THE SOUTHERN CONSERVATIVE

—To Plead for a Return of Constitutional Government—

Vol. 11

FORT WORTH, TEXAS, JANUARY, 1960

No. 1

PEOPLE THEMSELVES MUST RESCUE THE REPUBLIC FROM CORRUPT POLITICIANS

Washington Will Have To Think Hard To Beat This

Thoughtful Americans have long contended that Washington is engaged in more fool projects which do not come within the scope of a government's jurisdiction than any other locality on earth but now they are not so sure.

France has gone us one better and has come up with a honey which holds the record at least until our great leaders dream up something to top that nation's new venture in Social Service.

Whereas in this country our statesmen have been content to follow the teachings of Karl Marx and have succeeded in re-distributing the wealth of the citizens, the DeGaulist government has set out to re-distribute the sex appeal of its women which — in defiance of all recognized economic and social considerations — seems to be concentrated in the city of Paris.

The motive behind this bizarre and amazing governmental undertaking lies in the fact that thousands of young French bucks from the countryside flock into Paris each year looking not only for jobs but for wives (or girl friends) to the extent that there is a serious population problem in that city and an alarming manpower shortage in the rural areas.

Drastic action in the matter, however, is attributable to the country gals of France who, remembering the old World War I song: "How you goin' to keep 'em down on the farm after they've seen Patee", got together and posed this question to French government leaders: "What do the dames in Paris have that we ain't got?"

There is no record that the answer was spelled out for them in detail but, at any rate, whatever it is, the French statesmen then and there decided to effect a more equitable distribution of it by making it available to the farmers' daughters.

Accordingly, it has been officially announced that the French Ministry of Labor is sending out qualified experts on the subject into the provinces to give necessary instruction to timid maidens in the agricultural districts which will not only enable them to get their man but to hold him when interest lags and his thoughts stray wistfully toward gay Patee.

A Ministry official in an interview with an American press representative explained that Parisian women "do more with what they have" than any others on earth.

Although he said this boastfully, he and his colleagues apparently have decided that this probably involves unfair practices on the part of female Parisiennes and constitutes a type of discrimination against their underprivileged sisters on the farm which the new Social Experiment is hoped to correct.

French social scientists insist that this is merely a temporary excursion into the realms of political psychology but we suspect that it is the beginning of a long-range program for the expansion and development of what many consider the chief natural resource of the French capital.

Any man of wealth who meekly gives up ninety-one percent of his income without loud, vigorous and public protest of such outrage is a fifth-rate American and unworthy of citizenship in the great Republic of his birth.

This truth is self-evident: Subversive propaganda cannot take root in a strong mind and only weaklings are influenced by the enemies of their country.

The stealthy but steady march toward National Socialism by members of the American Congress will receive added impetus during 1960 since it is an election year and scheming lawmakers will offer every tempting Marxian device in their bag of tricks to snare the necessary votes to keep themselves in office. By this time, if the American people have learned anything at all, they have discovered that there is no such thing as honor among political thieves. They have found to their sorrow that a candidate will lie his way into office and then start selling out the taxpayers before the ink is dry on the ballots which elected him. As so many of us have tried hard and long to hammer into the heads of the electorate, it is only the American people themselves who can save the Republic and keep it from going on the rocks of National Socialism and drifting from there into a Communist-controlled One-World government. In preparation for the superhuman task before them, all good citizens should start the New Year with earnest, heart-felt resolutions which they intend to keep and which should be set down in cold type and placed before them in order that these pledges may be renewed from time to time throughout the year:

In atonement for my apathy, indifference and unconcern over the mass treason which has been rampant in Washington for a quarter century, I hereby assert my awakening and re-activation as a citizen of the great country in which God gave me the rare privilege of being born.

From this day forward, I resolve to become an aggressive, rather than a robot, American and to hereafter vigorously defend my inherent rights and freedoms which are being taken from me by those elected, paid and sworn to preserve and defend them.

I hereby resolve to come out of the Fool's Paradise where I have been residing and to face courageously the hard realities of a situation in which my country is the target of both foreign and domestic enemies of Constitutional Government and of Christian civilization and to do my utmost to defeat them on every level.

In preparation for the discharge of my neglected duties as a citizen, I resolve to re-read and study the Constitution of the United States in order to find out for myself how much violence our elected and appointed officials in Washington have done to this matchless Charter of Human Freedom in efforts to appease minority groups and subversive elements whose objective is to overthrow the American government.

In deference to the memory of the great patriots who founded and fought for this Republic in its early and bitter battle for independence, I resolve to devote my full energy and resources toward keeping this priceless legacy they bestowed on me which they set up and handed down to me without effort or sacrifice on my part.

As a primary step in exercising responsible citizenship, I resolve to re-dedicate myself to the theory once prevalent in this country to the effect that in government there is no substitute for honesty, thrift and integrity and to demand of my representatives in Washington that, as custodians of the taxpayers' money, they use the same measure of caution, judgment and economy that they exercise in the expenditure of their own private funds.

Millions of Americans Think It—The Southern Conservative Says It

We Can Tolerate A Liberal, But We Despise A Hypocrite

A prominent Texan poses this question in a recent communication to us: "You are always attacking the senior senator from Texas but have little or nothing to say about or against Ralph Yarborough and I can't help wondering about your silence regarding him."

