The Texas Students' Association is proposing a tuition increase for state colleges and universities.

The association hasn't turned against its fellow students. Convinced that a tuition increase is inevitable, the TSA is making its proposal to counter one which it believes is much worse—one being proposed by a state senate subcommittee.

TSA recommends that a one-time increase of 50-100 percent be implemented instead of the senate committee's indexing plan. With this proposal, the present $60 resident tuition fee for 15 hours would be raised to at least $90, and possibly to $120.

Under the senate plan, resident students would face sharp increases every year until they pay 15 percent of the total cost borne by the state. At present they pay about 5 percent of the cost.

The senate plan calls for increases of two percentage points each year to reach the 15 percent. That means that a normal course load of 15 hours, which costs $60 this semester, would go to $84 the first year, $120 the second and eventually to $180.

The committee also recommends a five percentage point increase per year for non-resident students, until 75 percent of the cost is met. That would push a 15-hour schedule from the current $600 to $1,000. At present, non-resident students pay about 45 percent of the state's cost.

The Senate Committee on Fees and Grants also proposed increases that would raise resident students' costs for medical and dental schools by 1 percent until a level of at least 6 percent of the state's cost is reached. Non-resident medical and dental students would pay twice what resident students would.

TSA is concerned about the indexing method because it guarantees an automatic yearly increase in tuition. Doug Meyers, TSA president, said, "That means the tuition rate of state institutions will be out of the hands of the legislature. Texas is one of only a few states where tuition is set by the legislature."

"There would be no avenue for input from students because the increase would be automatic," he added.

Dr. Hugh Walker, interim chancellor, said he is generally not in favor of an increase in tuition for resident students. "There is a stronger argument for an increase for non-resident students than for residents." He added that "the current tuition is adequate."

Carl Chain, Students' Association president, said he supports TSA's proposal. "What we do not want to do is fight the indexing without a backup plan."

Neil Abrams, SA senate speaker, said, "The indexing method is too variable according to the state's cost. Also, it guarantees a yearly increase, whether or not it is needed."

Provost George Magner said he "would support a tuition increase only if Texas' financial condition were to falter. But, currently, Texas is in good shape financially."

Connie Wallace, assistant vice chancellor, dean of students, said, "It seems inevitable that the legislature will increase tuition next year. There is justification for an increase, but only if the revenue generated would be returned to public higher education."

'Too much fat'

Campus psychologists use behavior control to help people get fit

By MARTY GRAHAM
Special to The Daily Cougar

Myths about nutrition and health still prevail, according to a co-sponsor of the free weight control workshop which begins today.

"Our ignorance about nutrition is evident in the staggering number of diet books on the market," said Dr. Colleen Hester-Voss, a psychologist with the Counseling and Testing Service. "These books make magical claims and promise miraculous cures while ignoring basic nutritional needs."

Hester-Voss conducts the workshop with Dr. Nelda Valdes, also a counseling psychologist. "The objective of the workshop is to improve both eating habits and exercise habits through behavioral self-control," Hester-Voss said.

"One of the things we do is to help people assess their eating habits and establish new goals to get them to keep an 'eating diary.' We suggest they keep a record of what they eat, when they eat it, and keep tabs on what is going on inside their heads when they are eating it," she said.

Hester-Voss maintains that the same bad habits found across the country are found here on campus. "Too much fat, too much sugar, not enough raw vegetables and fruit, excesses of salt and an overconsumption of processed and just plain high-calorie foods are some of the usual problems."

Women are more likely to attend the workshop than men, she conceded, "but that doesn't mean men don't attend. It's just that women are under more pressure to be concerned about their physical selves."

A majority of people in the United States will face a weight problem at some time, she said. Nationwide estimates indicate that up to 60 percent of the population are plagued by some type of weight-related problem.

Workshop participants will use personal experience rather than self-help textbooks to determine their nutritional goals, Hester-Voss said. She and Valdes will offer several strategies to make new eating habits a permanent part of each person's daily routine. Participants in the workshop are not required to have weight problems. "The workshop is designed to improve bad eating habits. A person doesn't necessarily have to be overweight or underweight to need to change them," Hester-Voss said.

Age, height and calorie-consumption are tabulated to find the normal weight range for each individual.

Although this is the first weight control workshop Hester-Voss has held at the University of Houston, she has offered similar workshops at other universities for several years.

The weight control workshop will be held on the second floor of the Student Life Building for six consecutive Thursdays from 2 until 3:30 p.m.

