced by the moving van. The space could be used to build a tavern or other establishment needing employees.

If all these economic solutions are carried out, but do not function to stabilize the economy, a student could then sign his or her name on the $20 bills distributed in the Daily Cougar. Chances are that no matter how bad the economic solutions failed, the student will soon be running for the presidency, anyway.

EDITORIAL

Election doubts

With each election that comes our way comes the ritual writing of the get-out-and-vote editorial. With dogged persistence, journalists try to sell voters on the idea that if they don't vote, truly representative government goes down the drain.

The majority of voters, however, usually aren't in the market for such ideas. In 1971, only 268,000 of a voting population of some 600,000 Houstonians cast ballots in a race where an established Louis Welch defeated a young, up-and-coming Fred Hofheinz. But before we start feeling guilty about that election, let's remember that turn-out was a record one.

Two years later, the voters still remained home. In a race which promised to produce a new mayor for Houston, only 236,000 of 650,000 voters bothered to visit the polls. Then, when a run-off election was needed, only 247,000 voters showed up—an increase of just 11,000.

The elections today have the potential to draw a large turn-out. Controversial decisions made by Mayor Hofheinz during his stormy first two years could bring his opponents out in force. Furthermore, the proposed Texas constitution has prompted as much heated debate as Houston has seen for some time. Voters might feel strongly enough about its acceptance or rejection to actually register their opinions.

Still, the turn-out will probably be weak.

Let's say the average voter is five feet tall. Then, let's lay end-to-end the 400,000 Houstonians who stayed home in 1973. The resulting chain of democratic apathy would stretch about 400 miles.

An absurd example, yes. But no more absurd than having two-thirds of a city read in the paper the next day what their neighbors decided for them.

Legal aid survey

UH is currently working on the implementation of a legal aid clinic to help students deal with such areas as domestic relations and family law problems; consumer law; landlord-tenant problems; and other areas on which students might require legal assistance.

Students' Association is helping to promote this idea and would like some information from you. Please complete this questionnaire and return it to the SA office in the UC Expansion as soon as possible.

Cemetery chimes

To the Editor:
 I am certain there are good intentions behind it, but why is it that during the noon hour on campus, one feels like he is walking through Forest Park West because of the library chimes?

Also, is there any interest in grouping together to ban them until we commuters have left campus in the evening? Gauche is gauche is gauche.

The library chimes, given to the university by an anonymous donor, are operated by the UH music dept. The music rolls which come with them are played and occasionally a qualified person will perform on the chimes. Music department sources said they vary the rolls played as much as possible, but added it is hard to please 30,000 people. I have heard of no movement to have the campus de-chimed.

Sweep out dust

To the Editor:
 It is hard to perceive what racism really is. How does one who is clear and reasonable; who is alive to love and beauty, understand that which is confused, twisted and hideous? How does one look at dementia, sadism and ignorance?

The only response is to sweep one's mind free of shadows, cobwebs and filth and receive the light of understanding. Rise up, for darkness knows no light, and light is free of darkness.

Open your mind and your heart.

Farley turns down scheduled speech

Betsy Farley, Socialist Party candidate for City Controller, said rescheduling difficulties caused cancellation of her address Monday in the World Affairs Lounge of the UC.

Farley, the final speaker in the "Meet the Candidates" series sponsored by the Political Science Organization and Students' Association, refused to speak because of lack of student turnout. "We were originally scheduled for a session last Friday but had to postpone because of an anti-(Egyptian Pres.) Sadat rally that the socialists supported," Farley said. "We thought the protest for Arab self-determination was important since Anwar Sadat was in town. Evidently the students weren't informed of the schedule change."

Though Farley missed her opportunity to speak for the students, she expects staunch student and minority support for the Socialist Party candidates in today's election.

"We are the only candidates who speak for the students and minorities of this city in this election. My opponents, Leonel Castillo and Steve Jones, are politicians representing big business," she said. "We are working for a socialist America, run by the majority, the working people."

Asked if she or the other other socialist candidates, Pedro Vasquez for mayor, and Dan Fein for School Board, expect to win in today's election, Farley said victory isn't measured by the number of votes.

"Our campaign is successful simply because we have won more people over to socialism," she said. "A socialist government is the answer to all the big problems facing this country and it's only a matter of time before oppressed people realize this."

"America will not become socialist in an election," she concluded. "It will take a mass movement which only the further education of the people will spark."