This may be because we do not regard him as capable or influential enough to do much damage or it may be that we feel if we ignore him, he will go away.

Also, Yarborough did not get himself elected by Conservatives and then betray them. He seems to be doing all he can to keep the promises he made to the Negroes, labor leaders and assorted liberals who elected him. There is not much to criticize about a man who makes no pretense to being other than what he is. We may despise his political philosophy but we've got to respect him for honestly stating where he stands and sticking to it.

At any rate, our wholesome contempt is for those arch hypocrites who talk conservative in Texas and liberal in New York and who depend on the stupidity of their constituents to enable them to get by without being caught in their double-dealing.

As we have emphasized so often before, there is nothing personal in our criticism of public officials.

We are sure that in their private lives, both senators from Texas are gentlemen and scholars but it is not the private behavior but the public performance of lawmakers which is doing the Republic in.

Some Questions For Attorney General William P. Rogers

Is it permissible for an humble taxpayer to ask the amount of the expense involved in the nine-month's vigorous investigation you made of the death of a Negro rapist in Mississippi?

Is there any record of a similar amount of money and time devoted to running down any Negro rapist in other cases whom Southern law officers were unable to apprehend?

Since the Federal government has preempted this field, are you cooperating with Congress in the passage of legislation which will make the penalty more severe for perpetrators of this bestial crime?

The only concrete results of the President's grand tour to India, France, Italy and eight other countries during December, so far as we can see, is that it pulled the rug out from under the New Deal presidential aspirants and put an awful crimp in the tail of the Democratic jackass. By projecting himself as the world's great man of peace, good will and brotherhood, he snagged and held the bright spotlight and, publicity-wise, left the Democrats to struggle for space in the dull glow of a tallow candle.

From a subscriber in Massachusetts: "Congratulations on your work, showing your penetrating understanding of the situation, your courage and unswerving loyalty to these beloved United States."

TAXPAYERS SHOULD START POT BOILING AND THROW ANOTHER BOSTON TEA PARTY

The American people are being swamped with reports in the press, magazines and other communications media about a purported "revolution in tax laws" and the inference is left that either this year or next, slap-happy taxpayers are going to be given a breathing spell.

Don't let anybody get excited over this proposed boon or start spending the money they are going to save through this purported reduction in tax levies.

If any changes are made at all, the tax rates will be reduced in cases where politicians feel there is a large voting bloc involved who might reward them at the ballot box, but the squeeze will be tightened on unorganized groups who are not in position to retaliate at the polls.

As a matter of cold-blooded fact, there just simply is not enough ability, integrity and statesmanship in the present Congress to write any tax legislation which is not based strictly on the policies laid down by Karl Marx in his Communist Manifesto.

That is the only kind of tax bill which has been written and passed in the past twenty-five years by the American Congress so why should any citizen go into a dither and get all lathered up now over any phony promise that the burden is going to be eased on the callused backs of poor, under-privileged tax slaves?

They are still paying the taxes levied during two wars and they will still be paying them when they finally fall out of line and let other suckers take their place.

The only possible remedy for tax injustice against the people lies in the repeal of the Sixteenth, or Income Tax, amendment to the Constitution which will compel corrupt spenders in Washington to administer the government in the manner in which it was intended to be administered — through tax levies laid for the sole purpose of maintaining legitimate functions of the Federal state and not for the support of foreign institutions and alien peoples throughout the world.

Our taxing system at present is a vicious racket and the chisellers in Washington who are operating it are not going to give up the swag unless forced to do so by mass action on the part of outraged Americans who, like the hosts of the Boston tea party, finally decide they have had all they are going to take.

Young Thugs Roam Washington Streets Like Wild Animals

In the city of Washington, D.C., which the President said would be an "example to the nation" in the matter of forced integration of the races, the local Police Department has imported a veteran Scotland Yard sergeant to help round up teenage hoodlums, mostly colored, who roam the capital city like wild animals in the jungle. Teenage crime there is at an all-time high.

The Scotland Yard official, Terrence P. Cahill, who spent 27 years on the London Police Force, will train dogs to be used in tracking down and seizing the young criminals who have proved too numerous and evasive for Washington police to handle.

This drastic action by Washington officials is said to have been inspired by the fact that the nation's capital is being overrun by colored people, including a strong criminal element while white people are moving away from that city by the thousands.

Integration, of course, is largely responsible for conditions there as everywhere else where this ignoble experiment has been launched on a wholesale scale. Negroes regard the new arrangement as a license to commit every crime in the calendar.

The Communists who started the integration propaganda were familiar with Negro psychology and not only expected this reaction but were glad to see it as it added to the confusion and chaos which was the objective of their campaign.

Brainless do-gooders, however, who followed along with the integration program without realizing the potential danger, are said in many cases to be greatly alarmed over what they have done.

Since it is common knowledge that billions of dollars voted by Congress in the name of foreign aid for the alleged relief of suffering and under-privileged humanity in alien countries has been used to build luxury hotels, night clubs and gambling dens or has been deliberately stolen by those administering such funds, I hereby resolve that I will work and vote against the re-election of any member of my Congressional delegation who votes for measures to confiscate the hard-earned money of the American people and re-distribute it among corrupt and chiseling heads of foreign governments.

