Regents Approve Pool

University Board of Regents gave the go-ahead on the long-planned-for campus swimming pool at their meeting October 21st.

That's the first step of tangible results to follow concentrated fund drives conducted by both Exes and students at the school. Exes will be able turn over $20,000 in cash and pledges toward construction . . . and a sizeable hunk from student contributions and Frontier Fiesta proceeds will also be available.

The pool will be the first unit built of a student center. Twelve outstanding students, Jack Wilson, the alumni director and Dean of Men J .E. Williamson are on an advisory committee to study plans and offer suggestions about construction.

Best sources believe that the pool will be finished by April. Although still in the planning stage, it will probably be a year-round, heated water, riviera type pool.

Exes who are contributors toward the construction will have pool privileges . . . and if the pool is finished in April, they may have something new to look forward to on Corral Day, annual spring alumni get-together.

Students find new opportunity in farms and ranches

One of the best evidences of the nation's renewed interest in farming and ranching during the past few years is the growth of the country's schools of agriculture.

No exception, the University of Houston's department of agriculture — organized in the fall of '49 — now has approximately 250 students and a strong backing from local individuals and organizations.

Surprisingly enough, around 60 percent of the Ag students at the U of H are "city folks." Laron E. Golden, one of four full-time faculty members in the department, thinks that, too, is indicative of a trend.

"Farming and ranching presents a challenge today. With new scientific methods, it has become business on a large scale," he explained.

"The economic aspect is taken into consideration more and more . . . business and management training are becoming essentials in farm life of today," he added.

Then, too, it has become possible for men in other professions to run their farms on a "long distance" basis. Night classes at the University often have dentists, lawyers, and business men enrolled who plan to farm or ranch on the side.

Students are prepared to meet these demands in good business planning along with technical "know-how" in their livestock and pasture courses.

The "know-how," however, is not neglected. Many students work out field problems on their own land, when available, or on the land of local farmers and ranchers who are interested in the UH's program.

Some field work in agronomy and horticulture is done on the University's demonstration plots on land adjacent to the school's campus.

Students attend field trips approximately every week on farms and ranches within a 100-mile radius to see and work with all breeds of livestock and inspect some of the most fertile soil in the country.

Farm and Ranch Club, the Houston C of C agriculture committee, Port City Stock Yards, Houston Packing Company, Earl McMillan Ford Company, Landsdowne-Moody Tractor Company, Mathieson Chemical Corporation and Armour Fertilizer Company.

The Ag department's profs - John T. Carter, head of the department, Dr. John S. Williams, Gerald F. Hamm and Mr. Golden - all are in great demand as speakers to Houston groups and as judges at fairs in the surrounding areas. All four have been named superintendents in the coming Houston Fat Stock Show.

Students themselves get experience in judging livestock, soils and grasses, putting their training to a practical test in activities such as the Houston Fat Stock Show's intercollegiate judging.

Last year the department's Stock and Stolon Club staged its first national intercollegiate rodeo, an event that will become an annual project. Colleges from all over Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Louisiana and Arkansas participated.

All in all, the UH is doing a pretty good job in providing training and experience for its future farmers and ranchers. Whether they hail from metropolitan Houston, like student Al Teddlie, or from far away places, like Ahmed Ali Abdul Rahman . . . from Amman, Jordan, the department tries to fill their needs.

Big Plans for Homecoming

Great things are being planned for this year's Homecoming! Although
plans aren't completed yet,
general chairman Johnny Goyen has some events on the roster that are sure to draw enthusiasm from Exes.

Homecoming has been set for Saturday, December 5 . . .

traditional bonfire Friday

in the Limelight

The University of Houston has always been a place of opportunity for entertainment aspirants . . . offering student shows like Varsity, Varieties, Frontier Fiesta, and well-groomed drama productions the year round.

Show business has not only stayed in the blood of many a former campus "hopeful" . . . it has turned out to be pretty successful.

Some good examples are Larry Bleeden and Raymond Strickland. Larry is now un-derstudy for the male lead in "Picnic" . . . has had major roles in other Broadway productions such as "Wish You Were Here," and is becoming well-known as an up-and-coming TV actor over national networks.

Ray was cited during the 52-'53 season as the most promising young actor in theater when he won the Broadway Critics award. He has been featured in such productions as "The Grass Harp" in Theater in the Square, off Broadway.

Caroline Richter, another UH Ex, is making quite a name for herself in show business. She just finished "Brigadoon," is now in "Miranda" at the Alley, as is Jeanette Clift. "Brigadoon," as a matter of fact, was studied with former UH talent. Pert June Hovis, now singing at the Coconut Grove in Los Angeles' Roosevelt Hotel, had the feminine lead.

Well known to Houston audiences for his leads in Little Theater and Alley productions, John Shanks has had minor rolls on Broadway, is now with a Tent Operetta group touring the New England states.

UH exes will remember the campus comedy team of Dave Lipp and Clyde Rainwater. They've done various night club stints in Los Angeles and are with NBC in Los Angeles now. Clyde is gaining quite a reputation as a writer, as well as an actor . . . has done some fine radio and TV script work. Nancy Lawrence, another campus favorite, is also with NBC.

