Neumann says city may need new west side college campus

By BRIAN FORD
Staff Writer for The Cougar

The creation of a privately financed college on the west side of Houston was suggested by Clear Lake Campus Chancellor Alfred R. Neumann at a meeting of a Houston chapter of the Kiwanis Club, Wednesday.

While speaking on the future of higher education in Houston, Neumann said there is need for an institute of higher education in west Houston and that the school will not be a part of the UH system. "The Texas government will not be creating any more institutes of higher learning in the near future," he said.

Neumann said he had been thinking about such a college for about three years and has discussed the idea with former Systems President Philip G.

Hoffman. He added that he had no actual plans for such a school.

Neumann speculates such a university would get its start from private foundation grants, and would afterwards be financed basically from student tuitions. The tuition would probably $200 for a three hour course. "In its first year such an institution could probably attract 800 to 1,000 students," he said.

"Business people, retired people, and housewives would be the primary source of students for the school," Neumann said. He added that although the school would probably at first take potential students away from UH, the facility would be designed for people who ordinarily do not go to college.

Neumann said, "The classroom wing of a church or a public high school could be used for such a college." He added it would be too expensive to build a new building for the college.

"One of the basic reasons such an institute is needed in west Houston," Neumann said, "is because of the driving distances involved in getting to already existing Houston educational institutions."

"Many students from the west side of Houston may not be able to afford to drive to the UH if gas prices continue to spiral," Neumann explained.

Neumann says he bases his concept of the school on the John F. Kennedy University in Orinda, Calif.

Neumann said, "I have received an astounding amount of silence on the idea of a new college. However, the president of the Houston Community College is enthusiastic."

Complaints spur call to review Mannings contract

By RICHARD CONNELLY
Staff Writer for The Cougar

SA President Ed Watt's call for an immediate review of the contract between Mannings Food Service and the UC is the latest development in the sometimes uneasy relationship between the two entities.

The new contract signed by Mannings and the UC on July 26 of this year — a revised version of the original 1976 contract — was prompted by a number of complaints about Mannings from students and members of the University Center Policy Board (UCPB).

The foods committee of the UCPB, after voicing several complaints about Mannings, conducted a study earlier this year of the food service situation and presented three options to the board: keep Mannings; open bids to other food service companies; or establishing a university-run food service.

Fred Drake, vice chancellor of finance and operation, told the board a university-run food service was a bad idea because of the labor market and the need to hire experts in food service.

The board then had to decide between keeping Mannings or opening bids to other companies. It decided to stay with Mannings and scheduled a day-long meeting with Mannings executives to discuss the problems with the service.

Bill Scott, director of the UC, said the board decided to stick with Mannings because "they're as good as any other group we've had. When you bring in a new food service in, I've found that they're usually good for the first few months and then they hit a plateau. I wish we had a better food service, but Mannings is doing a good job."

Scott added that the performance of a food service company depends a lot on the managers. "In the past, we've had some excellent and some bad managers, but in the last year and a half, I've heard less complaints about the food than in the past," he said.

Porn vendors ask high court for injunction

By BETSY BRILL

Lawyers representing dealers of sexually explicit materials have hand-carried their brief to Washington in an attempt to have the Supreme Court further enjoin Houston law officers from enforcing the contested new Texas Obscenity Law, said an unidentified spokesperson for the Adult Bookshop Saturday.

The spokesperson said the lawyers interpreted Friday's decision by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals to dissolve a previous restraining order against enforcement of the statute while its constitutionality was being decided in the courts meant the lower appeals court felt their "appeal was not good." (The court had not yet ruled on the law's constitutionality.)

In following this course of action, the attorneys would present their arguments to Justice Louis Powell, who is in charge of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, rather than the entire panel. Powell would either deny the motion for the injunction or enjoin the legislation from being enforced pending a decision on its constitutionality.

The case is to be presented to the Supreme Court Justice Tuesday morning, a book shop representative said and "We anticipate being open Tuesday afternoon." Other owners could not be reached for comment.

The Adult Book Shop was one of many stores selling sexually explicit materials to close following the appeals court decision. A survey of nine stores Saturday indicated only two had remained open for business. Adultz News, which reported Friday to have removed all hardcore pornography from its shelves, was closed up Saturday.

Several of the stores sported signs saying, "Closed by the state of Texas." However, Sgt. Jim Flagg of the Houston Police Department's vice division, said police have no authority to "close down those places."

Recent media accounts have stated the law increases the penalty for retailers to a felony. In reality, the offense becomes a Class A Misdemeanor rather than Class B Misdemeanor. That translates to an increase from a maximum jail sentence of 6 months to a 1 year maximum and increases the fine from a maximum of $1,000 to $2,000.