Realizing that the taxing power of Congress is being so flagrantly abused as to constitute a national disgrace and that the only way that the greed of tax-grabbers in Washington can be curbed is through repeal of the Sixteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, I resolve to demand of my representatives in the State Legislature that they join with Texas and Wyoming in memorializing Congress to submit such repeal amendment.

In view of the fact that Christian Churches in the United States are the prime targets of World Communism which has been successful in infiltrating leading pulpits of the nation and indoctrinating many renowned ministers, I resolve to listen closely to the sermons of my own pastor and in the event I find he has succumbed to this vile propaganda, to refuse to contribute another dime to the upkeep of that church until he has been removed and replaced by an authentic servant of God.

In my grass roots political action, I resolve to talk with as many delegates to the national convention of my party as possible and endeavor to persuade them not to be influenced by rigged popularity polls and phony appeals for support of favorite sons and will remind them that political sex appeal cannot pinch-hit for principle in the matter of selecting a potential occupant of the White House.

And finally, if the race develops into a contest at the general election between two dyed-in-the-wool Internationalists with divided loyalty to the American Flag and the Republic for which it stands, I resolve to refuse to vote for either even if I am compelled to write in the name of an American patriot of my own choosing instead.

What Khrushchev's Trip Cost Taxpayers Anybody's Guess

An energetic newsmen in Washington tried to find out for the reading public how much money the trip to this country of the old killer Khrushchev and his gang of spies cost the American taxpayers.

He was only partly successful because the political overlords in Washington long ago decided it was none of the taxpayers' business how much money was wasted in that den of iniquity and have made it all but impossible for any authentic information to be obtained.

The best the reporter could figure out was a half million dollars spent in entertaining the Soviet band of international gangsters although it is estimated that when, and if, the truth is ever revealed the expense will prove to be over one million dollars.

During his stay nothing was too good for Khrushchev and he was provided with every luxury including private trains, planes, continuous telephone service to Moscow and party girls for his entourage at a cost of one thousand dollars each during their stay in Pittsburgh, at least.

Unfortunately, the President of the United States is planning to make a return call on the old assassin in Moscow sometime during coming months and it will be interesting to watch and see if the Soviets bear the expense in that case or whether the American taxpayers will again have to pick up the check.

We'll bet a twenty-five cent dollar that the latter will be the case for while Soviet leaders are villains, they're not fools and they don't throw money around like it was confetti.

Are Subversives The Sole Custodians Of Culture?

We do not have any monopoly on access to the records of the off-beat characters who have joined subversive groups for the purpose of bringing about the overthrow of the American government.

This information is a public matter and is available to all citizens who desire to learn the truth about those whom they invite to inform or entertain the people of their community.

It was, therefore, with amazement that we recently picked up a local paper to find a top-ranking Communist frontier pictured therein with a measure of publicity concerning his prominence and achievements only slightly less than that which might be expected if Princess Margaret suddenly appeared in our midst.

The visitor was praised as a "foremost contemporary composer" and prominent figures in local musical circles wined and dined him and gushed and goosed all over the place to indicate how thrilled they were as a result of the visit of this great man.

His name is Aaron Copland and what readers of the press were not told about him and his record of Communist front affiliations makes far more interesting, if vastly more alarming, reading than that concerning the accomplishments credited to him as a professional musician.

To do them justice, we are convinced that neither those who invited this man to Fort Worth, those who entertained him while here nor those who gave him columns of publicity had the slightest idea of his background outside of his strictly professional rating for they are among the city's leading citizens and occupy top brackets in Fort Worth civic, social and cultural life.

It is all the more deplorable, however, when high class men and women through sheer ignorance of what is going on in their country, pay tribute to a person whose activities over a number of years in the matter of loyalty make him anathema to well-informed, patriotic Americans and who would not tolerate him even if his genius should outlive that of Liszt and Chopin themselves.

It is common custom for celebrity-conscious name-droppers to become infuriated with those who uncover the record of the so-called "artists" who have thickly dotted the files of Committees on Un-American Activities for the past twenty-five years but we can't help that.

We did not make Copland's record. Only he could do that and our part is merely to report it, giving the dates and pages in official documents in substantiation.

We do not have the space for all the listings given composer Copland in the various investigations of subversion but will refer to the most notorious ones and will give other sources where additional information concerning him may be found if desired.

In Union Calendar 926 put out by a special committee of Congress set up to investigate Tax-Exempt Foundations and which was printed December 16, 1954, on page 250 there is this partial record of Aaron Copland and his affiliations:

Aaron Copland signed a petition to the Attorney General in behalf of Hans Eisler, a German Communist, according to the Daily Worker, December 17, 1947; also signed a protest against a ban on a Communist speech according to the Daily Worker, October 23, 1936; also signed a statement to President Roosevelt defending the Communist Party, according to the Daily Worker, March 5, 1941.

The Daily Worker, of course, was the official organ of the Communist Party.

