Laundry live-ins: ten's a crowd

By DAVID HURLBUT
Staff Writer

(Second of three parts)

Dormitory life is a unique experience, but there are some students who would just as soon forget dorms ever existed at UH.

John Doody, architecture freshman, and David Green, political science sophomore, share a room on the 18th floor of the south Moody Tower with eight other men. Their room, which was a laundry room for the south Tower until three months ago, is one of three special "emergency" residence areas set up to handle some of the over-occupancy in the dorms.

"The best thing about living here is that we have a private balcony," Doody said. Four doors in the outer walls of the makeshift 10-person suite lead to the sundeck on the roof of the building.

"But that's the only luxury on this floor," he said, adding that maintenance personnel recently came into their room to lock the doors to the sundeck. The doors were later unlocked.

Doody said he has seen interiors of other rooms in the Towers. "I noticed they have real windows and real rugs," he said with a twinge of sarcasm. There are no windows on the 18th floor, and there are a few throw rugs on the concrete floor.

"There is no privacy here, and that's probably the worst thing about this place," Doody said. "We have 10 people in this one room, and that is about as unprivate as you can get."

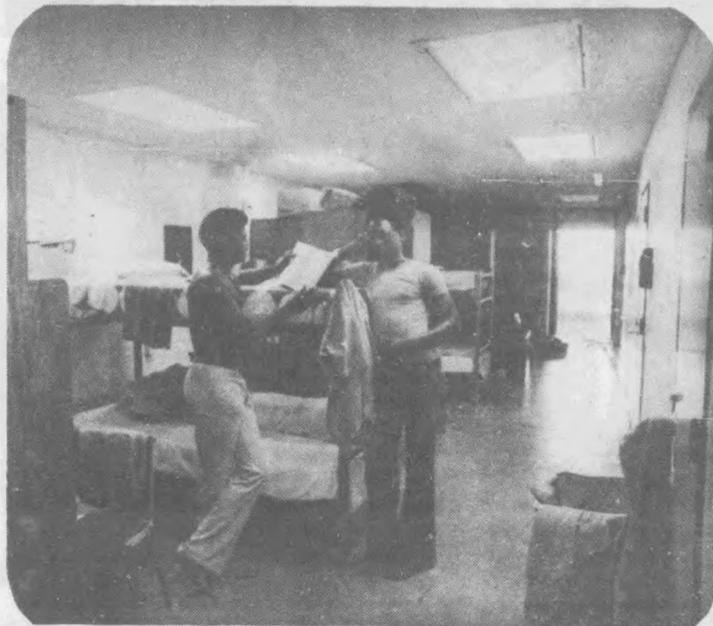

The residents also have a problem with people who ignore the sign on the door from the stairway which says, "Do not enter, people live here."

"People come up here looking for all sorts of things," Doody said. "They still think it's a laundry or someplace to have a party."

The converted laundry room is roughly divided into two sections which accommodate four and six students. Doody lives in the six-person area.

"This is the worse section of it all. It's a hallway with six people living in it," he said. "The space itself is like a prison, and I say that as an architecture student."

Dean resolves group's status

By PAT SCHIER
Staff Writer

The confusion over who heads the parking committee and why there is no student representation on it has been resolved by Dr. Harry Sharp, vice chancellor and dean of students, and Dr. John Coffman, chair of the University Security (UHS) Advisory Board.

"The parking committee is not a policy-setting committee," Sharp said. "It exists within the old Facilities and Planning Division to deal with mechanical things such as when lots should be striped or resurfaced. It's an in-house technical advisory group made up of architects and engineers."

Sharp said the committee that makes recommendations concerning traffic is the UHS Advisory Board and always has been.

Coffman contended that he was told last year by Ted Montz, then director of facilities planning division, and Joseph Kimble, then UHS director, that the parking committee was the only committee empowered to look into the UH parking problem.

In a meeting last Friday between Sharp and Coffman, Coffman said the UHS Advisory Board "is now empowered to give advice concerning policy about parking and traffic."

The nine-member advisory board, made up of four faculty members, four student members and one administration member, will meet at 4 p.m. Sept. 12 in the UC.

"We will be anxious to meet with Vice President Sharp and see how rapidly he is willing to move, and in what direction he will move, concerning regularizing our parking situation," Coffman said.

Fee hearings

The UC Fee Planning Committee will meet today at 3 p.m. in the Congressional Room, UC.

The need for a separate UC fee and the possible student referendum for it will be discussed at this meeting.

All student input and public comment will be welcome.