Those involved in wholesale promotion of obscene materials commit a 3rd degree felony. The statute interprets "wholesale promote" to mean "to manufacture, issue, sell, give, provide, lend, mail, deliver, transfer, publish, distribute, circulate, disseminate, present, exhibit, or advertise or to offer or agree to do the same for purpose of resale."

Flagg said the "presumption of knowledge" clause is causing the

Commentary:

ERA issue shows lack of concern

By MARK POWER

Sir Winston Churchill once told the people of England during a crisis that "I have nothing to offer but blood, sweat, toil and tears."

While the crisis his country faced was physical destruction by the forces of Nazi Germany, his words have something to offer to those of this country facing a moral crisis while working for passage of the Equal Rights Amendment.

The crisis they are facing is apathy.

While women are working across the nation against an extended deadline to pass the amendment, the very people who are usually responsive to social reform movements are ignoring the issue. Specifically I am speaking to students, the youth of this country who seem to place no importance on the issue of equal rights for women. Indeed most of them say they do not wish to become embroiled in a "political issue."

I fail to see how students, especially those in charge of organizations that spend student monies, can say that the ERA is a political issue that should not interfere with spending of student money. The University Feminists are members of this student body and have every right to protest, picket, or otherwise bring attention to any organization that is spending student monies in a way they feel is against the spirit of the ERA.

Pat Hubbell, chairman of Program Council's Travel Committee, says ERA is a "political issue" that he is not directly involved with. As chairman of the committee, he has the power to recommend that PC go elsewhere than to Mardi Gras, which is in a state that has refused to ratify the ERA.

What really surprises me is that any student can use the same defense he did to back away from political issues and discussion. His actions are a prime example of general student opinion, i.e. avoid the word politics and all synonyms thereof at any cost.

It is a shame that student activism and involvement in political issues has gone so far in the other direction from the role students played in the 60s. Granted, violent confrontation was not always the right way to activate social changes, but it speaks poorly for our society when the youth who carried out much needed social change degenerate into a group that cares very little about anything.

Hubbell is not alone in his views, indeed he is probably surrounded by the same types of students that wish to avoid political issues. More aptly put, that means they avoid any communications that involve intelligent conversations.

It is unfortunate that PC has indicated no willingness to bend on this issue of taking a student-sponsored trip into a state that has not ratified the ERA. Even more amazing is their refusal to acknowledge women's rights as an issue that involves PC.

There are some students who, in their intelligent wisdom, will recognize this as a backhanded attempt to ignore women's rights. Hopefully, those students will be able to expend blood, sweat, toil and tears to place pressure on PC. Because PC is involved in the entertainment business does not mean they operate in a vacuum outside of social issues.

It will be interesting to see if student pressure can be brought to bear to let PC see the other side of the issue. Women are not a group to be trifled with. Perhaps for once, we might see a return of intelligent debate.

I'll be watching for it.

Letters:

UH Police need to shape up

To The Editor:

Regarding your cover story on the incident at the UC involving students and the UH Police Department (Daily Cougar, Oct. 9): When one acknowledges events such as this, it becomes very disconcerting to realize that these men are hired to protect the best interest and well-being of the student body.

I did not witness the events of Thursday night firsthand, but I also have no doubts about the validity of the accounts of the students involved. Having witnessed other occasions wherein the UHPD displayed extremely questionable — if not piss-poor — judgment in their handling of students (including the issuing of 10 tickets to one illegally parked car in a space of 48 hours, and the "battery stealing" incident recalled in a Daily Cougar issue last month), I find Thursday's altercation quite disturbing.

Correct me if I'm wrong, but aren't these clowns supposed to protect us? I can make a safe bet that the actions of David Love or Paul Riggs did not pose a legitimate threat to the safety and well-being of the people present, and they certainly did nothing to warrant the physical injury caused them. This ignominious defamation of character is a clear violation of humane rights, not just civil or legal ones. And who's to say it won't happen again? And again?

The time has come for students to let themselves be heard and become involved in a just cause. You people are entitled to a police force, not a police state. The UH Police Department should be a symbol of integrity, not a haven for sadistic, blood thirsty social rejects. Last year, the UHPD chief was quoted in the Cougar as saying (in regard to the mounting parking problem): "Are you going to be part of the solution, or part of the problem?" I put the same question to you, sir. I am sure you are a sensible, intelligent man. I beg you, please do something about this mess. Someday, a UH student is going to make a questionable move and get his shit blown away. What will happen then? If you want your department to maintain the respect and trust it needs and deserves to carry out its duties, then clear out the brainless A-holes who are stirring up trouble. It's not too much to ask to respond to the needs of the students you serve.

L-5 Society defended by members on campus

To The Editor:

With reference to the cleverly written piece in the Sept. 27 Daily Cougar, this is to inform you and T. Edward Bell who the "L-5 society nuts" are and what we support.