On page 251 of the same document: Copland is shown as a member of the American Committee for the Protection of Foreign Born "one of the auxiliaries of the Communist Party in the United States"; as a member of the Citizens Committee for Harry Bridges according to a letter head for the Committee dated September 11, 1941; also, as a member of the National Committee for Peoples Rights, formerly known as the National Committee for the Defense of Political Prisoners "substantially equivalent to International Labor Defense, legal arm of the Communist Party" and is also identified on that page with nine other Communist front groups.

On page 252 of the same document he is shown as a signer of a statement calling for a conference with the Soviet Union, according to the Daily Worker, June 21, 1948; as a speaker at the American-Soviet Cultural Conference, November 18, 1945 according to testimony of Walter S. Steele, Public Hearings July 21, 1947 and also with various other subversive groups.

On page 253 of the same document: Hans Eisler is quoted as follows: "... Only in a revolutionary struggle will an artist find his own individuality ... Similar developments can be observed in America where the recognized composer, Aaron Copland, has composed a mass song 'The First of May'; in the 'Evening Moscow' Eisler states in an interview June 27, 1935 'I am extremely pleased to report a considerable shift to the left among the American artistic intelligentsia. I don't think it would be an exaggeration to state that the best people in the musical world of America (with very few exceptions) share at present extremely progressive views. Their names? They are Aaron Copland ...' etc.

In the Review of the "Scientific and Cultural Conference for World Peace" made by the House Un-American Activities on April 19, 1949, page 18, there is a list of those having affiliation with from 21 to 30 Communist fronts. The name of Aaron Copland appears on this list.

In the Fourth Report Un-American Activities in California, 1948, Copland is listed nine times and among the most notorious of his affiliations shown there are: on page 112 appears this description of the American Committee for Democracy and Intellectual Freedom: "This Communist front was

We Should Set Ourselves Up As World Leaders, Yet

Senator John Williams, Republican senator from Delaware, has been singing like a canary for years about the cheating, stealing and general corruption which prevails as a result of the passage of ill-advised and unconstitutional laws, but he doesn't get anywhere.

His colleagues listen to him, make clucking noises of distress at his disclosures and then go on passing legislation that is even worse.

The senator's latest target is the Soil Bank which was set up as responsible agricultural organizations throughout the country were pleading with Congress to stand aside, get out of the way and let the farmers run their own business.

The Soil Bank is another Washington racket which projects the modern theory of paying people not to work. It is a sort of rural version of the unemployment compensation law and, compared to it, Henry Wallace's screwball farm program which called for the mass slaughter of pregnant sows, was a masterpiece in statesmanship and legislative achievement.

While there was widespread opposition to the Soil Bank plan in the beginning, horny-handed sons of toil in the furrow soon proved that they are just as quick in recognizing a fast buck when they see it floating around as any city slicker in town.

The plan provides a $5,000 limit which shall be paid to any one farm family for taking their land out of production but Senator Williams turned up one sharp old clodhopper who divided up his farm between several children under twelve years of age each of whom got into the act and who will collect an aggregate of $165,000 during the ten years of their contract with the government.

Laying aside all questions of immorality, dishonesty and corrupt practices, we've got to admit that these smart kids are not going to run short on lollipop money for a long time to come. And yet, an honest, God-fearing farmer like Stanley Yankus of Michigan was run out of the country because he refused to participate in this artificial and crooked attempt to repeal the law of nature and manipulate human freedom.

Being a conscientious public servant, Senator Williams will probably keep on exposing this type of legalized theft of taxpayers' money, but members of Congress will pay no more attention to his disclosures than they do to the whistling wind which rustles through their pants as they descend the front steps each day after seriously pondering the mighty problems of State.

We sympathize with the senator for his excellent, but futile, gestures toward honesty in government but he is no more to be pitied than Congressman Francis J. Walter whose Committee on Un-American Activities has exposed to public view hundreds of dirty Communist conspirators against the American government only to have the testimony he so painstakingly developed either printed, filed away and forgotten or cancelled out and nullified by Supreme Court rulings.

From a subscriber in Columbus, Ohio: "You are indeed a shining light on a dark horizon."

From Fullerton, California: "Your Tenth Anniversary edition, as all of them, is terrific and I commend you for being able to continue this battle against tremendous odds for ten years."

established on Lincoln's birthday in 1939 . . . (it) has followed the Communist Party line as it switched and squirmed in support of the foreign policy of Soviet Russia". On page 113 of this same document, Aaron Copland is shown as having signed a petition put out by that outfit asking for the discontinuation of the Dies Committee.

On page 262 of that same report, appears this description of the Independent Citizens Committee of the Arts, Sciences and Professions: "This Communist front grew out of the Independent Voters Committee of the Arts and Sciences." On that same page Aaron Copland is shown as having his name on the letterhead of that organization.

On page 310 of that report appears this description of the Musicians Congress Committee: "This front was organized for the purpose of 'involving' non-Communist musicians in Communist activities". On page 316 of the same report Aaron Copland is listed as a member of the General Board of the Musicians Congress Committee.

On page 330 of this document appears this statement: "The Peoples Daily World (official Communist organ) for February 27, 1948, reports that the Communist front for writers, Artists and Musicians, the National Institute of Arts and Letters denounced the Thomas Committee of Congress for investigating Un-American Activities in America." On that same page, among a long list of hard-core pro-Communists, appears the name of Aaron Copland as a signer of the letter denouncing the Thomas Committee.

