System treasurer retires at 62

John Treadway Brogdon, UH system treasurer, announced his retirement Friday, effective Jan. 31.

Brogdon reports to Dr. Roger Singleton, UH system executive vice president, who is currently heading the investigation into the alleged misuse of university finances. Brogdon said, however, that his retirement is not related to the investigation. "I started this retirement plan two years ago," he said.

Brogdon, who is 62, said he is retiring so he can travel and have more time for leisure activities. "This desire, coupled with the fact that the university may soon be refining its financial activities through major organizational and procedural changes wherein long-term leadership will be essential, makes it clear to me that this is the appropriate time for my retirement," Brogdon said in a Jan. 26 letter to UH System President Philip G. Hoffman.

He said he had planned to retire Aug. 31 1977, but postponed this date because he was given an opportunity to work for Singleton. "Dr. Singleton knew that I had only three years until mandatory retirement, but we both felt that I could be of assistance to him in the University of Houston System Office," Brogdon stated in his letter.

Brogdon has been with the university for 28 years.

Brogdon was also assistant treasurer to the UH Foundation. University officials said Brogdon will retire from this position.

Low exam scores show student need for basic English

By SHEILA S. LIDSTONE
Staff Writer

Nearly one-third of all incoming UH freshmen fail to meet the minimum score of 40 on an English proficiency exam.

Dr. Linda Westervelt, UH English professor, said the students must first take a remedial English course, English 130, before entering the required freshman English class, English 133.

All high school students wishing to attend UH are required to take the SAT exam and the new TSWE (Test of Standard Written English) exam. Incoming freshmen must score at least a 40 on the TSWE exam to enter the freshman English course. Otherwise, they must take English 130, a review of grammar, spelling and writing paragraphs.

According to Jeanette Morgan, UH English instructor, the English 130 course consists of two parts. She said when the students enter the class, they must take a diagnostic test and must write a composition. The students are then placed in either Track I, an intense review of grammar, or Track II, an overview of grammar with focus on troublesome parts.

In both parts of the English 130 course, the students must take grammar exams and two spelling tests, and write two in-class themes. Students must score 80 percent on each test and theme.

In reference to the large number of students taking the basic English course, Morgan said, "It seems to be the trend to have a large number of students who must take English 130.

Morgan said the program is effective because it has enabled the English department to maintain higher standards.

"Those students who finish English 130 have significantly improved their TSWE scores, and we've done further student testing through Counseling and Testing to make sure we are helping students," Westervelt said.

Dr. John McNamara, English department chair, said he does not feel the problem is the fault of just English teachers and English departments.

"Writing skills tend to be strengthened through practice," McNamara said, "and they can deteriorate if they are not used constantly.

"We would like to see colleagues in all departments require their students to write papers. We can't do it alone in six or nine hours," he said.

McNamara said the program began operating last semester, and definite results of its success are not available as yet. The results will be assessed at the end of the semester, and some adjustments may be made.

"We need everyone's support in this program, otherwise, just our department's best won't be enough for a lot of students," McNamara said.

Groups petition against violence

By MIKE PETERS
Editor

The Students' Association is considering a resolution deploring violence as a way to resolve differences of opinion, joining about 40 organizations and individuals on campus who signed a similar statement Monday.

The resolution evolved from a "Statement Against Violence," circulated among student leaders and organizations Monday by Ebrahim Rahimi-Khamnei, president of the UH chapter of the Committee for Artistic and Intellectual Freedom in Iran. CAIFI prepared the statement after Rahimi-Khamnei and three other members were beaten up by five other Iranian students Jan. 23. The four victims now allege their assailants "identified themselves as members of the Iranian Students Association—U.S.," although on the night of the attack they would only say they were unknown Iranian students who followed them from a conference on Iran in the Science & Research Building.

Several CAIFI members said Monday the organization is not seeking punitive action against ISA, but simply wants them and all other campus organizations to agree to accept differences of opinion without resorting to violence.

Amir Mobarrez Maleky, the most severely beaten of the four CAIFI members, said the attackers were angered by his call for support for the writers' association in Iran, a dissident group in frequent conflict with the government of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi. CAIFI is a national organization which attempts to pressure the Iranian government through public opinion, and not all of the Iranian students at the meeting last week favor that approach, Rahimi-Khamnei said. The forum Jan. 23 was sponsored by ISA, but members of several of the six Iranian student groups on campus participated, he added.

CAIFI members interviewed Monday insisted the force of public opinion was a successful device to aid political prisoners in Iran, whose number CAIFI estimates at 100,000. They credited such pressure for Iran's recent lift of a travel embargo on Dr. Gholamhossein Sa'edi, one of the most outspoken dissident writers in that country. Sa'edi has been in jail several times, Rahimi-Khamnei said, and was released last year after a similar campaign of international protest.