Students demonstrate speech in competition

Students in Dr. Clint Streeter's Speech 336 classes will get an opportunity to demonstrate their speech-making skills competitively this week when they present contest speeches dealing with their professions or respective fields of study.

The "I Speak For..." speeches are the brainchild of Streeter, who plans to retire from his teaching post at the university at the end of the spring semester.

Streeter, whose innovative teaching methods allow his students to progress at their own rate and grade what they desire, thanks to a cumulative point system, feels that the speeches are ideal mediums for his students to learn about the various other departments in the university.

"We will have more than seven different departments represented in the contest," said Streeter, whose "Business and Professional Speaking" classes are composed primarily of Hotel and Restaurant Management majors.

"I think these speeches will give the students an excellent opportunity to exhibit skills that will be essential to their respective professions later on in life."

Contest preliminaries began yesterday and will conclude at 1 p.m. today in Room 12, AH and at 5:30 Thursday in Room 2, AH.

The finals in the contest will be Thursday, Nov. 13 at 6 p.m. in Room 2 of Arnold Hall.

Prizes of $25, $15 and $10 for first, second and third places, respectively, will be given to the top finalists in the contest.

New books now occupy old shelves

The sixth floor of the M.D. Anderson Memorial Library is now 150,000 books stronger after the purchase of the three collections from three defunct book-sellers.

To allow easy access for library users, a brief numerical classification was given to all books. They are being numbered with the prefix "W," and will be shelved by this number on the sixth floor. The "W" prefix can be found in the upper left corner of the title slip.

This is a temporary procedure set up by the library, allowing a larger number of books into the present space without increasing the library staff.

Also, the library staff is attempting to pack the shelves and successfully classify the new volumes before the opening of the new building.

The new library expansion, a $10 million glass tower, will be opened for use in the fall semester of 1977.

Dean retains position

Hugh E. McCallick, dean of the College of Technology, will retain his position on the State Board of Education Advisory Council for Technical-Vocational Education in Texas.

Serving on the board since 1969, McCallick must wait for final approval by the Texas Senate. McCallick was recommended by Gov. Dolph Briscoe and approved as an advisor by the Board of Education.

Recently appointed to the Board of Directors of the Engineer's Council for Professional Development, McCallick holds a master's and bachelor's degree from UH. He also attended the University of Texas for post-graduate work.

As a member of the Advisory Council, McCallick serves as a specialist in the field of technical degree programs for post-secondary baccalaureate students.

E.D. Redding, vice-president of Brown and Root, Inc. was the only other Houstonian appointed to the council.

Exec title designated

The title of the chief administrative officer of the UH Victoria Campus, Dr. D. Reginald Traylor, was changed from director to chancellor at a meeting of the Board of Regents Monday.

Traylor had served as director of the UH-VC since its inception in autumn of 1972. The upper-level facility offers junior, senior and graduate programs with emphasis on liberal arts, social and physical sciences, teacher education, business administration and engineering. It has an enrollment of some 700 students.

Traylor, a former professor of mathematics and chairman of that department at the UH Central Campus, received the bachelor of arts degree at the University of Texas, and the master of science and doctor of philosophy degree from Auburn University.

Active in research, Traylor has published many scientific papers in the field of topology and in the area of opportunities for the blind. His administrative experience includes, in addition to the directorship of the UH-VC, and American Council on Education Fellowship (1971-1972).

Socialist views 1976

Jack Clark, national secretary of the Democratic Socialist Organizing Committee, (DSOC), will visit the UC campus Wednesday to speak on "Democratic Personalities and Programs for 1976: A View from the Left."

Clark will appear at 1 p.m. in the Embassy Room, UC.

Clark, M., has been national secretary of the socialist organization since its founding in October 1971, and has played a central role in its formation.

His appearance here is part of a six-week speaking tour which will take him to more than 20 cities in the West and Midwest.

The DSOC, according to member Stephen Davis, "is committed to working within the Democratic Party with the aim of moving it in the direction of a more issue-oriented party where socialists are welcome."

A Houston chapter of the organization has been chartered in the last two months.

Be sure to hear the Advents.

If you are thinking of buying stereo equipment, Advent products are worth looking for and listening to.

There are three Advent speaker systems: the original Advent Loudspeaker, the Smaller Advent Loudspeaker, and the Advent-2. All of them are best sellers in their respective categories, largely on the strength of word-of-mouth advertising by satisfied customers.