Who? Some of the "nuts" include Senator Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., Dr. Harlan Smith, Director, McDonald Observatory, J. Peter Vajk, author of Doomsday Has Been Cancelled, Barbara Marx Hubbard, well-known feminist and author, and Arthur M. Dula, noted patent attorney and adjunct professor at Bates College of Law.

What? The L-5 Society supports the U.S. space program and the idea that "Space is for people."

To date, the space program has an investment return ratio of FOURTEEN TO ONE! For every dollar that has been invested in the space program, $14 have been pumped back into the U.S. GNP. With only a few times that tiny investment, our present energy, economic, environmental, and unemployment problems could evaporate within ten years.

The next meeting of Houston L-5 will be Oct. 19 at 7:30 p.m. in Room 117, SR I. Art Dula will be giving a talk on the latest United Nations space treaty, one that could spell disaster for space industry. As usual, the meeting is open to the public, and you are invited to come and see how a group of "nuts" behave.

Cougar Car-Go must catch up

To The Editor:

Concerning The Daily Cougar's editorial of Oct. 3: The reason for the lack of interest and/or participation in the Cougar Car-Go Program, with bus service between UH and Baybrook and Alameda malls, is simple and obvious. The buses leave at decent times in the morning from the malls, but the earliest return from UH is at 4:30 in the afternoon. If a bus left UH at 1 p.m. or shortly thereafter, a lot of commuters, including myself, would take advantage of the service.

Studies in England available

By KATHY GRIMES
Staff Writer for The Cougar

University of Houston English students may participate in a foreign study program which parallels a similar year-long program offered by the French department and the University of Strasbourg.

Graduate students and undergraduates who will complete their junior year by 1980 can attend summer school next year at one of several English universities to earn transferable credits.

Dr. Terrell Dixon, UH English professor, and Dr. A. T. Barbrook, professor of political science and director of continuing education at the University of Kent, England, spoke about the program last week, and said UH has participated in the British Universities Summer Schools program for about four years.

UH's French department has taken part in the Strasbourg program for nine years, according to Dr. William Shaffer, French department professor and director of the UH program.

While Shaffer says the Strasbourg program is structured mainly for increasing student competency in the French language, Barbrook and Dixon say the British universities program is designed to enable the student to learn more about particular interests in British literature. Both programs feature social and cultural events as a sidelight.

Students in the English program this summer have the option of attending the University of Kent at Canterbury, to study Medieval and Renaissance English literature and culture; the University of London, to study Victorian literature and culture; the University of Birmingham, to learn Shakespearean and Elizabethan drama; several Scottish universities, including Edinburgh, to study English and Scottish works from the Victorian Age to World War II; and the University of Oxford, to study modern British literature and society.

Jean Dooling, a teaching assistant in the English department, said she attended the University of Exeter in the summer program.

"Anyone who goes (to England) will enjoy themselves. In fact, I liked it so much that I stayed on to earn my master's degree there," Dooling said.

"The program was structured for American students. We had a private tutor from Exeter with whom we could talk about our studies and any problems that came up," she said. She said the students viewed Stonehenge, Tintagel (King Arthur's court), and went to Stratford-on-Avon to see three of Shakespeare's plays.

Barbrook said some of the Kent seminars this summer will be "Studies in Chaucer," "Protest and Rebellion in the Age of Richard II" and "The History of Ideas in the Middle Ages and Renaissance."

Students in the summer school program will pay different fees, depending upon which university they attend. The projected fees for 1980 range from $1,400 to $1,700. These amounts include tuition and full board. Barbrook said students should consult a travel agent about inexpensive air transportation to England.

Food service contract review sought

index is the lesser of the two evils."

Scott saw the index as part of a trade off for an increase in the amount of money the UC gets from Mannings. The UC now takes 7 percent of net sales, as opposed to 3.5 percent under the old contract. The contract also defines "net sales" more closely, including sales made off-premises by Mannings. Scott said there had been some disagreement over the definition in the past.

Friday, Watt said the index was a "good-faith effort" on the part of the UCPB to encourage Mannings to improve service. He said that good faith effort had been "misused and abused" by Mannings.

Watt said opening bids to other companies "could be healthy," but if the board decides to stay with Mannings, the contract should be "more stringent, with more controls."

Watt and other board members said there had been a number of complaints about service by students this year.

Although there have been many attempts throughout past years to conduct surveys of the people who use Mannings, most never were completed. The board planned another this year, but the plans fell through. However, Mannings Unit Manager Ron White said he welcomes a survey.

Futile attempts by the foods committee to survey students have been constant through the years. The committee itself has had varying degrees of success in the past.

The committee played an active part in the selection of Mannings in 1975. The chair of the committee and the chair of the board, along with Scott, flew out to Los Angeles in May of 1975 (at Mannings expense) and inspected four Mannings operations. Scott said Mannings "sold us a pretty good bill of goods."