Wade on Capitol visit

Prepaid schooling called 'long-range'

By JO ANN ZUNIGA
Staff Writer

A month in Washington, D.C. kept him busy, said Student Association President Keith Wade.

The UH Public Affairs Department sent Wade to Washington to work as an intern in Texas Sen. Lloyd Bentsen's office. Once there Wade researched a financial aid alternative called prepaid education.

Prepaid education is an optional education savings plan initiated by employees and their companies as a benefit.

Wade said, "I researched and discussed the prepaid education issue with a diverse group of people ranging from senators and house members to unions and educational representatives. I received mostly favorable input about the issue," Wade said.

But prepaid education is a long-range financial aid alternative, and congressional hearings on the issue will not be held until after the fall recess, Wade explained.

Wade also worked in conjunction with Bentsen on an amendment to the Civil Rights Acts. He said it is unclear in the acts if it is sex discrimination to not extend benefits to cover pregnant employees.

Wade reasoned that since men employees are covered in benefits for vasectomies and hair transplants, women employees should be covered in benefits for pregnancies.

Another amendment Wade worked on was to exclude amusement parks from the Minimum Wage Bill. Wade said a statement on the bill compels any conglomerate which makes over $100 million a year to pay its employees at least the minimum wage.

This statement was mainly aimed at the agribusiness conglomerates, but it also affected 13 conglomerate-owned amusement parks nationwide. "Just imagine how ticket prices to Astroworld would sky-rocket if every one of their employees would receive the minimum wage,"

EDITORIAL

Get busy

The two committees in charge of parking at the UH central campus have supposedly gotten untangled from their traffic jam, and hopefully they're ready to get their acts in gear.

Stories as to who is actually responsible for handling the parking problem at UH seem to change with each person who is asked. As of now it looks like the job lies with the University Security Advisory Board.

This is where the responsibility should lie, because its counterpart, the parking committee under Ted Montz, vice president for facilities planning, had no student representation. Since the students have to bear the brunt of the parking problem at UH, they should be given a strong voice in making the policy to alleviate the situation.

What remains to be seen now is whether the UHS Advisory Board will take up its charge with enough initiative to find a realistic plan of action to deal with the problem. The most recent attempt, "econo" decals for outlying parking lots, has proven to be a miserable failure, since only 25 of the decals have been sold.

We urge the advisory board to aggressively pursue possibilities to ease the parking pressure on UH students.

Burned roots

To the Editor;

In response to the letter in the Friday, Sept. 2 Cougar, concerning a student's amazement at the Grounds and Maintenance crew watering while the skies were threatening rain and it was sprinkling: Please don't be so quick to judge their actions.

As a horticulturist with Harris County, I have fertilized trees and plants when the weather was threatening rain, only to have to water later that day or early the next day when only a few light showers occurred. Fertilizers, when not watered down and diluted by heavy showers or watering will burn a plant's roots and foliage severely. The Grounds and Maintenance crew may have fertilized the grass, trees or ornamental plantings the day before while anticipating rain and then little or no rain fell.

Last week, on the Thursday that the student witnessed the watering much, much less rain fell than was forecast because of the unpredictability of Hurricane Anita. Granted, the crew may have been blindly following a watering schedule, but before accusation next time why not give them the benefit of the doubt, or even go over and ask why they are watering in the rain?

Another hassle

To the Editor:

I just wanted to take this time to express my sympathy to the incoming freshmen at UH. As a graduating senior (I hope), I truly and thoroughly have not enjoyed my stay at UH. It's been a heck of a lot of fun but the total school idea is just one hassle after another. UH is no exception.

I have encountered everything from library stops my freshman year when I didn't know where the library was, to a parking ticket before the official opening of school.

My best advice that I can give is to keep a very light hearted attitude about everything. Laugh when all else fails. Don't think that everyone on campus is out to get you, just most everyone. Your professors are not infallible, just gullible. It's not who you are or what you know, it's who you know and who they are.

So have the best year you can have. Do all you can do and don't worry about what anyone else thinks about it, because they probably want to do it too. Be cool and stay in school. That way you will end up like me, hoping you will graduate in the near future.

Train students

To the Editor:

I think it is grand that the football team is expected to do well this season. It also appears that the basketball team and the baseball team will have good seasons. But isn't there more to education than cheering for your team.

I have always had the idea that an university is formed to educate. It seems that most major universities are training grounds for professional athletes. When are the universities going to return to educating their students and get away from supporting jocks. I realize there is more to education than studying and attending classes. But I believe that much of the money spent on training jocks could be spent on educating students. Let the pros train the athletes.

