BOY SCOUTS VISIT BIOFILTER

Several members of Boy Scout Troop 740 visited the Houston Refinery recently to see the new biofilter facilities. Among the scouts were many Shell sons and two Shell employees.

B. E. Norwood, Manager of the Effluent Control Department, hosted the group and explained the biofiltering process.

Shell men and sons in the picture at the right are (l. to r.) Norwood, Fred Gerbode, Assistant Scoutmaster and an employee at Shell Chemical's Houston Plant; his son, Farrell; Tommy Robichaux; E. W. Nelson, an employee in Shell's Houston Area; Nelson's son, Wendell; and David Kinion.

The scout troop is from the Southwest area of Houston.

SHELL WAX HELPS ADD CHRISTMAS SPARKLE

Colorful candles are adding sparking and spirit to the Christmas season in several hundred Houston homes this year....and the good these candles are doing goes much farther than the warm glow of their Yule light.

The candles were created and sold by the Mothers Group of Cerebral Palsy, Inc., of Houston. Money derived from the sale of the candles aids in rehabilitation work at Houston's Cerebral Palsy Center.

Shell Oil Company was one of many industrial firms providing the "raw" materials for the project. Shell furnished the wax, manufactured here at the Houston Refinery.

The group takes the wax and puts it through their production line. After each lady has applied her particular talent to the project, the finished product makes a beautiful addition to any home.

Business was good this year - all the candles have been sold. However, the Mothers Group says they hope to be "back in business" in 1964.

...ABOUT STATISTICS...AND SAFETY

According to national statistics, a person is injured once every three seconds. This includes both on and off the job accidents and covers all types of injuries - from minor to major mishaps. Fortunately, our experience of injuries on the job is not so alarming...but neither is it particularly impressive.

We are indeed fortunate that the vast majority of local mishaps are of a minor nature, but there is much room for improvement. Statistics seem cold and far removed - until we become one of the numbers being recorded. Then it is very, very personal.

Remember SAFETY the next time you start a task, regardless of how small the job may seem to you. Think SAFETY, then do SAFELY, the job at hand, and it's not likely you'll become a "statistic".

SHELL BOWLING LEAGUE RESULTS

League-leading Super Shell won three points from the Jokers in the Shell Mixed Bowling League this week. Second place in the standings was taken over again by the Woodchoppers following a three-point victory over Research. The Hybrids turned in the league's high team game and series, 833-2424, enroute to a clean sweep over the Snails. For the men, Knox Montgomery recorded 200-542, and for the women, Marilyn Sommer hit 172-490.

A special turkey roll was held in conjunction with league play this week, and the only Refinery kegler to finish among the leaders was Montgomery. From the Chemical Plant, Lynn Schmer, Al Jaeger, Gordon Hatch, and Marilyn Sommer all posted winning scores.