Rahimi-Khamnei said CAIFI is not simply an Iranian organization since many of its members are prominent Americans sympathetic to its cause. Such supporters include Joan Baez, Ramsey Clark, Rep. Ronald Dellums (Calif.), Daniel Ellsberg and Gloria Steinem.

Three candidates for SA president (David Patronella, Pat Powers and Vic Quintanilla) signed the CAIFI statement Monday, along with officers and members of several campus organizations, including Organizations Board, the Young Socialist Alliance, the Black Student Union, Ethnic Affairs and the International Student Organization.

"These methods are not helpful to solving Iranian students' problems," Rahimi-Khamnei said. "Besides, I don't want to have to worry about getting stabbed when I leave the campus. Those are tactics of the Iranian government."

PC expenditures

Budget covers old debts

By JAN RICH
Asst. News Editor

Program Council incurred a debt of approximately $10,000 during the 1976-77 fiscal year but will cover the loss with this year's budget, Martin Cominsky, PC treasurer, said Monday.

The major cause of the debt was a Richard and Karen Carpenter concert that was not well attended. The concert left PC with an $11,000 debt, some of which was made up in generated revenues later in the year, Cominsky said. Cominsky also said there were other minor losses during the year from some films and fine arts events.

The exact loss will not be determined until UH completes its financial statement for the 1976-77 fiscal year. "It'll be in the financial report that should come out at the end of the month," Cominsky said.

Last year PC was allocated

$90,000 from Student Services Fees. This fiscal year, 1977-78, they were allocated $95,000, but operate on a $150,000 budget. The difference between allocated funds and the actual budget comes from generated revenue, Cominsky said.

So far this year PC has experienced "no major losses," and in fact has generated a $28,000 income since September,

Fellows' 'plight' scorned

By CHARLES WILBANKS

Being a teaching fellow myself, I read with interest Julie Gianelloni's "Gradually Speaking" column, which appeared in the Cougar Jan. 25.

Her harangue began with a rather juvenile fictitious dialogue that implied that teaching fellows were being exploited. Her fictitious professor pronounces, "You're exploited alright, but there's nothing you can do about it." She responds that the professor's opinion is sound and that "Graduate students, particularly teaching fellows, are being exploited." She continues by saying, "The profession is corrupt. There is very little that I can do about it, and chances are 90 percent I should get out." She is correct in one respect, she should get out. She should get out, not because the profession is corrupt, but because her conception of graduate work, and more specifically her conception of teaching fellowships, is rather imaginative, and she doesn't appear to be ready for it.

Throughout the article she decries the disparity between the professor's secure tenured position and her own "transient" position, implying that teaching fellows should be accorded the same considerations as a tenured professor, and that is neither realistic nor desirable. If teaching fellowships were permanent professional positions, it would be easier to understand Ms. Gianelloni's complaints. However, such is not the case. Teaching fellows necessarily are transient, and according to the Graduate Studies Bulletin, "teaching fellowships are awarded as financial aid and nothing more. In order to qualify for the aid, a fellow must fulfill certain obligations, teaching being among them. Fellowships are not permanent professional positions." If Ms. Gianelloni had bothered to look in the Bulletin she would have known that, and perhaps she would have understood her position. I suppose that she was too busy writing letters, designing flyers and attending meetings by herself to have done that.

I am not certain exactly what is bothering my colleague in the English department. Is it the money that we receive? Is it our working conditions? Is it the quality of our graduate courses? Is it the weather? She fails to enumerate what is troubling her, only that she feels we are being exploited. A cursory investigation into the Annual Guides to Graduate Study for 1977 reveals that the amount of the fellowship stipend we receive at the UH is either equal to, or surpasses, the amount offered by most other universities listed in that publication. Fellowships have always been offered as financial assistance meant to defray the expenses of our graduate work. We are not paid a "salary" but awarded a "stipend." It has been that way in the past, it is that way now, and I see no justification for changing it.

In my department the facilities and working conditions are excellent.

Editor's note: Wilbanks is a teaching fellow in the speech department.

Does fear keep you from saving a life?

December is always a time of heavy withdrawals from banks, and now many banks are running in the red—blood banks.

Christmastime is so distracting that few people think about giving blood then. When January follows with the flu in tow, many people who would usually give cannot. At the same time, December and January are a peak time for traffic accidents and illnesses, and the need for blood increases.

So, we are after your blood. Most people are uneasy about being donors, but the actual drawing of blood only takes about 10 minutes, and the process is so refined that fear is unwarranted and discomfort is minimal.

The human body replaces blood cells lost through a donation in a matter of hours, and most people can give blood as often as once every two months without harming themselves. Some medical conditions can prohibit a person from giving blood, such as hepatitis, a recent pregnancy or major surgery.

If in doubt about your ability to donate, call the blood bank convenient to you. Two in Houston are the Gulf Coast Regional Blood Center, 5303 Caroline (529-1696), and the Institute of Hemotherapy in the Texas Medical Center, 1522 S. Braeswood (797-1950).

Give the life in you to others, without giving it up yourself. You'll feel good all day.