Some of that bill of goods, according to an Aug. 14, 1975, Daily Cougar article, were plans to have a "grocery store, chicken and pizza takeout, and dorm delivery of food."

The committee also had offers from franchise operations such as McDonald's, Hardee's and Shakey's, but rejected these because some did not want to pay a percentage to the UC.

Since that time, the committee has been taking student complaints to Mannings and receiving some cooperation from them.

As recently as last week, Garza brought a complaint to the board about Mannings closing the Coffeehouse before schedule.

"I don't know if we've done any good as a committee," board member Bert Woodall said. He said at the next review of the the contract, "there will be a hell of a lot of talking."

If the board votes not to adopt Watt's planned motion to review the contract immediately, the next review is planned for next February or March. The contract can be terminated by either party with 60 days notice.

Center pinpoints learning obstacles for students, professional persons

By LANAE ILSENG
Features Writer for The Cougar

Have you ever caught yourself setting up an atmosphere to study by? Have you found a method which allows you to get the most out of what you read, watch, or listen to?

If you have found ways to get around the common obstacles which keep you from learning, you are among a lucky few. Learning Unlimited, located at 11211 Katy Freeway, helps people find the problems which keep them from comprehending more easily, and works with them to avoid those obstacles.

Learning Unlimited uses cognitive style mapping to pinpoint problems which keep students, businessmen, and professionals from understanding and retaining information. Cognitive style mapping, according to Learning Unlimited, is "the process of identifying the ways individuals take in and process information to form concepts, that is, how they seek meaning from their environment. It reflects the philosophy that every individual has the right to succeed and the obligation to accept personal responsibility."

According to Pamela Hamilton, director, the center is not primarily aimed toward learning skills. "We work with dynamics, the lack of skills, and content of subject matter," Hamilton said.

The center uses mapping to pinpoint learning and working situations with which a person's learning style is compatible and noncompatible. Knowing the noncompatible elements, Learning Unlimited counselors can identify situations which are frustrating and require extra energy. They determine compensating skills (learning and coping skills) needed by the client to function with potential in any situation. With this information, the counselors identify elements in the person's style which need to be augmented. After an evaluation of the problem is completed, and a solution is found, the center works out the problem through instructional and psychotherapeutic sessions.

The mapping test given by Learning Unlimited can reveal such elements of style as needing something in one's mouth (such as a toothpick, or gum), or having music playing in order to be comfortable while studying. As such, the counselors can determine from the test factors which keep a person from comprehending at his highest level. Hamilton pointed out some of the factors including loud noises, ill smells, amount of light, as well as silence and the absence of smells.

The center goes beyond counseling a student. One of their features includes consultations with teachers, counselors, principals, and other professionals involved with the student. Another feature is the training of in-house specialists for educational institutions and businesses.

Mapping has also been effective in aiding businessmen who come to the center because of difficulties they are having with their jobs. It helps to design effective learning and working environments, develop and implement training programs, as well as maximize group productivity and individual job satisfaction. Mapping also helps the counselors identify and develop instructional materials and evaluations on instruments and systems.

The Learning Unlimited staff conducts small group workshops. The sessions work on skills for studying, school survival, parenting and preparation for college entrance exams, mathematics, and grammar.

An initial evaluation which includes mapping the client and both parents, an interview with the client and counselor and a conference with client and parents is $20. Individual instruction on subjects or study skills is $20 an hour and psychotherapy is $40 an hour.

UH activities set for special week

Bonfire, parades

A large bon fire and two float parades will be three highlights of Homecoming week.

"The bon fire event is going to be one of the biggest ever," said Gary Long Chairman of the Homecoming committee. The bon fire to be constructed will be 12'x12'x12', and is to be lighted by Dr. Andrew Rudnick, Associate Chancellor. "The new athletic department will be introduced and each will lead a cheer," Long said. "The football team, band, Cougar Dolls, and cheerleaders will be at the pep rally and bon fire. Concessions will be available, and some pom-poms will be distributed," Long added. The bon fire and pep rally starts 8:30 p.m. Thursday behind the College of Optometry.

Two float parades are scheduled for this week. The float parade and contest will start Friday at noon in front of the UC and will continue around the whole campus.

Several organizations have entered floats in the parade. Some include the optometry students, program council, Sigma Chi, Kappa Alpha, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, art students, band, dorms, ISO, pharmacy students, Phi Kappa, and Tau Kappa Epsilon.

Following the chili cook-off, the second parade will start at 2 p.m. in parking lot 1A, near the UC. The parade will include the floats and decorated cars of UH students and will follow the same route as Friday, except after making a circle around campus, the parade will continue to the Dome where a tailgate party with beer will follow. Participants in the parade will not be required to pay for parking at the Dome.

Chili cook-off

A homecoming chili cook-off and beer bust with three different entry categories and a cooler of beer for the winners will start off

Saturday's Homecoming events.