On Campus

Faculty members meet today

The provost's office will sponsor a general faculty meeting today at 2:30 p.m. in the Farish Hall Kiva Room. At the meeting faculty members will have the opportunity to discuss and respond to campus issues of this semester.

Group workshops start Mon.

The Career Planning and Placement Center will offer a two-session group workshop designed to assist humanities and social sciences freshmen, sophomores and juniors with career choices.

The first session, Oct. 11 at 12:30 p.m., will emphasize career planning and self assessment, effective use of electives and strategies for career exploration. The second session, Oct. 18 at 12:30 p.m., will consider career resources, entry-level positions and preparation for the job market.

Both sessions will be held in the Career Planning and Placement Center on the first floor of the Student Life Building. For reservations, call 749-3675 or stop by the center.

PC sponsoring Talent Night

The Program Council sponsors a talent night every Tuesday, beginning at "approximately 6 or 7 o'clock." David Ward, Coffeehouse committee member and last year's chairman, said anyone "that just shows" up has a good possibility of getting to perform. Bands are scheduled in advance because of the extra time required for setting up the instruments.

Daily Blues, a blues band that plays some original material, performed Tuesday night. Next week PC has scheduled Alien Labor, a local rock and new wave group. Ward welcomed all performers, not only University of Houston students. "Some people treat Talent Night as an audition for paying week-end gigs, others just want to play for free, and without the hassles of a contract," he said.

To sign up, call chairman Scott Terry at 749-1435.

More lip service

Those who are tired of reading about the Student Defenders should turn the page. We are certainly tired of reading about the group. But at least it is heartening to know that our existence is occasionally recognized by others than ourselves.

At the risk of reaping criticism for flogging a dead horse, we note with interest an article in The Daily Cougar of Sept. 30 concerning the Department of Justice of the Student Association. It is reported that the Justice Dept. selects and administers the Student Defenders Office, following the "recent reorganization" of that office by the SA Attorney General. How gratifying it is to know that we were "specially selected" by the Justice Dept. We have been laboring under the delusion that we had come forward of our own volition and volunteered our services. It will certainly look much better on our resumes to state that we were "selected."

Former Attorney General Martin Weiser says that his main responsibility as Attorney General was to reorganize the Student Defenders. We did not realize that "reorganization" meant setting up roadblocks at every possible turn. Note the following ways that we were assisted in our attempts to reorganize:

Four months of begging for recognition resulted in the begrudging delivery of one key to the SA office foyer, and a mail slot in said foyer;

One attempt to get things organized resulted in a nebulous meeting with Martin Weiser, followed with an equally nebulous meeting with then-SA President Steve Yaney, the upshot of which was that they thought it would be a good idea to have some meetings;

Numerous requests for office space where we can meet with clients to discuss aspects of their cases in relative privacy have met with even more numerous assurances that this is a "good idea." — This is since last January, folks, and we are still waiting!

We resent the fact that the Office of Student Defenders is used as a political football. We would like a little less lip service and more support toward making the Student Defenders into a viable service for the students of this University.

Thanks

On behalf of the Epilepsy Association of Houston and the Epilepsy Foundation of America, I would like to thank The Daily Cougar for rerunning my article on epilepsy care. In the past week, proper care and assistance was given by students, faculty and staff who, when asked as to the source of their education in care, pointed out the Cougar reprint. My personal observation is that The Daily Cougar can serve as a decisive education tool in immediate care if voiced by the individuals in need on campus to the Cougar staff.

My special thanks to the University Police who have shown a very unique flair of professionalism in handling emergency calls and in special reference to their article in the Cougar on "not everyone in a UHPD car is some troublemaker." Also, the Health Center has a complaint box, but maybe there needs to be a compliment box in reference to services handled in a manner of expertise and professionalism at low cost to students.

In reference to the article on epilepsy, there was a typo in the reprint which changed the focus of the statement that "only God can stop seizures" to a theological statement that "God only stops seizures." The intent of the original statement in its original context is to show that it is utterly impossible to abort a seizure once it starts, the new context had God doing one job, and may have offended a number of people who might have misinterpreted the statement as printed.

Paint it bronze

The campus entrance signs proposed by the university community committee were rejected by the University of Houston System Board of Regents when one member objected because the planned bronze signs failed to incorporate red and white, the school colors.

The signs will cost the university between $75,000 and $85,000, plus an additional $2,000 for each of the 22 signs for illumination. These costs, of course, do not include the extra time spent to develop a new design for the entrance markers.