Letters:

Fans should keep off refs' backs

To the Editor:

As an avid basketball fan, and a fan of the Cougars, I have often disagreed loudly with the calls of some officials. I realize they have a difficult job, but still cannot see why they continue to make some flagrantly poor calls.

However, I was even more appalled Wednesday night at Hofheinz Pavilion when I heard the reactions of a very vehement fan sitting directly behind me. Before the game even started, this man was screaming his lungs out, calling the officials by several different four-, six-, eight-, 10-, and 12-letter words.

As the game wore on, he began threatening the referees' lives when any call, whether justified or not, was made against UH. At some times he was drowning out the massed sounds of the band, cheerleaders and other fans in his screaming madness.

I realize that few, if any, of-officials on a basketball court are perfect. Nevertheless, they should at least be given the decency to try to judge a game the best way they know how, without hearing any threats on their lives from irate fans.

To the Editor:

I have wanted for some time to express my appreciation for the wit and wisdom (?) of T. Edward Bell's "Sold Out" column. His chirography skills often help enlighten subjects that seldom receive illumination.

In the true spirit of scholarship, I must come to his aid. In his column on hell, (Tuesday, Jan. 24), T. Edward predicted his eventual demise and eternal banishment to a fiery hell. Judging from the content of some of his columns, I will not quibble with his predictions.

However, his overheated destination will not result from his "lifting a few," or from lustful looks at girlie mags. Instead, everyone who opts for a brimstone retirement will be there because of a deliberate choice—that choice being a refusal to accept Jesus Christ's death as payment for their own rebellion against God and His laws.

Jesus said, "Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God." So, take heart T.E.B; you still have a choice. Not all writers have to endure an eternal sauna, though the reading public may wish that were true!

To the Editor:

I would like UH students to know about a Sundry School course I will be teaching this spring, even though it was not listed in the "Sundry School Registration Information."

This course, entitled "To Know THE DAILY COUGAR

Christ Jesus," (No. 920) will meet for seven consecutive Thursday nights, 7:30 to 9 p.m.

It is planned to help students discover the advantage of understanding the person of Jesus—from a biblical perspective—as a living power in relation to today's university situation.

Dr. Carl B. Trutter
UH Catholic Newman Association

To the Editor:

It is interesting to me that students, in the form of an academic enrichment council, seem to becoming more interested in the education they receive.

It only seems natural, since, after all, we're paying through the nose for it. When I read that piles of money are spent on remodeling offices in the administration building and buying extravagant (and apparently rather fragile) "sculptures," I always remember how funds are "lacking" to provide the most worthwhile classroom experience.

Perhaps I'm wrong, but I sure thought that's what we are here for.

Letters policy

Letters to the editor must be typewritten and should not exceed 250 words. Submissions up to 500 words long may be accepted for publication as commentaries. Anyone is welcome to use a typewriter in the Cougar office if needed.

Both letters and commentaries are subject to basic editing. Both will be run as space permits: the Cougar reserves the right to delete portions of any article because of length.

Letters and commentaries must be accompanied by the writer's name and student number (or position if a university faculty member or employee.)

new Summary

From the Associated Press

RABAT, Malta—The United States and Britain failed to persuade black guerilla leaders to abandon their bloody five-year war against Rhodesia's white government and accept a plan for a peaceful settlement leading to black majority rule.

Late Sunday the rebels served notice that their only aim was to continue fighting until they have secured a total transfer of power from Rhodesia's white rulers. "If the British do not throw Mr. Smith out, we will do it," one rebel leader said.

WASHINGTON—The nation's trade deficit soared to a record $26.7 billion last year, the government reported Monday, and a top administration official predicted a deficit nearly as large this year.

Imports of costly foreign oil were a major cause of the 1977 deficit, draining $42.1 billion from American banks and pocketbooks. This was an increase of $10 billion from a year earlier.

AMARILLO—Cattlemen may set off another drastic beef price hike if they hold back cows and calves to increase the nation's cattle supply, a Texas Cattle Feeders Association spokesman said Monday.

"We're on the verge of triggering a situation like that of 1972, when the price of beef shot up too fast, sparking consumer resistance and political pressures we couldn't cope with," said Jim Gill, a TCFA market analyst.

NEW ORLEANS—A 25-year-old plumber working under a house was shot and killed Monday as a scrambling group of gun-waving policemen mistook him for the man who killed a bank guard moments before.

"I understand he was shot by one of our men," said Sgt. A.J. Valente of the Jefferson Parish Sheriff's Department.

The lone gunman who tried to rob the Metairie Bank & Trust Co. got away.

Handicapped grad on Senate subcommittee

Sue Ellen Walbridge has been appointed research assistant for the U.S. Senate Subcommittee on the Handicapped of the Human Resources Committee.

Walbridge has been senior secretary with the Office of Handicapped Student Services of UH Student Life Division for the past year.