Former UH beauty queen Claudette Thornton is in Hollywood under contract to Paramount Studios . . . Nancy Taylor is currently in Houston Theater Inc's "Paint Your Wagon." Two acting Exes, Jimmy Lewis and Jimmy Jeter are with KGUL-TV and KPRC-TV respect-

HOVIS

There are many others from the UH ranks that are making names for themselves . . . they pop up here and there, and can well make the UH drama department feel proud of itself.

LEWIS

Most have not reached "The Top" . . . some will and some won't . . . but you can rest assured that where the UH's entertaining exes are concerned, the show will go on.

Lee's Letter

Something new has been added to University sports promotion this year.

Each week, contributing members of the Alumni Association and the Houston Sideline Coaches receive a special letter from Coach Clyde V. Lee written about the previous week's game.

The letter contains diagrams and inside "dope" not found in regular newspaper articles. Besides giving highlights of a weekly game, Coach Lee writes on football in general giving firsthand facts on the fascinating Coaching profession.

The "Lee Letters" have become extremely popular with Cougar fans, judging by the requests received for extra copies. However, the only persons eligible to receive the letter are contributing members and the Sideline Coaches organization.

The project is underwritten by the Alumni Association as another feature to keep Alumni well informed on all aspects of University growth and development.

Sports Briefs

The remaining month of football for the University of Houston might well be the toughest 30 days yet experienced by the Cougars.

The three remaining games include (1) the number three team in the nation no less, Baylor University (2) a team which had rather beat the University of Houston than any other team in the country, Texas Tech (winner over Oklahoma A. and M. 27-14) (3) a perennial powerhouse from the southeast conference, Tennessee (Homecoming).

The Houston Sideline Coaches club has reached a new all time high in membership this year. 178 members, an increase of 67 over last year. They meet each Thursday, 6:30 p.m. Oberholzer hall. (See Alumni Calendar for details)

Talk of the University changing its offense was borne out at the Arizona game. The Cougars sported an unbalanced line with its split "T" attack. As Coach Lee explained in his football letter, it makes it rough on the opposing team's defense. Rumor has it that the Cougars may be using some single-wings plays by the end of the season. Maybe a permanent switch next year.

New Cougar frosh lineman tips the scale at 279 pounds. Bob Terry from Alice, Texas. And he's just a growing boy. Smallest member on the Cub eleven is Al Hawthorne, 145 pound quarterback recently released from the service where he made the all-pacific team over Eddie LeBaron.

It's interesting to reflect how the University of Houston has become the team to beat in the MVC race. Until last year it was always Tulsa. Speaking of Tulsa they should get honors this year on "how to get your team high for a game." Reports from that city say members of the football team have been receiving hundreds of cards from Exes all over the country. Written on the card were just two little words. "Beat Houston."

Twin

Success

Story

Many an Ex can point with pride at his accomplishments since leaving the University. But two of the proudest Exes we've run across in a long time are the Woods twins, who left night school at the U of H in 1943 for a double-ring ceremony and full married lives.

Still just as much alike as reflections, the girls are now Mrs. George P. Mitchell and Mrs. Raymond C. Loomis . . . and they have between them eleven beautiful children. Some accomplishment, even for a UH Ex!

Mrs. Mitchell's children are Kent, 9 months; Mark, 2; Sheridan, 4; Scott, 5½; Pamela, 8½; and Meredith, 7½. The Loomis children are Raymond, 4½; Gordon, 2; Steven, 13 months; Cynthia, 8½ and Adrien, 7.

Sometimes even the kids get their pretty mothers mixed up. What looks like "mother," at second glance may turn out to be "auntie."

Extra

Quizzes

- Q. What is the purpose of the University of Houston, Alumni Association?
- A. Its purpose is the same as any other Alumni organization, first to help our Exes in any way possible and second to assist the University in serving the community.
- Q. How does a University Ex become a member of the Association?
- A. Very simple, As soon as he leaves the University with as much as three semester hours to his credit he automatically becomes a member. If he graduates, we receive his address from the registrar's office and his name is placed on our mailing list.
- Q. What about the non-graduates?
- A. We have many non-graduates who are very active in Alumni work. They are some of our top leaders. Our biggest difficulty with non-graduates is discovering when they leave the University and obtaining their mailing address. The only way we can get it is for the Ex to write or phone it to us.
- Q. How many names are on your present mailing list?
- A. Somewhere over 11,000. It is constantly increasing. One of the most important jobs in the Alumni office is keeping that list correct. When you consider that a large part of that list consists of young couples

the Alumni Director

who move three or four times before they settle down to anything like a permanant address, it's easy to see why it takes two girls doing nothing but changing addresses.

- Q. I imagine it would help a lot if the Alumni would notify your office when they change their address.
- A. It surely would.
- Q. Are there any dues connected with being a member of the Association?
- A. No. Our Alumni receive the Extra free of any charge. But in order to become what our By-laws call an "active member" he must contribute to any one of the funds conducted by the Association each year.
- Q. Any specific amount?
- A. No. Any given amount will be gratefully received and will make the contributor an "active" member.
- Q. Do "active" members receive special benefits?
- A. Yes they do. They are the only members eligible to hold office or vote in Alumni elections. They have privileges to use the new swimming pool. which will be built sometime this spring. They also receive special mailings briefing them on Alumni projects. They have a direct voice in Alumni policy making. This year they receive a football letter each week from Coach Clyde Lee which has proved extremely popular.