The chili cook-off has three different entry categories divided into dorm team, greek team, and overall. The event begins at 10 a.m. and will continue throughout the afternoon until the parade of cars and floats leave for the dome, where a tailgate party will begin. The cook-off and beer bust will take place in Lynn Eusan Park.

Entry forms are still available, and can be turned in through Wednesday at 10 p.m. "Everything has to be cooked there on the premises, and each team needs to provide their own cooking utensils and heating equipment," said Greg Betsinger, president of Sigma Chi, sponsor of the event. "We will have tables set up for them to use." Winners will receive a cooler full of beer. The beer bust will begin when the chili cook-off starts, and beer will cost 20 cents. Music will be provided and poor boys will be available. For applications and more information contact Greg Betsinger at 747-6506.

Pike rope-pull

For twelve years the Pike Rope Pull, sponsored by Pi Kappa Alpha, has been a traditional Homecoming event. This year the rope pull will take place on Friday, Oct. 19 at Lynn Eusan Park.

The deadline to enter a team is Wednesday, Oct. 17. An entry fee of $20 will be charged to each seven member team.

Participants will be categorized into three divisions: Dorms, Sororities, and Fraternities. Teams that do not fall in one of these groups will compete in the Fraternity division.

The winners of each division will receive a trophy.

All proceeds from this event will be donated to Big Brothers, a charitable organization.

Homecoming events slated

MONDAY, elections begin for Mr. and Ms. UH at Agnes Arnold from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. and 6 p.m. to 8 p.m.

TUESDAY, elections continue for Mr. and Ms. UH in front of the UC from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. and 6 p.m. to 8 p.m.

WEDNESDAY, ISO International Food Fair begins at noon, at 12:30 p.m. the Shape Community Center Dancers will perform, and at 2 p.m. Mr. and Ms. UH will be announced. These events will take place in the UC arbor. An "All School Mixer" at the Diamondhead Club, begins at 9 p.m. with a $3.00 cover charge.

THURSDAY, the Beauty Bowl between the Quadrangle and Towers begins at 6:30 p.m. with a half-time exhibition between the Taxi squad and H Association at Robertson stadium. A bonfire and pep rally will follow the game at 8:30 p.m. behind the College of Optometry.

FRIDAY, at noon the float parade and contest begins in front of the UC and will continue around the whole campus. A rope pull and TGIF will begin at 1 p.m. in Lynn Eusan Park with a Souvlaki dinner following at 4:30. A streetdance will follow beginning at 8 p.m. in the faculty parking lot near Lynn Eusan Park.

SATURDAY, a chili cook-off opens the day at 10 a.m. in Lynn Eusan Park. An Alumni Association Homecoming Brunch will start at 11 a.m. The Brunch is open to everyone, and admission is $5. At 2 p.m. a past cheerleaders reunion, and college reunions and parties begin. Also at 2 p.m. there will be a parade of the floats and decorated cars from lot 1A to the Dome with a tailgate party upon arrival.

The pre-game show and exhibition of the floats will start at 6:30 p.m. with the Cougars taking on SMU at 7:30 p.m. Following the game a "Meet Me Under the Dome" party will be held in the Domeskeller and on the field.

ISO to hold food fair, other cultural events

The International Students Organization is "Getting Together for the 80's" by sponsoring several cultural events, including a food fair.

Hispanic culture night will start the week's activities Monday at 8 p.m. The event consists of a night of Spanish dances and music from Europe, Asia, Central America and South America.

The International Food Fair starts in the UC Arbor Wednesday at 11 a.m. and continues to 2 p.m. The servings will include international food like Calabazita, a zucchini dish; Baklava, a greek pastry; Pastitsio, which is a spaghetti type dish, and Cheese Pie.

The food fair will also have a recipe contest, including those from dishes served at the fair. Ten judges will award prizes for the winners. A book of recipes will be made available at a later date.

The Shape Community Center Dancers will perform at the fair, and Mr. and Ms. UH will be announced by Cedric Dempsey. Following the food fair, international music will be provided.

A homecoming to Asia event will start Thursday at 6 p.m. in the Houston Room of the UC. It will feature cultural music, dances, and group singing from China, India, Vietnam, and other Asian countries.

The souvlaki dinner will begin Friday at 4 p.m. during the TGIF in Lynn Eusan Park. Souvlaki is a Greek dish similar to a shishkabob. A Greek salad containing feta cheese and bread and wine will be served with the souvlaki for $3.

All-university mixers planned to bring UH students together

In an effort to bring the student body together for Homecoming, several parties have been scheduled throughout the week.

Wednesday, Oct. 17 Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity will sponsor an all-school mixer at the Diamondhead Club, beginning at 9 p.m. The band will be "Jeremiah", playing rock and roll. Admission will be $3 for guys and $2 for girls. The price for guys will include all the beer they can drink and for girls will include all the mixed drinks they can drink.

