

'Flagship': will it float?

THE AUDIENCE

STUDENTS RALLY OUTSIDE

BOARD ROOM DELIBERATIONS

By CANDACE VELVIN
Cougar Staff

Under heavy fire from students, faculty and legislators, the "flagship concept" of Mission Self-Study was altered, then set afloat by the Board of Regents Thursday.

Pres. Philip G. Hoffman presented the report to the board with his final recommendations. The presentation was broadcast by Houston media and televised by KUHT TV to 600 spectators in the Ezekiel Cullen auditorium.

Thirty student leaders opposed to the Self-Study report were refused entrance to the board room by University Security officers posted in the Cullen building to enforce the 39 person limit set for the room's capacity by the UH Campus Safety Office.

Four student leaders were invited to attend the meeting including Arturo Eureste, Chicano advocate, Ginger Hansel, Students' Association president, Jody Duek, student member of the Steering Committee for Mission Self-Study, and Vanessa Johnson, student senator.

Student opposition presented

Eureste presented petitions signed by students in opposition to the report and recommended the board delay action until more community and student input could be submitted.

State representatives Mickey Leland and Ben Reyes also came out against "sudden" approval of the report. "We will use what ever force or political pressure is necessary to assure students at this university are adequately represented," Reyes said.

Duek and Dr. Wallace Honeywell, chair of the Steering Committee, addressed the board stating student input was sought during the two years the report was being compiled. "There was student representation on the steering committee and each of the task forces," Honeywell said.

Leland urged the board to further consider the report and any late input offered.

The regents decided to act on the report based on Hoffman's recommendations, stating no policies would be implemented without further Board approval.

Hoffman said controversy surrounding the 30,000 enrollment ceiling arose from misunderstandings of the language in the final report. "Taken out of context of the total report, certain phrases can easily be misinterpreted," Hoffman said.

"Let me state here and now that no admissions policy changes shall be recommended or approved which in any way jeopardize the fair and equitable treatment and encouragement of any qualified applicants to the University of Houston, regardless of ethnic, demographic or socioeconomic considerations," Hoffman said.

Hoffman said the ceiling proposal was first suggested in 1969 by the Texas College and University Coordinating Board.

Enrollment ceiling not permanent

Regent Mack Hannah said he had been concerned about the enrollment ceiling prior to Hoffman's recommendations. "If we, as the Board of Regents decide to change that ceiling tomorrow, it is within our province to do so," Hannah said.

The Afro-American and Mexican American studies program will not be eliminated from UH curriculum, Hoffman said. The misinterpretation in this proposal was a result of the confusing funding matters for these programs, Hoffman added. "With the newly approved Coordinating Board formula rates for the next biennium, we anticipate that these significant curricular offerings will generate their own support without the need for additional special funding from the Texas legislature," Hoffman said.

Changes made in final report

Other areas of the report Hoffman disagreed with were:

- Suspension of student admissions to bachelor degree programs in Home Economics. Hoffman recommended engagement of a team of consultants to advise methods of further developing the program.

- Temporary suspension of admission of new doctoral candidates to graduate programs in English and history. Hoffman instead recommended a selective admission process as an alternative to suspension.

- Instead of eliminating a Masters degree in speech, Hoffman suggested the administration consider the creation of a School of Communications to include speech, public relations, radio television, journalism, advertising, speech communications and film.

Hoffman did agree, however, with the relocation proposal for the Department of Business Technology to the downtown campus. He cited problems with the accrediting board of business schools which states that all programs and courses of business be taught under the School of Business.

"If the business technology department remained on the central campus, it would have to be placed in the business school," Hoffman said.

"The merger of the programs in business technology should be accomplished with a minimum of inconvenience to faculty and currently enrolled students," Hoffman said.