COMMENTARY

Plastic eggs and soybeans

By TONY JOHNSON

Vegetarians make me sick. It's not that I disapprove of eating vegetables, or anything else for that matter. I think it must be their evangelistic approach to world health care.

I had an occasion to indulge myself with the "Texas Meatloaf" at the American Cafe in the UC several weeks ago and was just getting started when a young woman sat down across from me. She was thin, pale and had hollow eye sockets that seemed rivited to my meatloaf from the instant she sat down.

"You're not going to eat that, are you?"

I ignored her.

"You know that stuff is full of cholesterol, don't you?"

I shook my head and pretended to read my Spanish book.

"Now you take this salad I'm eating . . . great stuff . . . lots of fiber . . . helps clear your digestive tract . . . see these carrot strips? Great for your eyes."

I peered at her with my weak, and watering eyes and mumbled,

"I don't like salad."

"Well, that's no excuse for eating meat!" she exclaimed, pounding her fork on the table and sending a bacon bit in my direction. "Animals are living creatures too, you know. They have the right to live without fear of being killed and eaten by people who don't give a damn."

I was feeling thoroughly intimidated as I picked the bacon bit off the front of my shirt and peered at it.

"You see," she said, pointing at the bacon, "that is the beginning of a revolution. That's not bacon, it's soy bean protein. In a few years everything will be flavored soy beans!"

Since I didn't believe her I popped the tiny red crumb into my mouth. Ah, bacon flavored cardboard. Wonderful. This revelation brought to mind visions of the plastic eggs I had earlier at the cafeteria for breakfast. Maybe this stuff does have a place in our future.

"You should try some of this stuff," she said, piling an empty coffee cup with lettuce, lima beans and a soupy mixture of God knows what, and placing it in front of me.

As I peered down into the murky mess I remembered a pressing engagement elsewhere.

My memory of what took place next is rather foggy, but I recall being chased through row after row of vegetarians who were chanting and tossing radishes at me.

For weeks, I couldn't eat. I grew thin and pale. The mere thought of meat or vegetables made me sick.

I finally came to my senses yesterday when I saw the young lady again. This time she was sitting under a tree in Lynn Eusan Park eating a hot dog.

"What are you doing?" I screamed. "Are you crazy?"

"Oh," she said, wiping mustard off her cheek with her little finger and wiping it on her jeans. "There's no need to be a fanatic about it."

Then she smiled, batted her lashes and pretended to read her Spanish book.

Bargain parking spaces still empty in Econo-lots

The new UH Econo-lot decals, reduced campus parking stickers for Lots 7C and D, are off to a slow selling start this fall because of a lack of publicity.

"We ordered 800 of them and have sold only about 25 so far," said Gloria Arriazola, UH Security office supervisor, "but we only advertised once this summer and many students are not aware of their existence."

Econo-lot parking began this fall to utilize the parking lots near KUHT-TV at Cullen Boulevard and Wheeler Street, Arriazola said.

"This fall is not a true test of the parking plan because of the lack of publicity, so it will continue next spring. If it goes well, the program will probably continue," Arriazola said.

SA salaries

Brass: cuts invite suits

By JO ANN ZUNIGA
Staff Writer

The Students' Association (SA) could be sued by its current department directors if SA tries to lower their salaries, SA Treasurer Rick Brass told the Student Senate Monday.

The budget cut SA received from the Student Service Fees Planning and Allocation Committee caused an overall trimming down of SA expenditures as the budget was discussed at the SA meeting Monday night. But Brass said that the salaries which were agreed upon before the directors took the positions should remain the same and not be lowered.

University policy prohibits cutting back the monthly salaries of current employees, Brass said.

Interested persons should come by the Cougar offices behind the Engineering Building or call Ext. 4141.

Willow Creek apartment complex spoke to the senate at the Monday night meeting about its student bus shuttle. The bus shuttle provides transportation to and from UH and is for all student residents of Willow Creek. This service is free of charge with two daily round trips. The morning buses leave Willow Creek at 7:30 and 8:30 while the afternoon buses leave the UC at 3:30 and 4:30.

The Student Life Committee then uncovered plans for a Job Interview Seminar. The seminar will be offered to students free of charge in order to prepare them for job interviews. Plans for the seminar are completed, but SA Senate approval is still needed.

The Senate approved a University Bill to establish the Handicapped Students Advisory Committee. This committee will serve as a resource in program developments and problem solving for the handicapped.

There will be a Senate Workshop from 10 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. Saturday in the San Jacinto Room, UC. The purpose of the workshop is to familiarize senators with senate proceedings.

SA President Keith Wade announced three new appointees at the Monday night meeting. Arjumand Azhar was appointed to the Campus Organizations Committee. This committee allocates $7,000 of student service fees to various campus organizations which apply for funding.