The university is fortunate to have a Board of Regents that prudently deliberates an important matter such as the color of entrance signs. This issue is definitely worth the attention it has commanded.

In keeping with the board's paint-the-town-red policy, perhaps Shasta should be dyed a tasteful shade of crimson. Has anyone ever wondered how impressive the fountains in Cullen Family Plaza would look if they spewed scarlet water? These issues deserve painstaking consideration by the board.

Then, if time permits, the powers that be could debate more trivial issues, such as university funding, academic standards and tuition increases.

As for the signs — an informal survey conducted among the members of The Daily Cougar staff indicates that we prefer the bronze.

ARLENE ARENDS

One voice

Coca Cola television commercials have a remarkable ability to capture the spirit and the mood of the nation in unique and memorable ways.

Do you remember the ad with the people singing together on a dark hilltop, each holding a lighted candle? That ad captured the essence of the get-involved '60s. Today's message by the same company is "Coke is it."

To me this is a perfect sign of the times which I call the "generic way of life."

We don't question decisions. We opt for the easy way.

Just let me get my degree. I'm in a hurry. Don't bother me with details. I don't want to be involved with anything.

This attitude spills over into our lives in general.

Guest columnist

We let other people make our decisions. It's far easier to choose a degree plan in a plain white wrapper than it is to choose individual courses with variety, spice and challenge.

It is easier to follow what someone else has laid out for us than to plot our own course based on interests. Just pick a major and you never have to choose again. A counselor recently told me that I have "too many" interests. I thought that is what a liberal arts degree is all about. Exploration and growth are now discouraged.

Instead of opening up new areas of interest, college is increasingly becoming just an extension of the socializing process of high school. The number of elective courses is slowly being eroded by the mandatory courses. Take these 35 courses, or you don't graduate. Period.

The 1960s were an exciting time to be a student. We got things done. We marched. We petitioned. We met with administration to air our views. We didn't always win, but at least they knew that we were concerned. As a student again, I find that we just take it on the chin.

I have learned that one voice can make a difference. If you speak out to let your opinion be known you may be joined by others shouting in agreement or shouting in disagreement. It is the joining that's important. Joining together is the second step toward change. The first step is voicing your opinion.

If we don't fight to keep the door open to decision-making, it may slam shut. The way to keep it open is to make sure that it is used frequently. Apathy is quicker than stiff breeze in closing a door. Get involved, let your opinions be heard. It's your right, your degree, your life.

Israeli students present editorial rebuttal

By Greg Goodman & Haim Sibling

Two articles appeared in Tuesday's Cougar (10-5), one presenting the Palestinian view, the other slamming Israel. The first, by Ghada Foty, is a responsible piece of journalism that deserves comment but not criticism. Zafar Habib, on the other hand, proves himself just another Arab propagandist in the tradition of overblown rhetoric and inflated statistics.

To deal with Ghada's article point by point... First, no one maintains that the Palestinian Arabs are all terrorists. The PLO is a terrorist organization with whom not all Palestinian Arabs are connected and against whom the military actions of Israel are directed.

Ms. Foty's definition of Palestine is faulty and has, in fact, never been accurate. The map accompanying her article shows Israel with its pre-1967 borders (without the Golan Heights) labeled Palestine. Originally, the term was applied to an area under Roman rule that extended on either side of the Jordan River. Most recently, "Palestine" was the name given to the British mandate in the Middle East. In this territory there now exist two sovereign states, the Jewish Palestinian state of Israel and the Arab Palestinian state of Jordan. The PLO's founding charter is the Palestine National Covenant, of which Article 2 states, "Palestine, with the boundaries it had during the British Mandate, is an indivisible territorial unit," effectively negating claims that Jordan is not an already extant Palestinian state.

Ms. Foty upholds the cause of "those whose sole crime in life is to be born a Palestinian." The only crime associated with the Palestinians, in the eyes of Israel, is support of, compliance with, or service to the terrorist PLO. From Articles 15 and 19 of the Palestine National Covenant: "The liberation of Palestine... aims at the elimination of Zionism in Palestine," and "The partition of Palestine in 1947 and the establishment of the state of Israel are entirely illegal." Such an organization, and its supporters, are enemies of the state of Israel, and there is no reason why pro-PLO Palestinians should expect to be treated as other than subversive and dangerous elements.

Ms. Foty's most valid point is that Palestinians are people like anyone else, no better or worse, and no less deserving of freedom and justice. Israel extends as much as it can to them, within the structures imposed by Arab and PLO hostility and the security risk represented by Arabs in Israel.