Pro views get equal time

To the Editor:

In regard to the commentary in Monday's Cougar about the criminality of abortion:

It is very encouraging to see someone is finally voicing an opinion to stop the merciless murder of a million humans per year. Abortion has no place in this society. In fact, the damage from it is already apparent. Just think, if there were no abortions allowed, we would have thousands of Mongoloid (Downs Syndrome) children born every year which would have otherwise been terminated as a result of a karyotype study and subsequent therapeutic abortion.

The same applies for those who would have been born with Tay Sachs disease, Leuch-Nythan syndrome, Klinefelter syndrome, etc. Who would argue with the fact that these "would be" individuals were dealt with unjustly? They should have been able to lead a life of suffering until their lives expired within a short period of time. Additionally, we could have had millions more teenage mothers who could (after some reworking of society) even be allowed to take their babies to class while they attempt to finish high school.

These "parents" should have to suffer anyway. Forcing someone to bear a child is not as bad as everyone thinks. It has the potential of teaching many valuable lessons to the parents. It could possibly even teach them to hate their child and then they could justifiably maim and mangle it both mentally and physically. But consider the alternative — abortion for the emotionally incapable "parent to be"??? — NEVER!!!

My only regret is to see that the author may have missed his life's calling by studying biology. I feel that he should change his major to political science and study to become dictator of this country. Then there will be a place for the genetic defects to suffer freely and the emotionally destroyed adolescent parents to beat their young. Please step forward — society needs you!

To the Editor:

David Conlon's commentary is interesting because it includes many fallacies that, on a national level, are endangering the contraceptive rights won in 1971 by the Supreme Court ruling legalizing abortion. First, he draws a false analogy between mass genocide and abortion.

Mass genocides were committed with no consideration for the hateful ambitions of the ruling party, while abortions are individual choices made for many responsible reasons.

Because birth control is still fallible and sometimes has side effects, and because some women are poorly informed about available methods, abortion is used sometimes as a fail safe contraceptive method. Too, if an embryo is positively found to have drastic defects or to be unviable, it can be aborted to prevent later stillbirth or congenital tragedy. In any case, abortion is rarely taken lightly by those who opt for it.

Self-appointed "fetus protectors" self-righteously ignore certain other considerations. What of the unwanted or deformed fetuses once born? How will "fetus protection" extend to them once they're out of the womb? What of the rights of parents who must pay for and care for them? This all has been said before but some people are apparently unaware of how poorly the pre-'71 laws "solved" the dilemma of abortion.

To the Editor:

Pro-abortion people wish there were no such thing as abortion just as much as anti-abortionists. However, this problem will be with us until there are methods of birth control that are safe, completely reliable and easy to use for everyone, both male and female. Also, these methods should be free or at a nominal cost. Education about the reproductive system and birth control methods from junior high school on up is necessary.

Abortion has been with us for thousands of years. It is a fact of life for us now, no matter what the law is. If it is made to be a criminal offense again, we will go back to the back alley butcher days with the possibility of death or injury for the poorer women and the airplane flights to other countries for richer women. The real discrimination will be against the poor. People without medical training will once again be making money on a medical procedure.

Abortion is an option. No woman is forced to have one. A woman has freedom of choice even if the following circumstances are present, she is raped, her father is the father of the fetus, she is 12 years old, she is 46 years old, she has all the children she wants, the birth control employed failed, etc.

It is a fact of life that only the woman supports the fetus for the first nine months of its existence. After birth, in our society it is usually the mother who cares for the child during the early years. There is no reason to give anyone's viewpoint priority to that of the woman involved (even David Conlon, see Tues. Cougar Commentary). A woman faced with an unwanted pregnancy should consider the points of view of those people close to her, including husband, boyfriend, parents, doctor, clergy, etc., but the ultimate choice should be hers.