David Patronella and Louise Vallejo were both appointed to the UC Policy Board.

FAMILY EDUCATIONAL RIGHTS AND PRIVACY ACT OF 1974

While the University of Houston has been in compliance with the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974 since its effective date, this enactment requires that universities publish this policy, which has been adopted in compliance with this ACT.

1. The University of Houston maintains records and information concerning the academic, educational, and institutional activities of students while in attendance at the University in the various administrative offices, schools, colleges and departments of the University.

2. The following officers are the custodians of and responsible for maintenance of the records maintained by their respective area:

(a) Office of the Interim Chancellor, Dean of Faculties

(b) Office of the Vice Chancellor, Dean of Students

(c) Office of the Vice Chancellor, Financial and Management Services

3. The only persons having access to such files are personnel of the University of Houston having a legitimate educational or institutional use for such records, and such persons as are authorized by the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974 and Article 6252-17a, Vernon's Civil Statutes, where not in conflict.

4. With certain exceptions as provided in the ACT, a student shall have the right to inspect and review the records and files maintained by the University pertaining to him, as allowed by the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974. In addition, the student shall have the right to obtain copies of any such records upon payment of the stated fee.

5. The custodian of the records or files, or someone so designated by him, will respond to reasonable requests by the student for explanations and interpretations of the student's records.

6. In the event that a student should challenge the contents of his records or files, informal meetings may be held between the student and the custodian of the files, or someone so designated by him. If such informal meetings do not result in a resolving of the dispute the following procedure will be followed:

(a) The student shall notify the custodian of the records in writing of his desire for a formal hearing.

(b) The custodian of the records shall appoint a hearing officer (an officer, official or employee of the University) who does not have a direct interest in the outcome of the hearing.

(c) Such hearing officer shall conduct a hearing upon such matter within 30 days of the date of the request by the student for the hearing.

(d) The student shall be afforded a full and fair opportunity to present evidence relevant to the issues raised.

(e) The hearing officer shall render a written decision within 30 days after the conclusion of the hearing.

(f) The foregoing challenges and decisions are limited in scope to issues involving the correction or deletion of inaccurate, misleading or inappropriate data contained in the records and files of the student.

7. The following categories of information contained in student records and files are considered directory information and will be made available to anyone requesting the same, unless the student notifies the Registrar's Office during the first week of classes of each semester that he or she does not wish the information released:

(a) Student's name.

(b) Address.

(c) Telephone listing.

(d) Date and place of birth.

(e) Major field of study.

(f) Participation in officially recognized activities and sports.

(g) Weight and height of members of athletic teams.

(h) Dates of attendance.

(i) Degrees and awards received.

(j) The most recent previous educational agency or institution attended by the student.

(k) Other similar information.

FDA skirting issue, consumer rep says

By JOHN PHIPPS
Staff Writer

The Food and Drug Administration's (FDA) response to a TexPIRG complaint about the selling of apricot seeds "did not address the issue," according to Clarence Johnson, TexPIRG executive director.

The FDA's letter to TexPIRG refers to the controversy over the effectiveness of laetrile as a therapeutic agent in cancer treatment. The FDA also forwarded the complaint to the Texas State Health Department.

"I would have liked for the FDA to have given a concrete answer as to whether the seeds are to be regulated as a food item or not, and labeled as such," Johnson said. "People might be deceived by the fact that the seeds are sold in health food stores and accidentally eat too many," he said.

There is no way of knowing what is in them or that a possible health hazard exists by looking at the label.

In its original complaint, TexPIRG asked that the seeds be labeled to clearly state the hazards of overdose and to warn against consumption by children.

Johnson said that the FDA might have gotten so many complaints about laetrile as a drug that they just categorized the TexPIRG complaint with the others.

The FDA letter also referred to the August 5 Federal Register in which the FDA Commissioner said, "To urge the public to consume 'apricot pit milkshakes' or similar foods in order to be sure to get an ample supply of amygdalin or 'Vitamin B-17' or 'nitrosides' is irresponsible and foolhardy."

The letter said that the FDA regards with seriousness the many forms of laetrile. Johnson said that TexPIRG will continue in its attempt to get a clear answer by contacting both the FDA and the state.

Apricot seeds, or kernels, contain varying amounts of amygdalin, also known in its various forms as laetrile, nitrosides, Vitamin B-17 and cyanide.

TexPIRG's original complaint was prompted by a story in the July 21 Summer Cougar which pointed out that as few as two to five apricot seeds could possibly be fatal to a child.