Virtually every statement in Habib's article invites rebuttal. "Unrestricted warfare by Israel..." Israeli soldiers and knowledgeable observers report in great detail the extraordinary lengths to which the Israelis went to protect innocent lives. Where any other army would level a town in which snipers were known to be hidden, the Israelis were ordered to enter but not fire until fired upon. Israeli warfare has been restricted beyond all reasonable expectation.

"Israeli's terrorist activities escalated beyond the limits known to the free world." Nonsense. The limits are set by just such terrorist groups as the PLO, the Red Brigades, and the IRA, organizations which commit acts of wanton savagery and brutality directed at no one in particular and designed to accomplish nothing but spread terror.

Least important is Habib's statement that "The dead bodies found (at Sabra and Shatilla camps) numbered 1,000." The largest reported number of bodies actually found is 597; certainly there are more, but if you're going to play the statistics game, at least use actual statistics.

Habib levels only two serious accusations at Israel. "Israeli forces in Lebanon entered West Beirut to slaughter Palestinians living in camps." Habib is not the first to charge this, though he does so with as little right as anyone. Let no judgements be made nor conclusions reached until an accurate assessment of facts can be made. Lastly, he states that Israel is not fighting in defense but in offense. Israel, after 18 years of unrelenting PLO terrorism, finally takes decisive action — that's not self-defense? The victimized kid on the block finally punches out the bully because he's had enough, and suddenly he's the aggressor? No.

Beasts of burden still bound to the yoke

By L. Callaghan

When I was a child in Mexico, I promised some donkeys that someday I would return to save them from their miserable fate — being man's beast of burden.

The people who lived in the hills did not have any running water in their dwellings or huts. Their solution was to use donkeys to carry water to their homes. They would load heavy buckets with water, strapping the buckets to the donkey's backs. The poor animals had to pull their heavy loads up to the steep, high hills; their burdens eventually bowed their backs.

When the donkeys became tired, their owners whipped them with heavy wire or hemp cords. The donkeys' faces were always so sad and pitiful. Their big brown eyes were constantly looking down to the ground, but they just kept trodding along. Then is when I promised them that someday I would return to save them from their yoke.

Now as an adult, living in the great U.S.A., I laugh when I think on how I was moved by those poor donkeys. For now I see hundreds of human beasts-of-burden picking litter in the scorching Houston sun. I see many illegal aliens sweating profusely for less than the minimum wage. I have seen people throw beer cans at them "Damn spics" and laugh.

I now see where many illegals live in dire poverty and filth. No longer do I see huts, but I now see apartments filled with human stench and putrid surroundings. Many of them are found dead by Texas bayous, sometimes victims of our own people-coyotes.

How I wish that those donkeys never existed, for they brought my first feelings of pity and helplessness of life. I am sorry, donkeys and fellow aliens, but there are too many of us — still bound to the yoke.

Republicans plot strategy

By MARK BAKER
 Special to The Daily Cougar

The University of Houston College Republicans held their initial meeting Wednesday to emphasize the promotion of candidates for the upcoming elections in November.

The group, which was last active on campus during the 1980 elections, plans to distribute literature and possibly set up forums for the candidates to speak at UH.

The current officers of CR are Kenneth Hinton, president; Mike McCullum, vice president; and Eric Doremus, treasurer. They will remain as acting officers until after the elections, when permanent officers will be established.

The group, which ceased to exist at UH after 1980, was reregistered during the spring semester of 1982 and again this fall.

McCullum said that their main objective is "to support Republican candidates at the local, state and national levels for the 1982 elections and beyond."

Another goal of the group, Doremus said, is "to establish a forum with the local political candidates."

Hinton, who was active with the Young Republicans at San Jacinto Junior College, hopes to get the group's messages across through literature handed out at the University Center and Agnes Arnold Hall; through press dispatches; and through their meetings.

"We would like to work with other student groups and clubs who have the same views, goals and ideas as the College Republicans," Hinton said. "We'd like to have as broad a political base as possible within the framework of the republican ideology."

McCullum has contacted the Jim Collins for U.S. Senate campaign to bring Collins to UH to speak with students. There are also plans to bring George Strake, candidate for lieutenant governor, to UH but this has not been confirmed.

Meetings are held on the second floor of the UC from 12-1 p.m. every Wednesday. Membership is $2 per semester or $3 for the academic year.