The fetus is human, but so is the sperm and the egg. The DNA in every egg has the possibility of becoming a human being. Yet, if the egg is shed in menstruation, we do not condemn the person for murder. The difference between a one-celled egg and a one-celled egg that has a sperm's DNA inside it can hardly be said to be the difference between a non-person and a person. Most people feel a person starts at birth, and that person has rights under our laws. For all the concern about civil rights the anti-abortionists claim to have, they all ought to be active in civil rights organizations.

Various scare tactics should be recognized. Firstly, the incorrect use of words by anti-abortionists should be noted; "child" is used for "fetus" or "embryo," "murder" for "abortion," etc. Secondly, abortion on the old, the sick, etc. does not follow. Pro-abortion folks have just the opposite view—the rights of living people are most important. Mandatory motherhood, which is what anti-abortion folks are for, is hardly taking note of the woman's rights.

The many benefits to our society due to legal abortion are numerous. Some of these benefits are; lower infanticide rates, lower infant mortality rates, lower maternal mental disorders, lower maternal deaths, children secure in knowing they were wanted, etc.

For 94 years abortion was legal in the U.S. Then, it was illegal for 103 years. It has been legal now again for over 3 years. Let's keep the new status quo.

It's a good idea

As a result of a last-minute exodus of poll workers, the Students' Association runoff elections have been postponed for a week. UH students will—in many cases, reluctantly—submit to another week of campaigning, and the candidates themselves will have six more days to gain or lose votes.

It is probably safe to say that no one wanted another week of election madness less than Rick Meyer, who made the decision to postpone. He and the other election commissioners are undoubtedly flustered, and are, perhaps, wondering if they will ever again get a full night's sleep without having to face the prospect of another day of promises, threats, accusations and rhetoric when they return to work the next morning.

But postponing the runoffs, however undesirable in practical terms, was the most prudent action Meyer and his co-workers could have taken. Better to have a delayed election than one undertaken without assurances of sufficient supervision of the election process.

We are, frankly, less concerned with upholding the provisions of the election code and the SA constitution than with ensuring a fair, efficiently-run election. If the election had been held this week, there would probably have been sufficient personnel for only a few voting locations. The losers could then have turned the full force of their righteous indignation upon the election commission, rightfully claiming the shortage of polling locations and the general haphazard nature of the election cost him votes. Those kind of recriminations we can do without.

Meyer and the rest of the election commissioners are to be commended for their conscientious action in the face of pressure from both sides. Hopefully, the result will be a clean, uncontested election.

Enter into the world of pastitsios, dolmades, keftedes, and the Hellenic Students' Association as the 2nd Annual Greek Carnival begins its festivities.

The carnival will be held Saturday, 7 p.m. to 1 a.m. in the UC Houston Room.

A $1 entrance fee will be collected at the door along with a $2.50 charge going towards the combination plate for persons wanting to eat.

The festivities will be full of food, dance, doorprizes and entertainment, including a belly dancer, according to Hellenic Pres. Nick Argyriou.

The menu, spiced with Greek dishes, includes pastitsio (macaroni and ground beef mixture), spanakopita (spinach pie), keftedes (fried meatballs), dolmades (stuffed grape leaves), a Greek salad and bread.

According to Argyriou, the food and beverages will be donated by Hellenic Importing and Kyri's Pastries.

"The Hellenic Association is also happy to work with Manning Food Service in the handling of wine and food," Argyriou said. Manning is the UC and UC Satellite food service organization.

Patrons will be able to watch Cretan dances and mainland folk dances with the added attraction of costumes and color.

Door prizes, such as dinners for two at Bacchanal, Athens Bar and Acropolis Bar will be awarded to a few ticket holders. Greek records, hand-made bags for women, and Greek artifacts will also be given to other winners.

Door swings back: group now admits men

By DeNEICE KENEHAN
Cougar Staff

Most persons consider it a victory for women, but Title IX's door swings both ways, admitting men into traditionally all-female organizations as well as admitting women into all-male organizations.