D. C. trip

Wade exclaimed.

Wade also sat in on various congressional committee hearings while in Washington. Sen. Edward Kennedy's bill on recombinant DNA research was mostly an ethical issue, he said. This bill is concerned with scientists who have been bombarding genes with other genes and creating new microorganisms. Wade said that these discoveries may lead to cures for diseases or unknown germs, but either way people were reluctant to "unleash these new creatures upon society."

Football to highlight anniversary weekend

The first nationally televised NCAA football game of the year, between UH and UCLA on Monday, Sept. 12 will tip off a week of activities to commemorate UH's 50th anniversary.

Some of the scheduled events for the week of Sept. 12 through 19 include Program Council's annual Free Fair on Friday, Sept. 16; a university-wide open house, tour and celebration for UH alumni, faculty, staff and students on Saturday and a Sunday convocation by UH System President Philip G. Hoffman to be televised by KUHT-TV.

Two of the speakers scheduled for the convocation ceremony at Hofheinz Pavilion include U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen and nationally known historian and author Dr.

Henry Steele Commager.

Virtually every college on the UH campus is involved in the celebration on Saturday, Sept. 17. Entitled Half Century Alumni Day, the celebration will include such activities as open house in most colleges, tours of the campus and buildings and a variety of festivals, concerts and food fairs.

A closed-circuit showing of the Saturday UH-Penn State game will begin at 12:30 p.m. in Hofheinz Pavilion. Tickets will be on sale at the Athletic Ticket Office for students only from Sept. 5 through 8. UH faculty and staff can purchase tickets at the UC during the same period.

On Monday, the celebrations will draw to a close as Hoffman leads a "Giant Birthday Celebration" at the UC. The UH Marching Band and Today's Generation will provide the music and a cake cutting has been scheduled for 11:30 a.m.

Pigging Out

with Lori K

School days, school days, dear old golden rule days...

As one approaches this impressive structure on 815 Abbott, the above tune seems all too appropriate. Abbott School was once just that, a school, but today it serves some of the best hamburgers in town.

One block south of Washington and one block east of Heights, Abbott School is quaint both inside and out. The owner, Mike Walker, is an architect, and he completely restored the building, which belongs to a friend.

Inside, there are old school desks among the tables, and childish scrawls adorn the walls.

Although the atmosphere is delightful, it is but a secondary reason to visit the school. The food is, in a word, great.

According to Susie Cook, Walker's sister and "sorta manager, I guess," fresh ground beef arrives at the restaurant every morning. The employes busily form each of the hundreds of pastries by hand before the place opens. The Abbott's hours are from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and they close from 2:30 to 5 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

The just-like-home-made burgers sit between two fresh buns, along with mustard, mayonaise, tomatoes, lettuce, pickles and onions.

The hamburgers, which range in price from 90 cents to $1.35, take about 15 minutes to cook and assemble, "a little longer when it's cold," Cook said. But don't despair about the wait. There are three pinball machines, a pool table, electronic "Bazooka," and a pachinko machine for the patrons' amusement.

Abbott School believes in the old adages of good food, low prices and pleasant dining, and best of all, they're not "taught to the tune of a hickory stick."

Energy tower plan chosen

By ALICIA R. GARCIA
Staff Writer

The answer to the nation's energy problem may be 186,000 miles away—the sun. At least, if the plans of three UH scientists come to pass.

The nation's first experimental solar energy tower, in part the brainchild of the three UH scientists, should be in operation by 1980. Following six years of research by the professors, the Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA) has chosen their concept to be constructed.

Dr. Alvin Hildebrandt, UH physics professor and director of the UH Solar Energy Laboratory, is head of the research team. Dr. Lorin Vant-Hull and Dr. Fred Lipps, both UH Physics professors, are the other two.

The tower will be an electrical generating plant near Barstow, California. The plant will service the area in conjunction with the area utility companies. The initial design will be built at a cost of about $100 million, Hildebrandt said.

The concept includes an array of mirrors (heliostats) that cover several square kilometers surrounding a tower, Hildebrandt said.

"The mirrors consist of 40 square meter frames with glass on them. The frame can either rotate or tilt to follow the sun," Hildebrandt said. "There are small electronic rotating and tilting motors and a computer which tells them which function it must do to reflect the sun to the top of the tower."

On top of the tower there will be a cylindrical configuration of boiler-tubes that will absorb the sunlight reflected from the mirrors, Hildebrandt said.

Water is pumped up the 86-meter (283 feet) tower and converted to high pressure steam which in turn drives a conventional steam-electric generator at the base of the tower, generating more than 10,000 kilowatts of electrical power, according to a publication by Hildebrandt and Vant-Hull in the "Interdisciplinary Science Reviews."