She will assume her duties in Washington, Feb. 20. She will be researching issues, preparing reports and materials for floor debate and advising Republican senators of the Committee on Human Resources.

Her appointment is for a term of five years under Sen. Robert T. Stafford of Vermont.

Walbridge, a native of Vermont, said Monday she hopes to do the best she can to get legislation passed to help the handicapped.

She said one of the requirements for the appointment is that the applicant be handicapped so that the appointee can have a better understanding of the problems of the handicapped.

Walbridge is a 1976 UH graduate in history.

Month recalls black history

UH Black Student Union will observe Black History Month with a cultural celebration, "From Africa to America," beginning at noon Wednesday.

The celebration will open in the Parliament Room, UC, with an historical analysis of the black struggle at UH from noon to 3 p.m.

The review will feature charter members of the Afro-Americans for Black Liberation and past student leaders.

Julius Gordon, associate dean of students, will moderate a panel discussion entitled "The Black Movement: Alive or Dead?" from 1 to 3 p.m. Thursday in the Parliament Room, UC.

The panel will include Charles Porter, program director of radio station KYOK; Varea Shields, managing editor of the Forward Times; Juliette Marshall, interviewer-placement specialist for Houston Community College; and Debbie Haley, chair of the Texas Black Caucus.

The first week of Black History Month will conclude with a film, "Sweet Sweetback's Badass Song," Friday.

Hearings planned on nursing homes

Texas Attorney General John L. Hill will conduct a public hearing on nursing homes in mid-February at the UH Central Campus.

Oral testimony begins at 9 a.m. Feb. 15 and will be taken until 5 p.m. at Max Krost Hall at the UH College of Law.

In a statement released through his office, Hill said he believes that "in the nursing home industry, persons are engaging in, have engaged in, or are about to engage in acts or practices declared to be unlawful by the Deceptive Trade Practices and Consumer Protection Act," and that it is in the public interest to solicit testimony concerning any such incidents.

A similar hearing was conducted last fall in Dallas, and three others are tentatively planned after the session here, according to a Hill aide. The other three hearings will probably be in Austin, San Antonio and El Paso, he said.

Persons interested in testifying under oath at the hearing should contact the attorney general's Nursing Home Task Force, P.O. Box 12548, Austin, Tex., 78711, or call 1-800-252-9236.

Individuals wishing to make statements without testifying may send written statements to the same address. Oral and written statements will get equal consideration.

Hill will oppose Gov. Dolph Briscoe for the Democratic nomination for governor in the primary later this spring.

PC money

Cominsky said. He said PC is taking a more conservative look at the events they sponsor. "We are co-sponsoring some shows—we're not taking as large a risk," Cominsky said.

Cominsky said he considers $500 or more a major loss. He explained that "on some of our shows we don't plan to make a lot of money." This includes some cultural events that students might otherwise never see. "Some of our programs are free," he said.

However, the Carpenter concert was not a free event. One of the reasons the concert did not draw enough people was the weather.

The Carpenter concert also came the night after another well-known rock singer's performance in Houston. Although tickets did not sell well, the Carpenters had been promised a guaranteed income from the concert.

GOP secretary picked

Texas State College Republicans elected R-TV major Elizabeth McLemore secretary of the state conference in Austin Saturday.

Another UH student, Tom Deliganis, political science senior, ran for vice chair and lost by one vote, said Steve Baker, former UH chair of the Texas State College Republicans, Monday.

This semester's officers were chosen from 19 colleges and universities, Baker said. The UH delegation also plans to attend the National College Republicans Conference next month in New Orleans.

Harwood to consider comm needs; situation similar to former position

By DAVID HURLBUT and SHEILA S. LIDSTONE
Staff Writers

Dr. Ken Harwood will direct the new UH School of Communication beginning June 1.

Harwood told The Daily Cougar Friday, "One of my first jobs will be to find out the needs of the new school and begin asking for what is needed." He said he has no fixed, pre-set plans for his new position.

"I must know the problems in detail before I can arrange a solution," he said.

Harwood is the present director of the school of Communications at Temple University in Philadelphia. He became director of the school Jan. 1, 1960, when the communications school was formed and moved into a new building.

Temple University is a multi-campus institution much like UH. The central campus is located near the downtown Philadelphia area. Temple has all the basic schools and some professional schools, such as law. The total enrollment at Temple is very close to the total enrollment at UH.

Although the circumstances and programs at Temple are very much alike, Harwood was hesitant to draw similarities between the two.

"No two institutions are alike,

Sundry sign-up

Registration for Sundry School classes continues this week and extends through Feb. 6. Anyone who wishes to sign up for the short courses today may go to the Houston Room, UC, between 4 and 7 p.m.

The sign-up location for the remainder of the registration period is the UC Underground.

Senior citizens may enroll for free on a limited basis.

and I have no fixed preconceptions here because what works in one school does not necessarily work in another," Harwood said.

Harwood said he felt the School of Communication needs more faculty.