Anyone who wants to pursue the matter further will find twenty-seven such listings in the Fifth Report Un-American Activities in California, 1949 and in Appendix IX. Report of the Dies Committee of Congress, Copland will be found listed twenty times.

We have never subscribed to the theory that it is necessary for those groups of Americans who are madly seeking culture to comb the sewers of human society for their cultural mentors.

Surely there are American composers who have no such offensive records as this man and whose ideological and political views are in harmony with the established principles of the country in which they were enabled to achieve greatness.

Georgian Surprised At Infiltration Of SMU

A good friend of our paper in Atlanta, Georgia, an attorney, was greatly disturbed recently when he read in a magazine article that leftists had entrenched themselves in Southern Methodist University at Dallas. He wrote us as follows: "This is a very great surprise to me in view of the fact that this university is in the South, is in Dallas and in Texas which I thought was impregnable."

We hate to disillusion our good friend but Texas, and even Dallas, have their share of Reds and as to the entrenchment of leftists at SMU and other educational institutions in the State, there's nothing new about that. They're swarming with leftists who seem to crawl out of the woodwork.

Hasn't our Atlanta friend ever heard of the Dallas Council on World Affairs which has its base at SMU and which has brought almost every anti-anti-Communist to Dallas to lecture to students except Alger Hiss.

Hasn't he ever heard of the president of SMU who not only condones but cooperates with programs on which John Gates, former Communist editor of the Daily Worker is the principal speaker?

Hasn't he ever heard of influential Dallas business men who insist on having Communist paintings displayed in the Dallas Art Museum?

Hasn't he ever heard of Dallas'

SEGREGATION FORCES WIN RESOUNDING VICTORY IN THE STATE OF LOUISIANA

The great State of Louisiana has just passed through a hectic gubernatorial election in which the Long machine was banished and Jimmy Davis, governor of that State from 1944 to 1948, was the victor.

Davis' opponent in the run-off was deLesseps Morrison, mayor of New Orleans who was making his second try for the job.

The overshadowing issue was segregation of the races and while both Davis and Morrison came out for this policy, Morrison's attitude was half-hearted while Davis made his position clear and in no uncertain terms against integration.

The attitude of certain religious leaders in New Orleans who have undertaken to force integration on the people of Louisiana is claimed to have contributed to the defeat of Morrison who tried, more or less, to ride the fence in the hope of attracting "moderates" to his support. There was a strong belief on the part of voters generally that if Morrison were elected, his opposition to integration would melt away in the face of persuasion and pressure from powerful New Orleans groups.

The outstanding champion of States Rights and segregation, William Rainach, was eliminated in the first primary in December due to the fact that some half dozen other candidates in the race also claimed to be conservatives thereby splitting the vote and defeating him. This is an old Commie trick which is so ancient that it has whiskers but it never fails to work.

However Jimmy Davis, it is expected, will prove equally opposed to Federal intervention in the affairs of the Sovereign States and will throw all his strength toward keeping segregation in Louisiana public schools.

We never take sides in any political campaign or endorse any candidate for office and limit our discussions to principles but now that it is over, we are glad Jimmy Davis won instead of deLesseps Morrison for two reasons:

First, because of his reputation as a spender, Morrison would have probably turned out to be a Soapy Williams with a Southern accent and, second, because any candidate who does not face integration propaganda head-on and recognize it as one of Moscow's chief weapons in the fight to take over the United States, is not qualified to be governor of Louisiana or any other American State.

There are some sociological derelicts, even in the South, who hold that defense of segregation of the races constitutes "hate-mongering."

Under that definition, "hate-mongers" are now in the saddle in Louisiana.

May their tribe increase.

PRESIDENT'S FINAL TERM IS DEVOTED TO PROMOTION OF WORLD GOVERNMENT

As his term of office nears expiration, the President is more and more putting his cards on the table and showing his hand in the matter of his desire to see this country engulfed in a One-World government.

Before he left for his eleven-country trip he came out publicly in a strong plea for the repeal of the Connally amendment to the act authorizing this country's participation in the World Court.

This amendment would leave to the United States the matter of deciding what are domestic problems and which are international questions and, therefore subject to the jurisdiction of the World Court.

Off-hand, it would seem that loyal Americans would almost rise up en masse in protest against the suggestion that this amendment be repealed, but, incredibly, it was passed over as another suggestion for meeting conditions "in a changing world".

Think of having some World

Methodist Bishop William C. Martin who once served as head of the National Council of Churches and who has been largely instrumental in lining up Texas Methodism behind Karl Marx' Social Gospel as opposed to the Gospel of Jesus Christ and whose racial views coincide almost one hundred per cent

Court Judge, say from Liberia, Indonesia or the Crown Colony of Singapore given authority to pass on matters vitally affecting the people of Georgia, Massachusetts or Montana. There was a time when such a proposal would have been sufficient basis for charges of impeachment.

The President painted a rosy picture to Congress of the great prosperity which the American people are enjoying today and of more abundant good times just around the corner.