Both the original Advent and the Smaller Advent are designed to provide the very top level of performance, at a fraction (half or less) of the former going cost. The only difference in performance between them is that the original will play slightly louder than the Smaller. Both of them cover the full ten-octave range of music, and either of them make it possible to put together as satisfying a stereo system as you are ever likely to want for a reasonable, thoroughly affordable amount of money. The original costs $119, depending on the cabinet finish and the part of the country it's shipped to; the Smaller costs $92.

doesn't have the final half-octave of bass response that they do. It's designed to get the absolute maximum of useful performance at lowest cost, and to enable people to put together a really fine stereo system with sound very close to the best available at any price—for $350 or less. It also looks exceptionally good, with a distinctive warm-white molded cabinet instead of the usual low-cost imitation wood finish. It costs $77.

Another best-selling Advent product is the Advent 201 cassette deck. Advent was the first manufacturer to develop high-performance cassette equipment—applying innovations like the Dolby System and chromium-dioxide tape to cassettes, and lobbying for other manufacturers to do the same, as they since have.

The 201, though there are now literally dozens of competing cassette decks on the market, remains as good a cassette machine as you can find for real satisfaction in day-to-day use. Not only does it perform beautifully, but its design makes it possible to get best recording results time after time. (No tape machine of any kind or price makes it easier to get those results, and few come close.) In addition, the 201 is a tremendously rugged machine designed to last for year after year of steady use. It costs $339.95 and is a bargain in every sense.

Advent's approach is to make only products with something special to offer, rather than the usual long line of models in every price range. Because that approach doesn't require annual model changes and the tremendous manufacturing and advertising overhead that goes with them, the prices of Advent products have gone up very little at a time when everything else seems to cost almost twice what it did last year. (The original Advent Loudspeaker, for instance, has risen only $9 over five years.)

We think you will find it more than worthwhile to see and hear what Advent products have to offer you.

The Advent-2 is the newest Advent and it sounds just like the other two except that it

New tech instruction planned

The Department of civil Technology will offer several new classes this spring. These courses, which can be used as elective or major credits, are advanced hour sections.

CET 360, Structural Steel Drafting, includes the basic design and detailing of steel members for various types of structures.

CET 378, Piping Drafting, is designed for students desiring a working knowledge of this highly regarded and high-paying field. The class covers one-and-two-line drawings, isometrics, layouts, piping spools, symbology and more.

CET 430T, Construction-Fire Safety, covers various aspects of designing and building, utilizing the basic principles of construction and fire safety as part of the total systems approach.

CET 470, Fundamentals of Concrete, deals with the fundamentals of selection, design, mix, placing, handling and testing of plain concrete. This new course was formerly part of Soils and Concrete.

The College of Technology offers specialized curricula in the Departments of Civil, Electrical-Electronics and Mechanical Technology, in addition to Business Technology and Technical Education. All programs lead to the Bachelor of Science in Technology Degree. The college has the distinction of being the first program in engineering technology in Texas.

For additional information concerning the new courses available this spring, contact the Department of Civil Technology, Room 115, Technology Building, Ext. 1349 or 3256.

Hearst appears in court today

SAN FRANCISCO —(AP) — Key figures in the prosecution and defense of the Patricia Hearst case met in a federal judge's chambers to prepare for a crucial public hearing Tuesday on the mental state of the jailed newspaper heiress.

The closed-door session Monday is likely to give prosecution and defense attorneys an idea of whether U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter will rule Hearst is competent to stand trial on federal bank robbery charges.

Carter gave an unexpected hint of his feelings while attending a judicial conference in Florida last week. Questioned by a reporter, he said Hearst's mental condition is "a close question, but my present impression is that she is mentally competent to proceed in the trial."

Judge Carter has received reports on Hearst's mental state from three psychiatrists and a psychologist. Their conclusions are not admitted as evidence but can be used to guide the judge.

Hearst, 21, has not been in court since Sept. 23 but is scheduled to appear Tuesday.

She has yet to enter a plea, and the judge has revoked bail until he has heard about her mental condition.

She was kidnapped by the Symbionese Liberation Army in February 1974 but later professed allegiance to the SLA and allegedly took part in a bank robbery and other crimes. She was captured Sept. 18.

Neither the prosecution nor the defense is expected to oppose a ruling of competence, but other legal complications could occur.