"I would like to integrate new faculty members with the existing faculty, not so rapidly as to be disruptive, but instead gradually," he said.

Harwood also realized the need for more internships and job placements for communication students.

"The professional community is very cooperative and more than willing to try to help the university," he said.

Harwood said the physical separation between the speech and communication departments should not pose any problem.

"Our hope is to add a wing to the new building and bring the two departments together," he said.

Center offers flu services

Students seeking relief from the flu, now widespread in Houston, can see a doctor without charge at the UH Health Center.

Helyn Patterson, assistant to the center's director, said medication and laboratory services are also available for a fee.

The Health Center is open from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. Mondays and Tuesdays, and 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday through Friday. A validated ID student card or a schedule-fee statement must be presented for a free examination.

Texas downs Coogs

By JACKIE MOSCARELLI
and DAVID MUNDY
Sports Writers

AUSTIN—Tyrone Branyan sank a pair of free throws in the final seconds to lift the Texas Longhorns to a come-from-behind 73-72 squeaker over UH last night in the Super Drum in Austin.

The Cougars led throughout the game by as many as 11 points until a second-half rally pulled the 'Horns to within one point with 1:02 remaining. A crucial turnover and foul led to Branyan's spoiler shots. Nevertheless, the game was a tossup until Mike Schultz's last-second shot frittered off the backboard as the final buzzer sounded.

It is perhaps ironic that the winning margin for Texas came from free throws. UH hit on 18 of 19 shots from the line in the game, which had helped them maintain a three-point lead in the final five minutes.

The loss was particularly disheartening in that it was the fourth one-pointer the Coogs have dropped this season. Arizona, Arizona State and SMU's miracle shot last week have capitalized on the final seconds to nudge UH.

Cecile Rose led the Cougars with 23 points, with Chet Thompson adding 18 and nine rebounds. Four Texas players scored in double figures, led by Branyan's 16. John Moore had 15 and Jim Krivacs and Ron Baxter 14 apiece.

"We played our guts out," said UH Coach Guy Lewis. "Nobody expected us to come up and beat them. They were undefeated in conference and we played them to the wire—that's got to be a bright spot."

The Cougars held a slim 70-67 margin with 2:37 remaining, running a four-corner passing game. Moore drew a two-shot foul after Rose sank a pair of free throws and hit both of them to close to 72-69.

"You can't say we blew our cool," Lewis said. "No one person was to blame. We've had four of these things this year.

"I'm proud of our guys' effort. We came up here to win, not just to play it close. I thought we could win it and our players thought we could win it."

The Cougars staked out a 48-39 halftime lead on the strength of hot shooting from the field and a 10-of-10 mark from the foul line.

Texas outrebounded the Cougars 41-36, with Branyan and Baxter grabbing 10 each. Thompson had nine for the Coogs and Schultz pulled down eight.

UH faces off with TCU at 8 Wednesday night in Hofheinz Pavilion.

Lumberjack fem rally

By DAVID MUNDY
Sports Editor

A furious rally that cut a 22-point deficit to a six-point margin fell short as the Stephen F. Austin Lumberjacks cut down the UH women's basketball team 76-66 last night in Nacogdoches.

The loss, coupled with a pair of wins and a loss in the Texas Classic last weekend, moves the Cougar record to 12-8 on the season.

Ann Moon led the Coog scorers with 24 points, supplemented by 14 points from Cheryl Gardley and 12 from Sharion Higgins. D.K. Thomas led SFA with 18 points, with Pat Johnson chipping in 16 and Barbara Brown 12.

Coach Dot Woodfin was pleased with her team's performance despite the loss. "They had a definite height advantage over us, as well as two All-

Tankers dominate Rice in match

By MICHAEL COMBS
Sports Writer

The UH men's swimming team ran away with a dual meet Saturday, defeating Rice 92-20 in Melcher Natatorium.

The 400-yard medley relay team of Ian Bertolina, Lars Lindeberg, Arthur Britton and Dave Smalley took first with a time of 3:44.57.

In short sprints, Bruce Greenwood got off to a good start and held off teammate Smalley to win the 50-yard freestyle with a :22.6 time. Mike Blondell took third.

Brothers Simon and Dave Gray took first and second places, respectively, in the 1,000-yard freestyle. Simon won with a 9:58.25 time, while Dave finished with a 10:25.93 mark. Tom Pardee placed third.

Mike Miles came on to win the 200-yard freestyle with a time of 1:46.59, with Peter Dawson taking second. Miles took another first in the 100-yard freestyle with a :48.98 timing, with Blondell taking second.

Cougar divers Joe McDowell and Frank Yazzolino dominated the diving events, winning the top two spots in both the one-meter and three-meter diving.

Dawson led a UH sweep of the 200-yard butterfly, taking first with a 1:57.29 time. Lindeberg placed second with 2:06.2 and Dave Gray took third with 2:06.8. Bertolina led another sweep, this of the 200-yard backstroke with a 2:07.6 time. John Fischer took second and Mark Dietrichs third in the event.