Title IX of the Educational Act of 1974 prohibits discrimination on the basis of sex in most university programs and organizations. Hence, the nation's oldest senior women's honor society will admit its first male members this spring, according to Cheryl Alston, Mortar Board president.

Delegates from the 58-year-old organization met last October in a special convention to determine the group's method of compliance with Title IX's anti-discrimination regulations, she said.

Only 19 of the 167 delegates voted to sever the group's ties with the university, to seek a legislative exemption or to take the case to the Supreme Court of the United States.

"As a Mortar Board alumna, this decision indicates that the group is moving with the times," said Connie Wallace, associate dean of students and Mortar Board national vice president.

"This means that honors will no longer be awarded on the basis of sex," she said. Both men and women will benefit from meeting the organization's strict membership criteria, she added.

"Mortar Board seeks persons who will support the organization's purpose, including the goals of promoting the status of women," said Alston.

She said chapters on other campuses have reported a very low response from men students. However, Alston and Wallace urged qualified UH men to apply for membership.

"Members will have the opportunity to relate to male and female peers of similar stature," Wallace said.

Bullock, Red Raiders nudge Cougars

By BRIAN WICE
Ass't Sports Editor

DALLAS—With but five well-chosen words Guy Lewis adequately summed up just why his Houston Cougars won't be around this Saturday night to try to unseat the Southwest Conference (SWC) champion Texas A&M.

"We just ran out of gas," Lewis said, referring to the 80-69 defeat his charges had taken at the hands of Texas Tech Red Raiders in the quarter finals of the SWC tournament here Thursday night.

The fired-up, yet outmanned Cougars got 33 points from junior sensation Otis Birdsong and even managed to take a 53-52 lead with 13:33 to go in the contest, then the lack of manpower finally caught up with them. Within a the space of four and a half minutes the red hot Raiders exploded for 11 straight points, taking a commanding 66-54 lead with seven minutes remaining.

The big difference was Tech head coach's Gerald Myers decision to put 6'7" forward Mike Russell on Birdsong after the Florida native had ripped Steve Dunn for 25 points in 35 minutes of play. The taller, quicker Russell managed to hold Birdsong to just eight more points for the balance of the contest while his teammates parlayed some deadly outside shooting and a delayed offense into an insurmountable 12 point lead, 70-58, with just 3:50 showing on the clock.

"The fact that Russell stopped Birdsong from doing any more damage than he had done in the first half was definitely a crucial factor in the ballgame," admitted Myers. "Our guards just couldn't stop him one-on-one. . .in fact I think its just about impossible for any guard to contain him," he added.

The 6'4" Birdsong, who canned 12 of 27 from the field and 5 of 11 from the charity stripe carried the lions share of the Cougars burden when four of his teammates got three quick fouls apiece.

Al Winder, Kenny Ciolli, George Walker and Charles Thompson were whistled for a trio of personals in the first 20 minutes yet Birdsong's 17 first-half points kept the Coogs within one at the half, 38-37.

But it was probably Thompson in four trouble that hurt Houston the most as the 6'8" sophomore managed only 7 points and four rebounds in the 17 minutes he played.

"Charles was really revved up for the ballgame tonight," Lewis said shaking his head, "But he just got into foul trouble too quickly." Did the lack of playing time hurt Thompson? "Well, after Charles sits down for a little while," said Lewis, "he just doesn't stay as revved up."

The Red Raiders shot an incredible 61.3 percent from the field in the second half to the Coogs 42.9 percent even though Houston did manage to win the battle of the boards, 43-36. Unfortunately, the Coogs also won the battle of turnovers, 17-14.

David Marris, playing his last game in a Houston uniform, notched 15 points and 12 rebounds yet cited "our inability to score in opportune moments" as a crucial factor in the contest.

The Coogs, who finished the season at 17-11, could not stop Tech's big man Rick Bullock from dominating the play inside as the San Antonio All-American based home 28 points, and hauled down 18 rebounds. Mike Russell added 15 points for the Raiders.