The defense team, headed by F. Lee Bailey and his partner Albert Johnson, does not say Hearst is insane or incompetent.

If you've got the salt, I've got the Sauza.

Nothing gets a good thing going better than Tequila Sauza. That's because Sauza is the Número Uno Tequila in all of Mexico. And that's because Tequila Sauza—Silver or Gold—does best all the things anybody would want Tequila to do.

Try it the classic down-Mexico way: in a shot glass, with salt and lime on the side. Or in a Margarita. Or in a Sunrise. Who knows where it will all lead?

UH woman series offers plant care, refresher course

By NAN POWERS
Cougar Staff

Learn how to take care of plants or how to start planning for retirement now. Expand vocabulary skills or take a refresher course in math. These are just some of the courses that will be offered during the remainder of the semester as part of the Contemporary Woman Series.

Women of all ages—from late 20's to late 60's—and from all economic groups and educational levels, responded overwhelmingly to the series, which is part of the Continuing Education department, Dr. Alice Whatley, coordinator of the series, said.

Open to men

But the series isn't only for women. "We have men in the classes too," Whatley said, "which is a compliment to us and to them. It's good they don't feel threatened and will come."

The purpose of the series, which began in September 1974, is to identify and assist in meeting the needs of women as the women see those needs. "As women's roles in society changed, they had nowhere to go to receive help in adjusting to these roles," she said. "The series is designed to give information and guidance to these women; to tell them about other resources available to help them adapt."

This is done by setting up workshops to fulfill these needs. Teachers and lecturers for the workshops come from all walks of life. "I try to give the women a variety of exposure to different types of people. It's very important women identify with the teachers. They see what the teachers are able to do and feel, 'well if they can do it, so can I,'" Whatley explained.

The workshops are based on four general roles of women: Enhancing Homemaking, Employment and Career Development, Academic Degree Completion and Volunteer Service. Courses pertaining to these roles range from a refresher course in shorthand to one called the No Longer Married. In these workshops professionals give advice on an array of subjects and give helpful hints on how to pursue specific subjects of interest.

"We had one course, Establishing a Small Business, which was a great success. I was suprised at the response with the way everybody says the economy is so bad," Whatley said. "The topics of the workshop ranged from dog sitting to plant sitting to running your own business."

Workshops which were well received have been repeated and new ones are being added all the time. "At the end of each workshop, women are given anonymous evaluation forms. They are asked to suggest other people they think would be of benefit and any ideas for new courses," Whatley said. "Also, I would like to have more courses for women already employed and start one that deals with companions for the elderly."

"One woman, Marion McCullough, took one of the workshops and then came back to teach. I was really impressed with her," Whatley said.

Today's seminar focuses on credit

"Women and Credit" will be the topic of discussion at today's session of Women's Week. The seminar will focus on the legal aspects of credit, banking credit, retail credit, credit unions and savings and loans. The seminar will be held from 2 to 5 p.m. in the San Jacinto-Sonora Room, UC.

On Thursday, the last day of Women's Week events, there will be a "Women's Health Seminar." Health examinations, cancer, birth control and vaginal and venereal diseases will be discussed. The discussion will take place from 2 to 5 p.m. in the San Jacinto-Sonora Room, UC.

At 8 p.m. that evening, Viveca Lindfors will present her one-woman show, "I Am Woman." Her presentation brings to life a calvacade of 36 women, from Shaw, Isben, Colette, Shakespeare, Sylvia Path and Brecht. Cost for this presentation is 50 cents for students, faculty and staff and $2 for the public.

Women's Week is sponsored by the Students' Association Department of Women's Affairs and Program Council Forum Committee of UH.

made for each workshop. "That way the women build ties with each other and help each other to learn. They are very sympathetic and supportive of one another," she said.

Some of the women taking courses are employed. They are either given time off or are paid while taking the course. "This shows times are changing," Whatley said.

The idea for the series started with Whatley proposing it to the dean of Continuing Education. He suggested she develop a national review of this type of education, looking into various programs across the nation. She talked to Dr. Ruth Osborn, director of the College of General Studies for Continuing Education for Women at George Washington University, Washington, D.C. Osborn pioneered their program which began 10 years ago.

Expected response

After developing a proposed schedule of workshops, Whatley received approval from the dean. The program was then started and she expected a good response from the public. "I got the response I expected," she said, "because the need for the series was there. I'm glad this institution is supportive of adult students."