Fischer, Dietrichs and Bertolina then changed places in sweeping the 200-yard individual medley. Fischer placed first with a 2:00.43 time, with Dietrichs taking second and Bertolina third.

Arthur Britton won the 200-yard breaststroke with a 2:25.9 time, with Pardee and Gene Kendall taking second and third.

Greenwood took up the slack caused by Simon Gray's disqualification and won the 500-yard freestyle with a time of 4:49.31. Gray was disqualified from the event after making two false starts.

Americans. We were walking in there with a young group—three freshmen and two sophomores starting—and they didn't fold when they were down by 22 points."

Woodfin cited Brenda Lee as one of the key cogs in initiating the Cougar comeback. "She played a fantastic game on defense," Woodfin said. "She was pitted against a 6-foot girl (Lee stands a mere 5-foot-9½) and blocked several of her shots."

The height advantage Woodfin was talking about was apparent when looking at the statistics. Although Moon had an admirable 12 rebounds for the Coogs, her figure was overshadowed by SFA's Johnson, who pulled down an impressive 17.

"They're rated second in the state and 15th in the nation," Woodfin said. "That height advantage makes a difference."

"I think we could have pulled closer in the second half, but we got cold for about three minutes before we started moving again," Woodfin said.

The Cougars provided a real cat-fight for the Southwest Texas Bobcats, mauling them 92-57 to claim the consolation title in the Women's Texas Classic basketball tournament at UT's Super Drum Saturday afternoon.

In claiming that title, UH's Ann Moon led the scoring with 24 points, followed by Brenda Lee with 21. Sharion Higgins had 12 and Kip Anderson scored 10.

Friday, UH lost a 54-47 decision to North Texas State (NTS). This time it was Higgins and Anderson with 10 points and Lee with 12. NTS' Lisa Risinger led their scoring with 21 points.

UH bounced back to defeat San Angelo State 76-49 Friday night. The majority of Cougar players scored points to gain the 27-point margin of victory. Moon topped the scoring with 22 points, Higgins had 12, Cheryl Gardley and Janice Hilliard had 11 apiece, while Anderson and Lee finished with 10 each.

UH faces UT at 5:45 p.m. Wednesday in Hofheinz Pavilion.

Netters whip SFA in meet

The UH women's tennis team defeated Stephen F. Austin Saturday, winning eight of nine matches.

UH's Karen Hausman routed SFA's Linda Roco 6-0, 6-1 in the No. 1 singles, while No. 2 Becky Grissom defeated Angie Rarlsbuck 6-2, 6-0.

Beth Paulin whipped Tracy Hollis 6-2, 6-0, while No. 4 Melissa Zoelle downed Renee Berry 6-2, 6-0.

No. 5 Karen Longshore defeated Debbie Maroia in three sets, 4-6, 6-3, 6-2. Clare Compagnie was the only UH player to lose in the match, falling to SFA's Lynn Carlson in three sets 4-6, 6-1, 6-2.

In doubles, the No. 1 team of Hausman and Zoelle defeated SFA's Roco and Carol Logan by scores of 6-4, 6-2. Grissom and Paulin downed Berry and Hollis 6-0, 6-2.

The No. 3 doubles team of Longshore and Compagnie went to a tie breaker in the third set before taking a 4-6, 6-2, 5-0 win.

SFA and Rice will be traveling to UH's Hoff Courts to play the Cougars at 1 p.m. Friday in a three-way match.

Baseball ruling

Kuhn axes Blue trade

NEW YORK (AP)—Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn rejected the trade of Vida Blue to the Cincinnati Reds Monday, but urged the two clubs to restructure the transaction.

The decision, announced by his office after Kuhn had left for Boston, was precipitated by the $1.75 million that the Reds had paid Oakland owner Charles O. Finley for Blue, a three-time 20-game winner.

Kuhn has placed an informal $400,000 ceiling on the price any team could pay another club for an individual player. The Reds and A's tried to skirt that limit when Cincinnati included minor league slugger Dave Revering in the Blue deal which was announced at baseball's winter meetings in Hawaii last December.

Within minutes of the announcement of the trade, Kuhn informed both clubs that he was withholding approval pending his examination of the transaction.

Finley and Red's President Bob Howsam spent two days testifying at hearings called by the commissioner earlier this month. There was an attempt at a compromise that would have sent other Reds players to Oakland and reduced the cash involved in the transaction. But when that could not be worked out, the commissioner stopped the deal, then suggested that the two clubs renegotiate during the second interleague trading period that runs from Feb. 15 to March 15.

DEEP THROAT

At 1 and 3 p.m. in the UC Pacific Room; and at 7 and 9:30 p.m. in the UC Houston Room; 1974; in color.

"Deep Throat" doesn't need any introduction; it's the film that made Linda Lovelace a star and almost made Harry Reems a jailbird.