Exxon VP presents check to UH

The senior vice president of Exxon Company, U.S.A., William Slick, recently presented a check for $57,000 to University of Houston System President Charles E. Bishop.

The Exxon Education Foundation specified that the funds, which are to be used during the 1982-83 academic year, were unrestricted and could be used for any educational purpose within specific departments.

Departments receiving grants include chemical engineering, mechanical engineering, petroleum engineering, electrical engineering, civil engineering, general engineering, geology, accounting and computer science, business administration and law.

The Exxon Education Foundation is a company-sponsored foundation which is funded annually by Exxon Corporation and its affiliated companies. It makes grants to colleges and universities, to educational organizations, and to research institutes concerned with education.

UH economics professor to speak at symposium on future oil prices

From UH Media Relations

A luncheon symposium, scheduled for Friday, October 8, will find leading economists pondering the future of world oil prices. The principal speaker for the event plans to emphasize optimistic news for consumers.

Symposium speaker Dr. James M. Griffin, professor of economics at the University of Houston, will discuss findings from a book he recently co-authored which questions the belief that world oil prices will continue to climb.

Griffin wrote "OPEC Behavior and World Oil Prices," with David J. Teece, associate professor at the school of business, University of California, Berkeley.

The publication unites findings from academia and industry experts to explain OPEC's past achievements and future prospects from a number of contrasting approaches.

Panelists for the symposium, titled "The Outlook for World Oil Prices," will be John B. Boatwright, coordinator of economics for Exxon Company, U.S.A., and William L. Leffler, manager of energy planning and economics for Shell Oil Co.

The symposium will begin with a reception at 11:30 a.m. at the Four Seasons Hotel in Houston. A luncheon/discussion is scheduled from noon to 1:45 p.m. The $20 admission price includes the luncheon, gratuity and a complimentary copy of the book, "OPEC Behavior and World Oil Prices."

The symposium is being co-sponsored by the UH Center for Public Policy, the National Association of Business Economists and the International Association of Energy Economists.

Annual Fall Greek Show 1982

Friday, October 8, 1982 7 p.m.

Cullen Auditorium
University of Houston

(Dance Afterwards!)

ADM: $2.00

BEGINNER OR ADVANCED - Cost is about the same as a semester in a U.S. college $3,189. Price includes jet round trip to Seville from New York, room, board, and tuition complete. Government grants and loans available for eligible students.

Live with a Spanish family, attend classes four hours a day, four days a week, four months. Earn 16 hrs. of credit (equivalent to 4 semesters taught in U.S. colleges over a two year time span). Your Spanish studies will be enhanced by opportunities not available in a U.S. class room. Standardized tests show our students' language skills superior to students completing two year programs in U.S. Advanced courses also.

Hurry, it takes a lot of time to make all arrangements.

SPRING SEMESTER - Feb. 1 - June 1 / FALL SEMESTER - Sept. 10 - Dec. 22 each year.

FULLY ACCREDITED - A program of Trinity Christian College.

KUHF needs funding for new programming

By DAN NAHOUN
Special to The Daily Cougar

Celebration '82, the annual fundraiser for university-owned KUHF, began October 1 and will run until October 15.

Jim Benson, program director at the radio station, said this year's goal has been set at $50,000. "It's extremely important that we raise the money. There are a number of things we could be, and should be, doing if we had the resources," he said. Federal cutbacks start this year, and "we're looking at a 10 to 15 percent cutback," he said.

One program that was canceled because of lack of funds was a show called "Jazz 88 Live" which was designed to give exposure to area musicians through live recordings at local clubs. "We'd like to continue it, but it's an expensive undertaking," he said.

The station will also have many guests on the air during the fundraiser. "Charlton Heston came in the other day to tape an interview. Local musicians and media people come in to talk about the station and what it means to them, and they encourage people to call in," he said.

Another activity for the fundraiser is the baseball trivia contest which will air Oct. 11-14, at 6 p.m. Prizes will be awarded, with the finals airing on the final evening of the contest.

There will also be "a number of new series debuting," Benson said. "One that we're particularly fond of is a four-part series called 'Texas Jazz,' which will be looking at the history of jazz in Texas through its present state of development," he said.

Other new series include a two-hour program highlighting new jazz releases. There will also be a show called "Taylor-Made Piano" with Dr. Billy Taylor, tracing the history of jazz, focusing on piano. Another program will feature Leonard Feather, one of the most well-known jazz critics in the country, spotlighting jazz artists, as well as one called "Jazz at the Institute," which consists of live performances recorded at the Detroit Institute of Arts.