Some of the workshops beginning in November are Home and Patio Plants, 7:30 to 9 p.m., first session Nov. 10; Retirement Planning, 7 to 9:15 p.m., first session Nov. 3; and Vocabulary Enrichment, 1 to 3:15, first session Nov. 10.

The series is self-supporting, so there is a fee charged for each workshop, ranging from $25 to $125. However, most courses are around $30.

Early registration by mail is preferable, but one may register at the main desk of the public contact area on the second floor lobby of the Continuing Education Center, prior to the first session.

For additional information or for placement on the mailing list call Ext. 4247.

A LITERARY SUMMER IN ENGLAND AND SCOTLAND

Rice's first summer abroad for the study of literature will take students to England and Scotland to read major works by Romantic and Victorian writers in their native setting. The program of study will combine reading, lectures and historical landmarks in Britain. Students may earn six hours of University credit for successful completion of the course. Join Dr. Alan Grob and read Wordsworth in the Lake District, the Brontes on the moors; visit the Tate Gallery in London where many of Blake's paintings hang; and enjoy opportunities for individual travel and excursions. Students from other colleges are welcome to join this class and may receive six hours of credit in Romantic and Victorian literature for their work. The anticipated cost is $1150, including tuition, ground transportation in Great Britain, housing, most meals, group excursions and admission to special events. A low cost charter flight is also being planned, but no rates are available yet. Sign up soon so that the Office of Continuing Studies can hold a place for you.

UH NOW rep keeps fast pace

By CAROLYN ROYSE
Cougar Staff

Super Woman herself wasn't available for the job. So they asked Beverly White to fill in.

White, a senior psychology major, is the new UH task force leader for the National Organization of Women (NOW). White, 21, volunteered for the non-paying job, which lasts until next October, that is, if White can keep up the pace.

She recently returned from a four day work session at the National Convention of NOW in Philadelphia. After the trip she took part in a downtown demonstration against Foley's credit policy towards women. After that, she attended an all night think-tank made up of Houston women interested in women's rights. Between all of this, she fits in a full load of school work.

Now, sitting in her office, which she shares with the Inter-Fraternity Council in the UC Extension, White relaxes at her desk and smiles. She has on jeans and a sweat shirt. At first glance she reminds you of the mean little tomboy that used to live on your block when you were a kid. On second glance, you find her to be a very warm, level-headed woman.

"My main goal is not only to get UH women involved in NOW, but to relate their needs back to NOW. I'm sort of a liaison," White said.

Her tiny office has half a dozen people milling about. (There is obviously an open door policy). White comments that her space problem will soon worsen. They are moving her to a cubby hole and giving half of her office to the Gay Activist.

"Can you imagine the Gay Activist and the Inter-Fraternity sharing an office," she laughs.

White doesn't like the title "Women's Libber", mainly because she doesn't like labels.

If she had to give herself a title it would be "Humanist". She also doesn't like the title "Gay."

"If you tell me a person is gay, it means no more to me than if you said he was a Baptist or a Presbyterian."

White is involved in planning Women's Week for today through November 6 at UH. From Nov. 9 through 11, she is attending the Women in Public Life Conference in Austin. She is also involved in weekly women's conscious raising groups at the Women's Center and on campus.

White has interest in the Women Studies Program. She would like to see these courses as permanent and not something that is decided by the administration year to year.

"These courses have proven to be very popular with students, men as well as women, and I would hate to see them die out because of disinterest by the administration," White said.

She becomes solemn when asked why she volunteered to take on this work load. She says a stint in Washington this last summer as a clerk intern in the House was the catalyst.

"The Washington atmosphere was conducive to activism. All my friends were involved in politics. Even at cocktail parties the conversation revolved around politics. I guess their involvement finally rubbed off on me," White said.

"Also I was introduced to Women's Art and Women's Theaters for the first time and fell in love with it. When I came home, I felt like shouting, 'Hey, wake-up, Houston.'"

White lives in an apartment with Buddy, her Sheltie dog. She used to raise Shelties before becoming so involved in the women's movement. Now she doesn't have time and is even considering selling Buddy to a man in San Antonio.

"I hate to give him up, but my being gone all day isn't good for him. And when I go out of town, I have the problem of finding someone to baby-sit," sighed White.

"I love my work, and wish I could do more. I think my feelings are typical of others involved in the women's movement," White said modestly. "My only frustration in my job is the apathy in others."