The film has raised controversy for the UH Program Council. This is the third time the film has been scheduled; previously the Policy Board had pushed the showing times back.

This time, however, it will be showing, and, says Program Council President Pat Powers, "We expect sellouts all four times."

For those who haven't heard, the story is about an apparently normal girl (Linda Lovelace) who just doesn't respond to normal sex. She goes to her doctor (Harry Reems), who discovers that her clitoris has been misplaced. The doctor gives her a free demonstration on how to use it. Bells ring, lights flash, fireworks go off, and she realizes that swallowing means never having to say you're sorry.

The notoriety of "Deep Throat" is a direct result of several New York critics describing it as "a hilarious satire on our present day sexual mores." Due to this intellectual blah-wah on the part of those critics, it became possible to see a pornographic film with no sense of guilt at all.

Well, "Deep Throat" is not a hilarious satire on our present day sexual mores, and it is pornography. The biggest question the film drags up is why this particular pornographic film should be this notorious, rather than some other.

Costello wows Opry crowd

By TERRY ANN BENCIK
Arts and Amusements Writer

While the impatient crowd was stomping and cheering for the main act to come out, a skinny, funny-looking guy with a D.A. haircut kept on walking through the tightly-packed audience in the Texas Opry House. The guy had on black thin-framed glasses, the kind that boys who like zoology in the sixth grade wore, and walked from the front of the concert hall to the back of the hall at least five times. Either this fellow wanted to be noticed or had very weak kidneys. The man disappeared, recombed his hair, donned a pencil-thin necktie, cuffed jeans and oversized glasses. Elvis Costello then took the stage.

Costello opened his tight set with a "Welcome to the Working Week," an energetic rocker which was short but energy-packed.

Costello played all the material from his album with little deviation and stuck to more familiar interpretations of his material. There is nothing outstanding to say about his band's performance of this material, however. None of them are class "A" musicians, but Costello's loose style does not lend itself to, or try to achieve, instrumental perfection. Costello and his band opt for a more crude combination of 1960s vocalization and a musical style constricted to that era.

About five new songs were performed, but "I Wanna Be Your Victim" was the most worthwhile. His new material generally was indistinguishable. "I Wanna be Your Victim," however, has catchy, absurd lyrics and musical hooks to make it an attention-getting piece.

Martin Belmont, of The Rumor, one of the few people in the music industry to have a "who, me?" attitude about his fame, guested on Costello's second set. This set was even more frantically and energetically performed by the neurotic-looking Costello. The absolute high point came when the opening bars to "Watching the Detectives" were played. This is the song which Costello performed on NBC's "Saturday Night Live".

Throughout the two-hour concert, people sprang from their seats and danced. Several people who looked like Patty Smith clones stood on front of the stage shaking their heads and torsos wildly to the simplistic, but sometimes overpowering rhythm. The performer and audience both were unique, bizarre and fascinating.

'Pasquale' draws varied crowd

By JUDITH K. MCGINNIS
Staff Writer

The objective of the Texas Opera Theatre is to present opera to the public and get them interested in this and other performing arts. Using Friday's performance of Gaetano Donzetti's "Don Pasquale" as an example, it's plain to see that they are achieving that goal.

Pasquale (Joseph Warner) is an aging, yet well-to-do, hypochondriac who bargains with his young nephew, Ernesto (Carroll Freeman), offering him his fortune if he will marry into a well-to-do family. Ernesto refuses. He wishes to wed Norina (Linda Kowalski), an aspiring young actress, whom Don

Warner and Liebe

Pasquale finds totally unacceptable. The uncle withdraws his offer finally, and vows to marry, himself.

Pasquale's physician, Dr. Malatesta (L. Brad Liebl) recommends the wedding plans for his patient's health and offers his sister as the bride. Little does the meddling miser know that the wedding is a mock-up engineered to make Pasquale change his interfering ways.

Warner played well the tight-fisted Pasquale, who backs himself into a corner by marrying a woman he knows too little about.

Although it seemed incongruous to hear a rich basso voice coming from a man of such small stature (and great age), it only credits Warner with the skill of his craft.

Although Kowalski faltered slightly in her first scene, she recovered nicely and gained steady control in the role of the flighty Norina.

The only real disappointment of the evening was the acoustics in the hall. The performance was at the Kinkaid School, and unfortunately, the auditorium's sound system couldn't support the strong voices on stage. When more than one character was singing, words tended to get lost about the second row, never to be found again.

Leon Russell

Leon's act wears thin

By DAVID QUINE
Arts and Amusements Writer

I don't know, maybe it was the moon or something, but Leon Russell just didn't seem "with it" in the Summit last Friday. Sure, he and wife Mary were up there on stage with their matching pianos, and sure, they were going through all the gestures, but it just didn't gel.

Everyone who was a fan of the old Leon knows there's a new Leon around these days. There's nothing wrong with change, every artist goes through a natural progression, but Leon's is more of a forced change. It's almost a, "You've accepted me in the past, now you'll accept whatever, or whoever, I throw at you," attitude. This may be more of a hindrance than a help to Mary's solo career.