Maybe he is right if we are to measure a nation's well-being in dollars and cents but this we know; that during his administration the foundation pillars of Constitutional Government have been materially weakened, States Rights and property rights have taken an awful beating and the distance between this once free Republic and a totalitarian One-World State has been materially shortened.

with those of the Communist party? Dallas is regarded very properly as the seat of Conservatism in Texas probably because they continue to send the Honorable Bruce Alger, one of the nation's soundest lawmakers, to Congress but they also have their fair share of leftists, liberals and other riff-raff and outcasts from humanity's backwash.

Sound and Wholesome Advice To Teenagers

(Montello, Wisconsin, Tribune)

The following item was distributed to every pupil in a Watertown (S.D.) school. It read as follows:

Always we hear the plaintive cry of teenagers: "What can we do? Where can we go?"

I can make some suggestions.

Go home!

Remove the storm windows. Paint the woodwork. Rake the leaves. Mow the lawn. Learn to cook. Scrub the floors. Repair the sink. Build a boat. Get a job. Help your pastor, the Red Cross, the Salvation Army. Assist the poor. Study your lessons. And when you're through—and not too tired—read a good book.

Your parents do not owe you entertainment. The world does not owe you a living. Your village does not owe you recreational facilities. You owe the world something. You owe it your time and energy, and your talents, so that no one will be at war or in poverty, or sick, or lonely again.

In plain simple words: Grow up; quit being a cry baby; get out of your dream world; develop a backbone, not a wishbone; and start acting like a man or lady.

I'm a parent, I'm tired of nursing, protecting, helping, appealing, begging, excusing, tolerating, denying myself needed comforts for your every whim and fancy, just because your selfish ego instead of common sense, dominates your personality and thinking.

Segregation Does Not Mean Discrimination

On the last day of the year, in keeping with our ten-year old custom, we had a New Year office party attended only by friends having offices in the building where our paper has been located since the beginning. Pledges of friendship were renewed and hope was expressed that these future events would be celebrated in a better world than that in which we now live.

After the guests had gone, and also as usual, the colored employes in the building came in for their share in the festivities and as we watched them dispose of the salads, the dips, the fruit cake and nuts, we were highly entertained by their witty remarks and original expressions.

That is segregation all right, but do-gooders and addle-pated reformers would have a hard time trying to persuade our colored friends that we ever "discriminate" against them.

We are thankful that the Reds have not been able to completely break up the good relations between the races and especially in the case of the more responsible colored people in the South although they have done great damage insofar as the attitude of the younger generation of Negroes is concerned.

Don't wait for somebody to twist your arm before proclaiming your Americanism. Make your own chance and shout from the housetop your strong belief in our free enterprise system, our form of government and this great Capitalist country of ours.

Record Disqualifies New York Senator From Participating In Civil Rights Legislation

Jacob Javits of New York is noted for his diminutive stature even in the United States Senate which does not enjoy the reputation of having a preponderance of mental giants in its make-up.

If Javits has one characteristic which stands out above another, it is his bitter, relentless and deep-seated hatred of the South, its people, its institutions and way of life.

His aversion for this area of the American Republic is only exceeded by his contempt for the Constitution of the United States and especially the Tenth Amendment which withholds from little jackanapes who happen to be members of the Congress the right to interfere in the internal affairs of the Sovereign States.

Javits is not content merely to let his hatred of the South seethe and fester in his own breast but constantly strives to inspire others with the same measure of antagonism toward a section of the country which he regards as a perpetual disaster area for the colored element residing within its boundaries.

During the Congressional recess he bounced and bobbed around among his foreign-born constituents holding what he called "educational seminars and forums" the purpose of which was to "marshal the sentiment of the State" behind the punitive Civil Rights bill he is introducing during the present session.

In this bill he proposes to take away from the Sovereign States the right to hold their own elections and would police every ballot box with a Federal snooper, presumably a Negro, with the ultimate objective of beating the people of the South to their knees and subjecting them again to the humiliation, indignity and insults heaped upon them by his earlier counterpart, Thaddeus Stevens, during Reconstruction Days.

Any member of the United States Senate is automatically due the respect to which his high office entitles him but by his prejudicial actions, Javits has forfeited his claim to any consideration whatever and we, as one humble and insignificant Southerner, hereby charge that he is totally unfit to assume leadership in any legislative proposal involving Soviet designs against this country such as the Civil Rights Program is known to be.

By his own admission in official records, Javits does not know what Communism is and does not recognize Communists even after associating closely with them. This disqualifies him from participating in a program originating in Moscow and initiated for the announced purpose of stirring up racial dissension and strife in the United States to the end that Communism may more easily strengthen its stranglehold on this country.

As we write, we have before us a transcript of Javits' testimony before a subcommittee of the Senate Judiciary on Wednesday, September 5, 1956.

Dr. Bella Dodd who at one time was a high official in American Communist Party affairs, had informed the subcommittee that during the time she was active in the Party Javits had come to her office at 100 West 42nd Street in New York and at that time they discussed what district he might concentrate on in carrying out any activities in connection with his political future.