Friday, Oct. 19, a T.G.I.F will follow the Pike rope pull in Lynn Eusan Park. Beer will be 20 cents, and the "Texas Boogie Man" is scheduled to play from 2 to 5 p.m. "They play all types of music so everyone should be satisfied," said Gary Long, chairman of the Homecoming committee.

A street dance with "Clay Baker and His Honk-Tonk Band" and 20-cent beer will begin at 8 p.m., lasting until 1 a.m. As of now, the dance will be near Lynn Eusan Park.

Before the game on Saturday, all parade participants are invited to a tailgate party with beer at the dome. Everyone may take part in the parade, with cars, floats, or whatever, according to Long. The parade will begin at 2 p.m. at parking lot 1A by the UC. Parade participants will not be required to pay for parking.

Saturday following the UH vs. SMU game, all students, alumni, staff and Cougar fans are invited to a "Meet Me Under The Dome Party" in the Domeskeller. The cost for the party has been donated by private sources, so there will be no admission charge, said Suzanne Demchak, VP of Internal Affairs for PC.

Cardiac Coogs comeback cans Aggies in

By DON BRUBAKER
Sports Writer for The Cougar

If a standard football game lasted 59 minutes and 10 seconds, the Texas Aggies would be claiming a 14-10 upset over the sixth-ranked Houston Cougars.

However, 60 minutes is required to play a football game, and the Cougars needed only 50 seconds to pull off a thrilling 17-14 victory over A&M.

For all intents and purposes, the Cougars should have lost this game. Consider this situation: A&M owned the ball at the Cougar 31 needing one yard for a first down and leading the Cougars by four points with 56 seconds left with no times outs.

The Aggies used one of their three time outs to decide whether to go for the first down or punt.

The cheers that went up as quarterback Mike Mosley trotted back on the field turned to a hush when he was stopped by Houston's Grady Turner, Terry Monroe, and Sam Proctor for a nine-yard loss.

"You can't ever second-guess," Mosley said afterward. "It's what he (Aggie Coach Tom Wilson) thought was right." Wilson added "it's too late to second-guess. We've had two of our punts blocked in earlier games. Everybody will think the game narrowed down to that one play, but there were a lot of other plays."

Three of those plays were to occur in the next 35 seconds. Terry Elston, in a now familiar role as the Cougars' relief quarterback, came in with the pressure on. "I was confident,"

Elston said, "because I knew the people we had out there could do the job."

On the first play from the Cougar 41, Elston dropped back and launched a bomb to Eric Herring. With Aggie defender John Dawson covering tightly, Herring pulled down the pass at the Aggie 22. "The minute I saw him bring that ball down with one hand," Elston said, "I said 'Unbelievable'. That gave the team enough boost to take it in, no matter how long we had left."

"Eric's catch was great," UH coach Bill Yeoman said. "There just aren't very many guys who can make a catch like that. He did just about the same thing last year against Baylor. He has a knack of doing that, when it's wild and woolly and everyone's watching, he'll make that catch."

"It was a set play," Herring said. "It was a 337 bootleg, where the tight end and the flanker run a straight route and the split end ran underneath the coverage. Evidently, Terry didn't see them, so he checked off his list of receivers and saw me in between (Carl) Grulich and (Leandre) Brown. The ball was kind of high, and I just went up and got it."

Elston went to the air once again, this time to Terald Clark coming out of the backfield for 17 yards to the Aggie five. Most importantly, Clark was knocked out of bounds, stopping the clock with 22 seconds left.

That set up the drive's final play. Elston rolled out to the right, no fakes or deceptions, and beat Aggie defenders Elroy Steen and Mike Little to the flag. Kenny Hatfield's extra point with 15 seconds left ended the scoring and any A&M hopes.

The day started out like a classic example of Murphy's law.

Everything that could go wrong did, beginning with one of the team buses breaking down near Jersey Village. At that point, Coach Yeoman told all first and second teamers and key substitutes to board the working bus.

Although it's hard to misplace a 6-2, 220 pound fullback who has scored three touchdowns this year, they forgot David Barrett. Fortunately, a passing motorist, who also happened to be a UH fan, picked up Barrett. That fan may have not known how much of a favor he did to the Cougars until later in the game.

Due to the bus breakdown, Yeoman conferred with referee Percy Penn and Wilson to present the problem to them and ask for the kickoff to be moved back to 2 p.m. They agreed, and the Cougars got a thirty minute reprieve.

Houston won the toss and elected to take the wind, which gusted up to 15 mph at times. After Hatfield's kickoff went into the end zone, Mosley passed twice to Gerald Carter for 12 and 11 yards, respectively. Mosley's third pass to Carter was picked off by Donnie Love at the UH 13.