Stars highlight Summit debut

ANDY WILLIAMS

By JOHN DAVENPORT
Cougar Staff

A large collection of top stars drew a full house to the Summit Saturday night for the Heart to Heart benefit, marking the official opening of this brand-spanking-new sports and entertainment arena in Greenway Plaza. Houstonians were treated to performances by several Hollywood celebrities as they took in the surroundings of this latest addition to the local entertainment scene.

Let it not be forgotten that no matter how many performers paraded on the stage, the true star of the show was the Summit itself. Seating up to 17,000, depending on the event, it will serve as home base for the Houston Aeros (hockey) and the Houston Rockets (basketball). But it is easily adaptable for many diverse purposes, as is evidenced by the two rock concerts that are scheduled for it later this month. The Summit is a plush, comfortable palace that will serve the city of Houston for a long time to come.

The Heart to Heart presentation benefited the Baylor College of Medicine, Methodist Hospital and the Texas Heart Institute. Producer Dann Moss and director Tony Charmoli assembled singers Andy Williams and Roger Miller, comedian Freddie Prinze, Ed McMahon and other stars, plus the UH Marching Band and several circus acts for the enjoyment of the audience. Kirk Douglas served as master of ceremonies.

The show came off as a glorified version of television's "Tonight" show. All the entertainers did well, using the best of their material, but it was no different from anything that hasn't been shown before on the tube. The appeal of seeing all these stars, both on stage and in the audience, was the main drawing card. That, of course, and the outstanding cause that the show went toward aiding.

But this is not to say that it was dull. The show was very entertaining, with each star sparkling in his own way. The sound and lighting both contributed to the overall fine quality of the presentation. But it was really no different from seeing a television variety show in the process of being taped.

This effect was added to by the Telscreen, two 12' x 15' screens, one high above each end of the arena. The entire program was interspersed with appearances via Telscreen of several notables, including a special message from President Gerald Ford. The on-stage performances were also televised on the screens.

It was an impressive debut for the Summit, but this is only a sample of its capabilities. Everyone involved deserves a great deal of thanks and congratulations for opening the facility with such a flourish. It will be hard to surpass the showcase that was featured last Saturday night, but maybe NBC can re-run it when their late-night programming is somewhat less than spectacular.

The Salesians...

Helping others to help themselves.

True charity isn't always a handful of rice... or the gift of a warm shirt... it's helping others to help themselves. A more lasting and dignified way, we say.

Since our foundation in 1859, this has been the Salesian way. Education is the keynote. What good is a meal today when one must think of all the tomorrows? St. John Bosco knew this well. What good are dreams unless they are translated in reality by deeds?

Around the world, Salesian missionaries help their flock by giving them ways to help themselves. Whether it is agricultural training or technical training for a trade they can learn, people are encouraged to find their own niche, their own way of betterment, their own road to human dignity and self help.

Salesians work primarily for youth, for it is in the young that hope is born. There are Salesian missions in 73 countries around the world. If you are interested in a life that gives as much as it receives, fill-in the coupon below... and we will send you additional information on the Salesian way.

Bearcats run over hapless Cougars

By BRIAN WICE
Assistant Sports Editor

Just prior to last Saturday afternoon's contest with the Cincinnati Bearcats, one of UC Head Coach Tony Mason's assistants asked a visiting journalist if the UH Cougars were really as bad as everyone said they were. "I didn't think so at first," replied the scribe sardonically, "but they're making a believer out of me."

Some two hours and forty-five minutes later, the hapless Houston Cougars had made believers out of the 16,246 Bearcat partisans who bore witness to the 28-23 Homecoming victory that the Cougars all but handed to the opportunistic Bearcats.

Like the longest running off-Broadway comedy of this or any summer, the Houston Astros, the Houston Cougars are not content to just lose games—they have to work at it and if need be, invent a means by which they can lie down and play dead.

On a beautiful fall afternoon in old Nippert Stadium, the same hallowed ground that the Cincinnati Bengals once trod in their infancy before the days of Riverfront Stadium, the Cougars continued to make the same costly mistakes that they have since they kicked off to Lamar two months ago.

As they did against the Miami Hurricanes two weeks ago, the lead-footed UH kickoff team considerably improved the return average of their adversaries by allowing Bearcat speedster Keith Jenkins to return a Bobby Harrison kick 99 yards for a touchdown on the opening kickoff of the second half.