Lately, Leon has been pursuing a mellower, dual sound with Mary's high-pitched shrieks counterbalancing his own twangy vocals. But in the Summit, with a badly distorted sound system, it all too often sounded like a rotation between twangs and shrieks. A lot of the middle phrasing was lost in the rumble of the band and the "ooo, ooo, ooo's" of the back-up singers.

The best moments came when Leon's distinctive piano intros led to old material like "Lady Blue," "Song for You," (the intros got a little too arty for the crowd here), and "Jumping Jack Flash." The latter was much shorter and less energetic than either of the live recorded versions, and was delivered as though he owed taxes on it.

And of course there were Leon and Mary duets, "Satisfy You" and "You are on My Mind," and a solo set from Mary, "Jezebel" and "My Eyes are on the Sparrow." Unfortunately, Mary was almost completely lost in the sound system.

The encore wasn't very inspired and included hurried versions of "The Letter" and "Roll Over Beethoven." Throwing his hands in the air after these and leaving hurriedly, Leon seemed glad to have the songs out of his system.

Each time I've seen Leon in concert, he has seemed progressively more detached. If this trend continues, he may send a cardboard cutout and tape recorder to fill in for him sometime in the near future.

French dance stars

By SONYA LEWIS
Arts and Amusements Writer

"Un peu de France," or a little bit of France, was available to those who gathered to celebrate the Second Annual Performing Arts Program at Alliance Francais, 427 Lovett.

To begin the evening in the right spirit, pianist Dennis Passmore played six selections from Debussy, and one each from Brahms and Satie. Passmore's musical renditions ventured from soothing and melodic to fresh and lively.

Dancers from the High School for the Performing and Visual Arts (HSPVA) performed "Trois Danses," (three dances). The dance was choreographed by Beverly Cook, director of the Beverly Cook Dance Company and dance faculty member with HSPVA.

The dance to live piano accompaniment had a renaissance or romantic twang to bring out the French air, although some of the dancers seemed a bit shaky in their executions of arabesques.

The floor patterns and the spatial awareness made the performance somewhat special. The stage's background of floor-length silver metallic streamers made twinkling, sparkling visuals and sounds when the dancers swished or swerved close to them.

The first part of the dance began subtly and was gentle in nature. Seven graceful young women adorned in soft, pastel, flowing dresses seemed to be greeting spectators or visitors to a village.

To conclude the evening, a French ballet film, "Le Jeune Homme Et La Mort," was shown starring Rudolf Nureyev and Zizi Jeanmaire. In the French tradition, the use of dramatic mime conveyed the female-male encounter of passion and disappointment.

Muscular Nureyev, clad in tight blue jeans and no shirt, executed his usual excellent high kicks, battement and a wide variety of leaps and turns.

Club throws farmers a 'Bonehead'

DALLAS (AP)—The good news is that striking American farmers have won an award for their efforts. The bad news is that the award is the top prize from the Bonehead Club of Dallas.

Club members announced Monday that the American Agriculture movement is the collective recipient of the annual "Bonehead of the Year" award.

The club cited the farmers for setting a record for no-shows at Texas Stadium and for seeking 100 percent parity "when no one knows what it is."

A rally in the stadium, home of the Dallas Cowboys, was expected to draw thousands, but attracted only a few hundred persons.

Members of American Agriculture's headquarters at Springfield, Colo., will be on hand to accept the award Friday, ac-ording to the Bonehead Club.

The club presents its award each year to a person or group committing a "monumental goof."

Previous winners include former President Richard Nixon and last year's winner, Bill Coors, who was cited for the "press-tab" opener, since abandoned by Coors beer.

OB movies retitled Silver Screen '78

The UH residence hall movie house, Cinema 70, opened last week with a new name, Silver Screen '78.

The name is to help create a new image for the movie house that was hindered with problems last semester.

"That's why they hired me. I'm supposed to write down problems and get things organized," said Joshua Herman, manager of Silver Screen.

Cinema 70 was having equipment and manager problems, according to Herman. There also was no written set of operating rules for the movie theater, Herman said.

Herman was hired in the fall to manage the theater by a panel headed by Thelma Douglass, area coordinator of the Quadrangle.

"Silver Screen is essentially the same film series as Cinema 70. Movies will still be on Wednesday and Thursday nights. The refreshment stand will remain also," Herman said.

The movie this week will be "A Man Called Horse." Other films which will be shown this semester include: "Let's Do It Again," "Wizards," "Fun With Dick And Jane," "Fritz The Cat," "Slapshot," "The Gumball Rally," "Monty Python's Now For Something Completely Different," "Kentucky Fried Movie," and "The Day Of The Jackal."

Silver Screen '78 is located on the second floor in the OB ballroom. Shows are at 7 and 10 p.m. and admission is $1.25.