After both teams fail to organize a drive Houston took the ball at their own 20. This drive was killed by an illegal forward lateral and the farmers took the UH punt at their own 38. After Mosley's 19-yard pass to Carter, Curtis Dickey ran for 16, then fumbled to linebacker Joe Keys at the Houston 26.

Two Aggie offside penalties gave the Cougars a first down. From the Houston 46, quarterback Delrick Brown gained 12 to the Aggie 42, where he was shaken up. Elston came in and ran 14 yards on his first play to Aggie 28. Three plays later Hatfield kicked a 44-yard field goal for a 3-0 lead with 4:46 to go in the first quarter.

The Aggies' next advance began with a glimpse of the old battering ram in George Woodard as he barreled for 18. Dickey gained 13, then Mosley went to the air and found a familiar receiver. Unfortunately, it was Love, making his second interception of the quarter.

Houston took the ball over at the A&M 37 and marched 63 yards in nine plays. John Newhouse and Terald Clark each gained 14 yards on the drive. On first down from the Aggie 15, Barrett made his UH chauffeur happy as he broke three tackles to score the touchdown. Hatfield's PAT was good, and the Cougars owned a 10-0 lead with 13:41 left in the half.

The Aggies' first touchdown advance started at their 47 after Mark Ford shanked a punt 19 yards. Dickey gained 19, Mosley scampered for 14, then Dickey sprinted around left end for 12 yards to the Cougar 2. Three plays later Dickey leaped over the line for paydirt. David Hardy converted at 7:36, cutting the Houston lead to 10-7.

The Aggies were not through with their scoring in the first half. On the first play after the ensuing kickoff, Brown and Clark missed a handoff exchange, and Doug Carr recovered the loose ball at the Houston 17. Five plays later, Mosley rolled around the left side to score standing up from the one. Hardy's kick was good, and suddenly A&M was ahead 14-10 with 4:59 left.

That score stood up at the half despite a valiant offensive effort by the Coogs. From the UH 13, Newhouse ran for eight, Brown gained 21, Clark added 11, Barrett bulled for 11, then Brown carried for 11 to the A&M 18. Barrett hit the middle for five, then Brown gained 11 in two rushes to the two with the clock running and the Coogs without timeouts. Brown threw incomplete. Then Allen Polk ran for no gain, and the clock ran out on the helpless Coogs before they could line up for a field goal.

That inability to score from the two became important as the second half became a defensive struggle. A&M's first drive was halted when Mosley was sacked for a 13-yard loss by Tommy Ebner and Proctor. The Cougars first second half drive was stymied by a holding penalty. The Aggies could gain only nine yards in three plays, but Lonell Phea dropped David Appleby's punt, setting up A&M at the Cougar 36.

The Aggies gave it right back on the first play. Love made his third interception of the game at the UH 8. The Cougars suffered from poor field position on that drive, and also on their next two, where they had to start out on their own 3 and 18-yard lines.

A&M began their final drive at the Aggie 17. Mosley ran for 16, then 18 yards to the UH 41. Dickey, running well despite a sore thumb, gained five, then David Hill lost one. Mosley sprinted for five, and the Aggies faced a fourth and one. The situation seemed to be under control for A&M. Or so it seemed.

Weekend sports action

Golfers take first; spikers second

By GREGG STENDEL
Sports Writer for The Cougar

While the football Coogs were edging the Aggies at College Station, the rest of the UH program was seemingly in action. Coach Guy Lewis' basketball squad opens practice today, while Rolan Walton's baseball team continues their fall practices.

Yet the teams that were in action over this past weekend made it quite successful.

The University of Houston Golf Team overcame an 8-shot deficit on the final day and rallied to win the Jim Corbett Invitational at Baton Rouge, La. The Coogs edged out first round leader Centenary University on the final day shooting a 9-under par team total in Friday's final round to finish the LSU hosted event with 854, 5 strokes ahead of the Centenary Gents.

Centenary's Hal Sutton won the individual title with a sudden death playoff with UH's Terry Snodgrass. Snodgrass finished with rounds of 69, 70, 69 — 208. Teammates Blaine McCallister fired a 214 total, Fred Couples 215, Greg Chapman 217, and Ray Barr a 226 total.

The Florida Gators took third place at 861, while Oklahoma State was a disappointing fourth with 864. Other SWC teams were Texas A-M with 875, and SMU with 908, Texas with 904.

The Cougar women's volleyball team took second place in their own invitational tourney falling to the Lamar Cardinals women's team in five sets, 9-15, 12-15, 15-11, 15-8, 15-11.

The tourney which attracted some of the nation's finest teams, saw the Coogs defeat Kansas State on Friday with Alabama falling to the Coogs also on the same day.