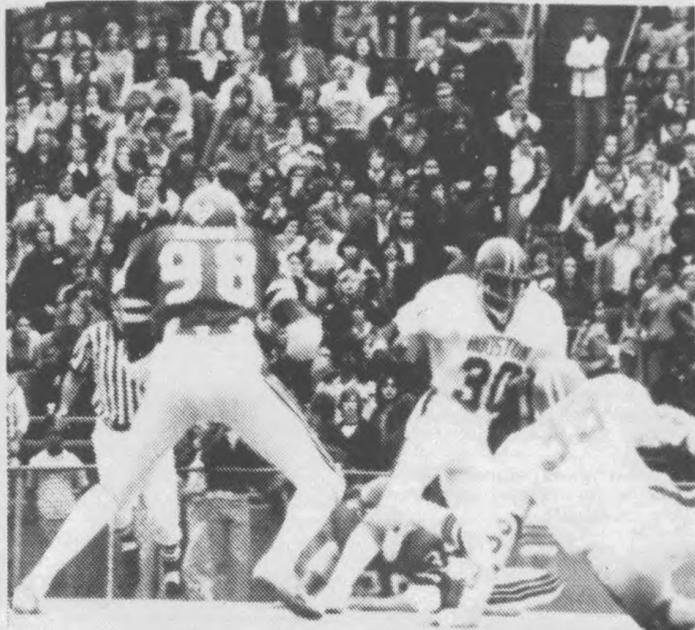

Jenkins, rumored to be a 9.6 sprinter in the Cincy media guide, must still be wondering how he broke that kickoff, having run right into the heart of the UH forward wall at his own 25.

Reserve cornerback Benny Hill stuck Jenkins and stunned him momentarily but failed to collar him and the tough-running Jenkins cut back to the Bearcat sideline and outraced Lonzo Giles to the corner of the Cincy endzone.

The Houston secondary continued to suffer the same mental lapses and breakdowns in coverage that have enabled them to give up six aerial touchdowns in their last three games. Although burned for only one score last Saturday, the UH defensive secondary time and time again gave up critical yardage on third and long after the front four and linebacking corps had shut down the Bearcats running attack.

Their futility reached its zenith early in the third quarter when freshman safety Lester Price was ejected for throwing an elbow at a UC running back after Price had stopped him for a sizeable loss. Instead of fourth and fifteen, it was first and ten and the Cougs had once again let the momentum swing to the Bearcats.

The few bright spots in an otherwise dismal performance, the fifth straight defeat for the Cougars, were sophomore running back Charley Lynch, who scored once and came up with tough yardage in clutch situations, and freshman linebacker David Hodge. Hodge was hit from the blind side late in the first quarter and lost his memory for a brief spell. When the defensive formations finally popped back into his head in the third quarter, Hodge picked up where he had left off and turned in another first-rate performance.

BRIAN WICE—Cougars Staff

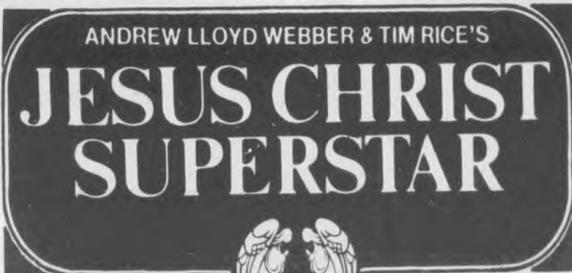

LYNCH HITS THE HOLE . . . UH fullback Charlie Lynch (30) grabs a Cincinnati kickoff and heads upfield for the Cougars. Kenny Perry (33) throws a big block to spring his hard-running teammate.

BRIAN WICE—Cougars Staff

Rain dampens competition

By DAYO ANDREWS
Cougar Staff

Rain washed out the intramural flag-football contests Sunday, but nothing could dampen the Gangbanger offense Saturday in their thrashing of the Rogues.

Independent Division

The Gangbangers rolled to a 54-7 win over the Rogues as six different players accounted for a total of eight TDs. Jim Nichols threw scoring strikes to Todd Hogan and Mark Kuhlmann, and ran for a 6-yard score. Jim Dunn threw TD passes to Rob Taylor and Hogan, and Lou Lanzino accounted for three more 'Bangers six-pointers. Lanzino ran for one TD, passed to Steve Mercadal for another, and returned an interception for his third.