Since 1973, two years after the project got underway, the UH group has been working with a team from the McDonnell Douglas Astronautics Company. The company developed a design for the metal-glass heliostats, Hildebrandt said.

With this $100 million experimental tower and with individuals around the country building their own "back yard" solar energy receivers, Americans may still find a way for keeping warm a few more winters to come.

'Juice' ready for UCLA

By MIKE EZZELL
Staff Writer

For those of you who do not know "The Juice," let me introduce you. He is Alois Blackwell.

The "Juice" Blackwell got his nickname when he was a freshman. He ran so well in practice that his teammates began calling him "The Juice." Also, Blackwell's jersey is No. 32, the same as the famed O.J. Simpson.

To those of us who followed football last year, Blackwell is no stranger. As halfback he led UH rushing with 1,083 yards (he did not start until the third game), had four games over 100 yards including the last three games in a row) and scored eight touchdowns.

Also to his credit, Blackwell was voted the Outstanding Offensive Player in the 1976 Cotton Bowl game, was voted to the 1976 Texas football Magazine All-Conference Team. He ranks 16th in all time UH rushing with 1,298 yards.

This year Blackwell is an All-American candidate, however, it was difficult to get him to talk about his personal goals, achievements and awards. Instead, he talked about team goals. The goals are to be "number one in the nation," "the number one offense in the nation," and, of course, "to be back at the Cotton Bowl January 1st."

UCLA and Penn State should give UH the challenge early in the season. When asked if playing UCLA on Monday and Penn State the following Saturday would handicap the team, Blackwell answered, "We've got the team to do it, it is all up to us. However, it must be done mentally, for it is not all brute strength but the ability of the mind.

"As long as there is another game on the schedule you cannot relax. If we beat UCLA and Penn State it should mean a number one ranking for us because we will be someone to be reckoned with."

At the first of last season UH was ranked high in the bottom 20. That standing alone would have made the SWC teams take UH lightly—unaware of the coming onslaught. However, Blackwell pointed out, "It's just like this in playing football there is no such thing as surprise. The reason they lost is because we beat them."

This year UH is presently tabbed number 11 on the polls, probably due to the loss of key defensivemen. Blackwell feels the offense will overcome this factor and become the most explosive offense UH has ever had.

Blackwell went to high school in Cuero, Texas. "I always liked UH, but I wanted to get a good way from home and see if I could make it on my own. Texas Tech was foremost on my mind. I also knew people from high school who played for Tech, but when the signing date came I chose UH."

"I like the city of Houston and the idea of playing in the Astrodome. Also UH is known to put people in the pros. I made the right choice. I have had the time of my life playing football, and I have made a lot of good friends," Blackwell said.

What else would he like to see this year? Without hesitation, Blackwell said, "I would like to see more support from our students, alumni and the surrounding Houston area. I would also love to see all of our games sold out."

Coog offense could

Editor's note: The Cougar is running a three-part series on the Cougar offense, defense and specialty teams.

By DAVID MUNDY

With the return of the entire offensive backfield, both wide receivers and three offensive linemen from last year's Southwest Conference and Cotton Bowl champs, the Houston Cougars look to veer their way to a repeat performance in 1977.

Junior Danny Davis, who ranked third last year in total offense in the SWC, returns as quarterback to direct the offensive attack. The Dallas native collected 420 yards rushing last season, scoring five touchdowns in addition to his 1,348 passing yards and 11 tallies.

Alois Blackwell, along with Davis, last season's SWC's third-leading rusher with 934 yards, and Dyrall Thomas return to start. Thomas picked up 543 yards last season, and both Blackwell and Thomas scored eight touchdowns.

Behind Blackwell and Thomas are Randy Love, Charlie Lynch and Emmett King. Love picked up 289 yards last year, Lynch 250, and King 153. In addition, John Newhouse and Terald Clark also may see action after coming from last year's junior varsity.

Flanker Rickey Maddox and split end Don Bass come back to starting positions, while sophomore James Hunter starts his first full season with the squad. Bass led all Cougar receivers last year with 17 catches for 394 yards and picked up 244 yards in receptions, which was spot action.

Wins, record boast for quiet swimmer

By KARA CHRISTIAN
Staff Writer

After talking with her for a few minutes, one gets the feeling she is a very easy-going person who thinks her accomplishments in swimming are a private matter—not something to talk about. With the skill Cory Schia possesses, she doesn't have to say much about her success; her ability speaks for her.