She also testified that Javits had associated with Frederick V. Field at that time United Nations editor on the Daily Worker, official Communist paper. The Committee also had information that Javits was friendly with a Louise Bransten, identified as entertaining and bringing together in her home in San Francisco Communist Party members, including Communist espionage rings. Others with whom Javits was charged with having associated were Max Yergan, David Hedley, Max Radin and others, all identified as either being associated with the Communist Party or promoting the Communist cause.

Javits' testimony was a masterpiece in memory lapse and sidestepping which should be read by every American. It may be found in part 43, Scope of Soviet Activity in the United States, Hearing before the Subcommittee to investigate the Administration of the Internal Security Act and other Internal Security Laws of the Committee on the Judiciary, United States Senate, Eighty Fourth Congress, Second Session, September 5, 1956.

Javits' performance was as slick as an eel swimming through a tub of castor oil and when he got through cleansing himself, he was pure as new fallen snow. He admitted going to Doctor Dodd's office but insisted that he did not have the faintest idea that she was a Communist although her picture had appeared in New York newspapers a few days before when she was shown as one of those presiding over the annual meeting of the American Communist Party.

He said that he thought that Frederick V. Field was just a college boy and knew nothing of his connections which makes him unique as there are very few persons in the United States who are not familiar with Field's service to the Communist cause. All the others he claimed he had just met casually and never dreamed they were Communists. If he went to dinners or parties in their homes he made it clear that it was only because someone invited him and he didn't know where he was going or why.

We submit that any one who is so naive, trusting and gullible in dealing with Communists as this senator has confessed himself to be is certainly disqualified from even discussing, much less taking a leading part in handling, the Civil Rights program which any person with an iota of intelligence knows is the brainchild of tough, experienced Communist revolutionaries.

Only men of acumen, intelligence and a thorough understanding of the Communist apparatus and its designs against the United States are qualified to discuss and dispose of legislation which holds such potentiality for danger to the rights and freedoms for which our forefathers fought and died.

REDS ARE AGAIN OUT IN FULL CRY FOR FEDERAL AID TO EDUCATION

Although the great majority of the American people are known to be unalterably opposed to Federal Aid to Education because for one reason, it will inevitably be followed by Federal Control of Education, the drive for it continues with unabated force.

The National Education Association which is honeycombed with Reds and which sponsors UNESCO's subversive program, has sent a booklet to its 700,000 members instructing them to lobby with their senators and congressmen for the Murray-Metcalf bill which would "provide" $1,000,000,000.00 per year for four years to be used in building class rooms and raising teachers' salaries.

By "provide" they mean, of course, that this money would be taken away from the taxpayers in the various States, sent to Washington, divided among Federal looters and then what was left would be sent back to the States who gave the money in the first place, to be used for building class rooms and paying teachers' salaries. No such vicious legislation could be dreamed up except by depraved politicians in Washington whose respect for Constitutional procedure has long since gone by the board.

Domestic Arts Have Honored Place In Scheme Of Things

As usual, we spent Christmas week with our family in Houston where we had the privilege of doing something we like best to do next to writing and that is cooking. The kitchen was turned over to us and we were informed that it was all ours.

Our friends frequently express amazement that we not only know how to cook but love it. They think because we are a writer that this sort of excludes us from the domestic field.

In our humble opinion, every woman should know how to cook, sew and keep house even though she may not have to do it or, as in our case, lives in a hotel and can't do it. Household arts are not to be looked down on and any woman who likes to boast that because she is a career woman she can't boil water, is all wet and has a perverted idea of woman's place in the scheme of things.

We are excessively proud of the fact that we are a good cook and we don't mean by that we depend on "mixes" or that we can take a "television dinner" out of the ice box, heat it up and call it a meal.

We can take a turkey or chicken while still in the barnyard and perform all the necessary functions from that time until it appears on the table ready to eat. We have done it many times.

When we were still a teenager we could wring a chicken's neck with one twist of the wrist and we never missed and we could do it again if we had to.

Young people of today probably consider that only a "square" would make such an admission and maybe they are right but if we could not

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare, an agency which was set up to provide jobs for the President's friends, is also getting into the act. Director Fleming of that outfit who has abandoned his cranberry jag recently came out for Federal Aid to Education in order that American students might be given courses in every language on earth from Afghanistan to Swahili.

What Fleming apparently does not realize is that, thanks to Progressive Education foisted on this nation by dim-witted educationists like him, most American students can't speak correct English yet and it will be years before the damage done to education in this country by pro-Communist educational leaders in the nation's colleges and universities can be overcome and deficient teaching methods adjusted to the point where students' minds are capable of assimilating foreign languages.

What this country so tragically needs is a thorough clean-up in the national organizations whose leaders set themselves up as authorities on the nation's educational policies. They are rotten to the core.

Our Thanks For Good Wishes On 10th Anniversary Edition

We genuinely regret that we do not have space for the hundreds of expressions of good will which came to us on the Tenth Anniversary of the Southern Conservative but we appreciated them with all our heart.

We are especially grateful to those who expressed their friendship and interest in the form of financial assistance to help the paper keep going.

Our greatest wish is that we may always be worthy of the confidence and respect of our friends throughout the United States, in Canada and in many foreign countries.

The Police Department of Washington, D. C., has requested unaccompanied white women to stay off the streets of that city after dark, claiming that the force is inadequate to protect them. This is the city that, after integration, was going to be an "example to the rest of the nation."