Pro Club Division

The Law School Turkeys took two games from the Varsity to wrap up their bracket. Bob Jenkins of the Turkeys threw a 35 yard pass to George Berg to win one game, 13-7, in overtime. Touchdown passes by Jenkins added up to a 14-0 Turkey win in the other contest.

Optometry gained revenge for their loss to the Bates Rookies earlier in the season by beating the Rookies twice on Saturday by scores of 15-8 and 14-6.

In the first game, Optometry trailed 8-7 and was facing elimination with four plays left in the game when Dave Cash threw a fourth down TD pass to Gary Wade. Cash earlier had caught a TD pass from Billy Nowlin for Optometry's first score.

In the second match-up, Optometry again had to rally from behind to win. With his club trailing 6-0, Nowlin tossed a 33-yarder to Brett Bence for six points. John Edwards ran in from the 11 yard line for the TD which iced the game and bracket championship for Optometry.

"B" Team Division

The Manson Family chalked up a forfeit win over Pi Kappa Alpha "B".

Sorority Division

Delta Zeta's Linda Logsdon ran three yards for the game's only touchdown as the Green downed Alpha Chi Omega, 9-0.

Open-Dorm Division

Joy Taylor of Moody Nine scored a first half touchdown which proved to be the only points her club needed to eliminate the B.S. Gang, 7-0. Taylor's TD came on a pitchback from Linda Hartley who had caught a pass from Moody QB June Engblom. The Gang twice had possession of the ball deep in Moody territory but failed to score either time. The loss eliminated the Gang from the Open-Dorm Division.

Sunday's rained out games have been rescheduled for this coming Saturday. In other intramural action Bruce Sanders, running as an independent, was the first man across the finish line in Saturday's cross-country meet. Vince Anderson of the Goldburgers finished second and the Gangbangers' Todd Hogan was third. The Gangbanger team of Hogan, Jim O'Conner, Gary Hammon, and Steve Robb took the team title.

Three-person basketball was held last week and the Crescendos took first place with a win over the Gangbangers, 30-20. Alfred Hall led the scoring for the Crescendos with 20 points. In the women's bracket, Ebony Pearls I and II were co-champions, with the Kappa Diamonds finishing second.

Entries are due this Friday for exhibition basketball in all divisions. The Daily Cougar has compiled a five person all-star team following the completion of three person basketball. The all-star teams are:

Mens Division
Reggie Smith (Crescendos)
Alfred Hall (Crescendos)
Jimmie Dunn (Law School)
Mark Kuhlman (OB)
Joe Pfeifer (OB)

Womens Division
Cheryl Johnson (Kappa Diamonds)
Monica Davis (Kappa Diamonds)
Jane Sultis (Moody)
Marilyn Green (Ebony Pearls)
Lisa Llyoyd (Ebony Pearls)

CAROLYN REDD (Center) tries her best to intercept a pass from Barbara Sultis (l) to Sharon Skla (r) in a three person basketball semi-final game. Redd and the Ebony Pearls won the all-school championship.

Tomorrow we're cooking breakfast for everybody in America.

Enjoy two fresh, fluffy scrambled eggs, pure pork sausage, plus a toasted English muffin. And let us do the scrambling.

Try our hearty, man-sized hotcakes, smothered in syrup and butter. And served with pure pork sausage. A well-rounded breakfast.

Coffee.

Say "Good Morning!" to an Egg McMuffin. A fresh egg cooked in butter, served with Canadian bacon and cheese on a toasted English muffin.

Speak "Danish" and take your choice from our variety of delicious Danish pastries.

In a hurry? Have a toasted English muffin with jelly. Not a complete breakfast, but a good one.

Your favorite juices: Orange, grapefruit and tomato.

McDonald's

4005 Elgin
Breakfast Served 7:00 a.m. to 10:00 a.m.

Good morning, America.

Come join us for breakfast. Because, now, McDonald's has all kinds of breakfasts.

If you want a substantial start, you can take your choice of three hot, hearty, complete breakfasts.

And, if you're in a bit of a hurry or just want something light, you can try one of our breakfast snacks. They aren't as big, but they're every bit as good.

All this plus coffee, milk, your favorite juice and McDonald's citrus fruit cup.

And they're ready when you are. All for a very, very reasonable price.

At McDonald's. Where we get up early to do it all for you.