Schia started swimming when her doctor recommended the exercise as therapy for an arm injury. She liked it so well she began to swim competitively at age 12. Swimming "is neat," she says—a very natural sport and the best thing for all-around physical fitness.

The one aspect of swimming that does bother Schia is the lack of media attention swimmers in general receive. She says it is hard to perform and receive no recognition. But being able to win for the team members and for herself makes up for any lack of publicity there might be.

Investing time in practice has paid off for Schia. The national record-holder for 100-meter freestyle, she has set a UH record for 100-meter freestyle, she has set a UH record for 100-meter backstroke with a time of one minute eight seconds (1:08). Schia also holds the school record in the 200-meter backstroke, 2:07.

Last spring Schia placed third in the 100-meter individual medley at the National Championships, and placed fifth in 200-meter backstroke in the same competition.

Her immediate goal is to break a minute 100-meter backstroke. Asked if the Olympics were a future goal, Schia said she didn't like to think that far ahead, but quickly added, "Isn't that everybody's dream?"

Schia believes swimming is 75 per cent mental effort. She concentrates on psyching herself up and not on psyching out her opponents. Competition can make her nervous, but she said those feelings disappear as soon as she hits the water. At that point, total concentration takes over.

She doesn't plan races as some swimmers do, but swims each race as it progresses. Two of her biggest influences are her Amateur Athletic Union coach, Cal Bentz, and her coach at UH, Phil Hansel. She thinks the different coaching styles of the two men has helped her reach her present level of ability.

In the past, once a swimmer had reached age 16 or 17 she had passed her peak, but at 19 Schia does not feel she has reached her maximum level of performance. Colleges have not always offered swimmers the opportunity to compete once out of high school. The swimmer would have to stop competing during school terms and then try to get back in shape for summer competition.

Swimming is a demanding sport both physically and mentally, and the thought of quitting has crossed Schia's mind. At times she dreaded having to swim, and this past summer was especially hard for her, she said. Her times were not improving and she didn't feel good in the water. As competitive as she is, though, the idea of quitting did not stay with her long, and she said bad practices made her more determined to do better.

The only opportunity for swimmers out of college is the Masters' competition (25 and older). Schia would like to see a professional circuit started like the ones for tennis and golf. She feels she will be able to leave competition behind when she graduates, but hopes she will never have to stop working out. As much as she has gotten out of swimming, Schia says it's not her life.

Schia still has two years before graduating and the main question right now is: How is this year's team? She feels the team lacks depth, but has a lot of quality. She thinks UT and UH will finish 1-2 in the state, and that UT will see intramural competition from the Cougars.

In a hole in the ground lived a Movie Watcher (MW). It was a strange pale creature, with large pupils that vibrated 24 times a second. Its clothes were not unusual, except for the gummy substance stuck to its pants seat and the smell of Dr. Pepper on its shoe soles. Misunderstood and shunned, the MW returned to its safe apartment with its morbid posters and books about dead heroes with names like Gable and Griffith. It was for these poor creatures that the new school semester was begun, bringing as it did several new film series. While others attend classes and study, the MWs will be reveling in three campus series, each with its own style. Emphasizing box office appeal, Cinema 70 features recent releases on its Wednesday-Thursday series in the Oberholtzer Ballroom. Playing at 7 and 10 p.m., the series is highlighted by top films like "Seven Percent Solution" and the just confirmed "Rocky." Program Council films run more to artistic offerings like "All the President's Men" and "Barry Lyndon." PC will have matinees Tuesday and Friday in the UC Pacific Room at 1 p.m. (with an improved sound system). Tuesday evening films will be at 7 and 10 p.m. in the UC Houston Room, while Friday evening films run at 7:30 p.m. in Agnes Arnold

Hall Auditorium 1. Don't forget about the International Student Organization series which will play at 2 and 8 p.m., usually on Thursdays in the Pacific Room, UC. Some really fine, seldom seen pictures will play, including "Swept Away" and the touted "Battle of Chile." Off campus, the Museum of Fine Arts begins a Friday-Saturday series on Sept. 16, with "It Happened One Night." The museum shows a mixed bag of old classics, foreign and "art" films. A schedule can be obtained at the museum at 1001 Bissonnet. And for very serious MWs, Rice University's Media Center has a terrific schedule for the whole semester, including salutes to John Ford, D.W. Griffith and Jeanne Moreau. The series is already started ("Birth of a Nation" is at 7:30 tonight) and schedules are available at the Center on the Rice campus off University Blvd. MWs of the world, stand tall. You're not forgotten.