"You gotta make your own breaks," Marris said in the relative quiet of the media interview room. Across from the drained Marris, Guy Lewis looked at his senior co-captain, "I just wish I had five more freshmen next September like David," he said softly.

JUNIOR ALL-AMERICAN Otis Birdsong demonstrates the form that enabled him to notch 33 points against Texas Tech last night. Despite "Bird's" heroics, the Coogs fell 80-69.

Here are the reasons we believe people buy it:

- It's designed to compete in every audible respect with the most expensive speakers available, at a fraction — often a very small fraction — of their cost.

- Its useful frequency range is as wide as any speaker's, and its bass response is approached by very few.

- Its sound is exceptionally clear, detailed, and accurate.

- It has a carefully chosen octave-to-octave musical balance that's satisfying not just with the best recordings or one kind of musical material, but with the whole range of music and the many ways of recording it.

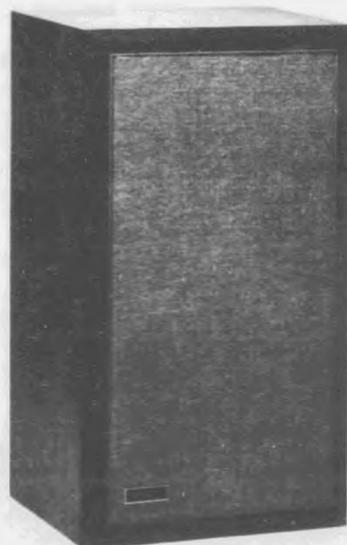

- It sounds consistently the same from speaker to speaker off the production line.

We realize it may be hard to believe that a speaker that costs under $140 (considerably under if you buy the Utility version) is as good a speaker in every respect as you're ever likely to want.

But we believe that it is. And Advent has stacks of letters (both about it and its brother, the Smaller Advent) from satisfied customers who consistently say it does at least everything we represent it to do.

Close listening to the Advent Loudspeaker (preferably on a good variety of material, so you can verify that its sound on one kind of music or recording isn't at the expense of another) will tell you why so many people buy it and go out of their way to tell us how happy they are with it.

It's "no more mister nice guy" time for the UH baseball team today at Lovette Hill field. The Cougars open conference play with a 3 p.m. game against the Arkansas Razorbacks.

Last season, the porkers finished in seventh place, one notch above UH. That's the way the people that pick them see it this year—Arkansas in fifth and UH sixth. The number one team in the pre-season poll were last year's national champions, the Texas Longhorns.

That's not necessarily the way coach Rolan Walton sees it. "I think Texas has lost a lot of people," Walton said, "and not everybody's going to hold them in the same awe they did last year. But, they're still going to be the team to beat for the championship."

It didn't surprise Walton that UH was picked for a middle place finish in the conference. "That's where we've been finishing," Walton conceded, "but I think everybody who plays us is going to know they've been in a ballgame. If we can just get a break or two, we'll move up."

The Cougars have some extra incentive to cure the porkers' hams this season. Last year, the Razorbacks took two out of three from UH in Fayetteville.

When the Cougars take the field today, there will be a few changes in the lineup. Jerry Willeford will be catching in place of the slumping David Husmann and Ike Haas will be playing in right field, a new position for him this season.

Kenny Humphreys will be batting as designated hitter in place of Mike Higgins, another big bat that just hasn't been connecting so far.

Miami junior college transfer Bill Nelson will pitch the first conference game for the Cougars. Nelson, Charles Garza, James Ingram, and Joe Billingsley are the starting staff as of now, with Jimmie Cherry and Kevin Rupp in the bullpen.

Junior college transfer Jeff Simons is still having trouble with a cut finger on his pitching hand. He cut it on a razor blade when he reached into his shaving kit on the last road trip.

Saturday, UH will play a doubleheader against Arkansas. The first game begins at 1 p.m.