In the quarterfinals on Saturday, The Coogs defeated the University of Pittsburgh Panthers, and in the semifinals defeated the University of Texas 15-9, 15-10.

In the championship round, Ruth Nelson's team worked the Cardinals to the hilt before falling in the fifth set. Three Coogs were named to the six-member all-tourney team, Cheryl Moore, Pattie Richard, and Darlene Meyer.

The best spiker in the tourney was UH's Rose Magers, best setter UH's Pattie Richard, and tourney's most-valuable-player was Darlene Meyer, also of Houston.

"We played very hard throughout," said Nelson. "We were weak with our blocking, but in the last game with Lamar we beat ourselves. This is the best quality tournament in 13 years. Our biggest concern now is to build-up for the next two tourneys, and that will take us to the regionals," Nelson said.

The next competition for Nelson's crew comes October 19 to 20, at the Southwest Missouri Invitational Tourney in Springfield, Mo.

Aggie-Cougar contest was not just played on the field on Saturday

By GREG STENDEL
Sports Writer for The Cougar

The sign read: "Aggies and College Station, no place but Texas," just outside the Bryan city limits.

It was never so true as the Coogs remained undefeated Saturday afternoon at Kyle Field on the campus of Texas A&M. Where else could you find: 1) A barefoot walk-on kicker for UH named Shaffer warming up in pre-game drills; 2) A barely one-half completed stadium filled to capacity that will probably only seat the Houston game all season; 3) A stadium with about two exits, no bathrooms, no concessions, and a press box that was more of an Aggie cheering section; 4) A team bus that breaks down and forgets one of its star players David Barrett; 5) And a coach that criticizes a newspaper that has given his team more coverage this year, than probably the last five combined. Yep, no place but Texas.

Kyle Field itself was in perfect shape, if you were on the field. Inside the monstrosity, trying to find a bathroom was a real chore. You had to avoid large mud puddles, where even Revile (the Aggie mascot) wouldn't of crossed. Ah yeh, college football at it's best.

A rather long traffic jam that insued after the game made one wonder just how many Aggie alumni live in the Houston area. It would be interesting to see how many Texas A&M ex-students claims the city of Houston home.

Even at games end, the shocked spectators, (mostly of the maroon and white variety) sunk down from their familiar 12th man standing position and tried to visualize again in their minds just what had transpired.

Probably the least noticed but most important aspect to pre-game activities was an old Aggie tradition that went up in smoke.

When the Cougar fans jumped onto the field to greet the Cougars, it was breaking an Aggie tradition not to let anyone on the field.

The Aggie corps, dressed in Patton like outfits, tried to stop the fans by shoving many of them off the field, but to no avail as boos from the audience was encountered. Yet the game went on.

Trying to find the fan who picked up David Barrett is still going on. Any leads please call the Daily Cougar at 749-4141 and leave a message for the sports editor.

'Eraserhead' ranks with the weirdest

By JOHN ATKINSON
Amusements Writer for The Cougar

ERASERHEAD
Director: David Lynch; black and white; midnight film Friday and Saturday at the Greenway III Theater.

If there are actually any people who have gone to see "Alien" just to see the little creep from outer space popping out of the guy's chest cavity over and over, "Eraserhead" is for you.

This is one film that can give Salvador Dali and Luis Bunuel's "Un Chien Andalou" a run for the money in the weird department.

It is the heartwarming saga of a pair of retreads who marry because the little lady of the pair is with child. The child turns out to be a bodyless, lizard affair which produces quite the most disgusting and chilling effect on screen in recent memory.

There is really nothing much to say about this film. It is dreamy in form and there is no particular time frame indicated. Also, there is nothing really known about the society which these people-monsters move in, therefore it is hard to know exactly why they are all such a bunch of schizophrenics or whatever the hell they are.

The film is hard to take visually and is probably the most depressing thing I've ever seen, but it is an interesting intellectual exercise in making weird film.

Lawyers seek injunction to delay new porn law

most concern among the retailers. He said in the past the law allowed police to only arrest people working in the stores, those who actually sold the goods, unless they could get the employees to cooperate in identifying the owner and in establishing that he knew what he was selling in his store.

"It was never our intention to go after some little clerk," Flagg said. "We want to get the ones responsible for the stuff."

Bill Gholson, owner of the Bellaire Newsstand, disputed the "presumption of knowledge" clause. "Hell, we don't know if the stuff is obscene. We just put it out and sell it," he said. The Bellaire Newsstand was one of the Houston adult bookstores to remain open Saturday.

Gholson said the law's definition of obscenity was too broad and too vague.

However, Flagg and Harris County Misdemeanor Chief Tom Henderson said the law had not been broadened enough to "change our mode of operation."

While Gholson contended the law was so broad as to include "Playboy" or "Hustler," Both Flagg and Henderson said they would not waste time on material with that type format. They said cases of that nature would always be thrown out.