SEALS AND CROFTS SING THE SONGS FROM ONE ON ONE
 Warner Bros, BS3076

This latest effort by Seals and Crofts is pleasant, painless and worth hearing. Seals and Crofts did not write the words or the music, but there are unmistakable elements of their style. The instrumentation is quite similar to their most recent recordings and their well-blended vocalizations are as good as ever. There are several instrumentals on the album between songs. They hold up well as musical statements and are not mere filler between emotional segments of the recording. They help to make the album an even and complete piece of music. The lyrics are really quite a change from standard Seals and Crofts fare. Although the melodic duo has progressed immensely since songs like "Cows of Gladness" or "Jekyll and Hyde" on their earliest recordings, sometimes their lyrics have shown a lack of polish. Paul Williams wrote the songs for this disc and even though he is far from a lyrical genius, at least one does not need to grit one's teeth at hearing the words moon, june and tune rhyme as in one S. and C. song. Seals and Crofts actually sing on only seven out of 14 cuts on the album. The entire mood of the album is quite mellow and for the most part, light. If you enjoy Seals and Crofts, the album is worth picking up and listening to.

Paintings in Blaffer gallery

By LINDA BOYD
Staff Writer

Blaffer Gallery, located on the ground floor of the Fine Arts Building, is displaying the works of recently discovered American artist Louise Herreshoff through Sept. 21.

The collection of 83 drawings, paintings and watercolors on loan from Washington and Lee University, is a fascinating experience for the eye and the intellect. Herreshoff displays an incredible variance in style. It appears incongruous that the same artist who early in her career created soft, romantic portraits of lovely ladies in flowing gowns later painted bold impressionistic landscapes and still lifes mingling vibrant colors and dramatic strokes.

Herreshoff studied in France in 1898. It was here she began to add new colors to her palette and to paint outdoors. When she returned to America in 1903, her early gentle style was gone.

Herreshoff's later paintings suggest defiance and a newly discovered sense of liberation for a woman artist living from 1876-1967.

Five portraits of "Aunt Lizzie," with whom Herreshoff lived after her mother's death, hang side by side in the gallery, each representing a different stage of the artist's development. Using a dramatic explosion of colors and bold, forceful strokes, Herreshoff created an unforgettable statement in the final portrait.

Toni Beauchamp, assistant director of Blaffer, said, "The Herreshoff collection has broad appeal. Students will relate to it."

Under the direction of William Robinson, Blaffer Gallery has brought to Houston such exhibitions as "Three Centuries of the American Nude," "Picasso, Braque, Leger: Masterpieces from Swiss Collections," and "Edvard Munch."

campus films

Neil Simon's "Murder by Death" recently went into general re-release in Houston, and Cinema 70 has wisely brought the film on campus, thereby taking advantage of the movie's televised ad campaign.

The film will be screened at 7 and 10 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday in O.B. Ballroom. The film is a satirical and somewhat nostalgic look at detective fiction in general, and who-done-it movies in particular.

The cast is the film's biggest draw: Peter Sellers, Peter Falk, Maggie Smith, Alec Guinness, Truman Capote, Eileen Brennan, David Niven, Nancy Walker, James Coco and Elsa Lanchester. The plot is essentially a pastiche of detective movie cliches and gags which would work in any B comedy.

The film is not typical Simon work, and it certainly is not his best. There are moments of hilarity, though, and if you are stuck on campus, it is a good way to kill a couple of hours.

March or fry?

By LOUIS PARKS
Staff Writer

"March or Die" is almost a very good action film. The movie's main problem is that it wants to be swashbuckling AND serious, bleak AND cute, epic AND personal.

It's just asking too much. Still, the movie has some pleasing features.

Gene Hackman is one of the finest actors in the business, even when he has little to work on. His performance as an exiled American officer serving in the French Foreign Legion ("That's why they call it the Foreign Legion") is not one of his best, but adds a much needed dignity to what could have been a trite part.

Hackman must lead his troops on what he considers a dangerous, immoral mission to guard archeologists "grave-robbing" a desert tomb. He knows his friend, an Arab leader, will use the French intrusion as an excuse for political profit at his expense.

Max Von Sydow has a small but important role as leader of the archeologists, and Catherine Deneuve is a woman looking for her kidnapped father in the desert.

Terence Hill is an impossibly nice cat burglar, escaping the law in the legion. He supplies most of the hero, lover stuff, and is likeable if not exciting.

It all finally boils down to a terrifically staged final battle as a zillion Arabs take on the small troop. Getting there is slightly tedious, however.

Despite the title, this is not a cheap film. The sets and production are first rate, and some of the interior photography is exceptional.

One word of advise: leave after the battle. The final scene is terribly corny.