The material in this edition was prepared during an illness which culminated in a good two-fisted case of old-fashioned flu. We were too weak to read back what we had written so if it does not make sense please don't hold it against us. We hope to do better next time.

STANLEY YANKUS WRITES FRIENDS FROM HIS NEW HOME IN AUSTRALIA

Believing that the many friends and admirers of Mr. Stanley Yankus, formerly of the United States, but now of Australia, will be interested to learn how he is making out in his new home, we are reproducing a personal letter which we have recently received from him.

Mr. Yankus, it will be remembered, is the Dowgiac, Michigan, farmer whose treatment by a Federal government agency caused decent Americans to hang their heads in shame. Because he planted more wheat than the political plowboys in Washington thought he should, his bank account was seized, along with his farm machinery, and he was practically forced into bankruptcy for exercising his God-given right to try to make a living for his family. Mr. Yankus moved to Australia last year in a search for the freedom to work denied him in the United States. The letter is from Grange, South Australia, where the family now lives and is reproduced below just as received:

Dear Mrs. Darden:

Often on Sunday afternoons I take my four year old daughter up to the forest reserve in the Lofty Mountains so she can feed bread to the kangaroos and emus. I enjoy listening to the Kookaburra birds. The Kookaburra, nick-named the laughing jackass, is the national bird of Australia. I have been searching for freedom in this world and I think the Kookaburra is having a jolly, good time laughing at me.

When I first got fined for raising wheat on my farm in Michigan I really believed that if all the people in the United States found out what was happening there would be such a hue and cry raised that freedom would prevail again. Instead of freedom I got my bank account seized. Perhaps the children of the future who will live in the land of the Happy United Nations of Socialism will read about an outlaw named Yankus who believed a man should earn his own living.

Recently I appeared on TV in Adelaide on a program called Press Conference. I made the statement that I still believed the Constitution of the United States was the best government ever formed in the history of the world. I will always believe this no matter where I live.

I know there are a lot of patriotic Americans who are fighting for freedom with all their might. And I know it's wrong to accept defeat. But my efforts in America were like putting up signs which read, "Do not play with matches" in a burning forest fire. My two boys just passed their grades in the Australian schools they attended. On the last day of school, the headmaster was talking about the defeat of the basketball team and he made the remark, "The apples will grow again." I am sure the freedom will grow again but the big question is when? I haven't filled my barrel full of wisdom yet.

All of the factories pay their men in cash. A few days ago I walked into the payroll office where I am employed. Nobody was guarding the money with guns. This will tell you a little bit about the moral quality of the Australian people. Another thing I like about Australia is the fact that young boys and girls are employed at an early age. I read a book once which was entitled, "How To Make Money." There was only one sentence in the book and that said, "Go To Work."

Russell, my oldest son, brought home a note from his Australian teacher. The teacher said that the homes which had TV were easily determined by the poor work the students were doing. The Australian teachers grade the students from 1 to 100 rather than give all "A's" as is commonly done in American schools of today. Students have to earn their grades.

I knew Australia was not perfect before I came here. Australia has an income tax, old age pensions, and some medical schemes: all of which are socialistic. I have hopes that there may be a counterbalance to this. Australia has a population which is composed of one million immigrants and nine million Australians. The immigrants have come from countries which had all kinds of socialism. These immigrants are looking for freedom and as they become citizens here, I think they will vote for freedom. Only time will tell if I have guessed right.

I moved into my new Australian home on Thanksgiving Day. I thought I would celebrate by buying some coffee because I had been drinking tea since my arrival in Australia. But after further thought I remembered a time when Americans were great tea-drinkers. They once had a Boston Tea Party. So I celebrated by drinking a toast of tea to my new home.

A lot of people have expected me to come to Australia and do something spectacular. I have been busy earning an honest living and establishing a home. I think it is a lifetime job to do a good job of raising my family. The foundation of a good life cannot be built on the balloons of socialism. One of my boys and some of his friends went up to Brownhill Creek in the Adelaide Hills to try their luck in panning for gold. I am going to keep right on looking for freedom.

In the June issue of the Southern Conservative I read that you wanted to get paid for "not raising rice." I am sending you five dollar for not raising rice. But from the seeds that you are planting freedom will grow again.

THE PRESIDENT'S BRAVE PROMISES ARE CANCELLED OUT BY HIS PERFORMANCES

One of our Dallas subscribers with a keen insight into political affairs believes that it takes a lot of doing for the American people to understand the contradictory and conflicting statements of the President.

She is Elizabeth Staples and while she concedes that comparisons are odious, she makes a few between the President's promises and his performances which make it extremely difficult for even his admirers to ascribe to him the virtue of consistency. In discussing the subject, Mrs. Staples writes in part:

One who examines the trail which the President has left behind him since the 1940's cannot fail to notice that his words and promises are brave and conservative and sound fine in the press or over television but, somehow, his high-sounding plans seldom, if ever, get off the ground. Something mires them down prior to fulfillment. One of two things invariably happens — either his pro-American program runs into insuperable difficulties or after the rosy glow of publicity has faded, his wonderful plan gets lost in the shuffle. Meantime, the exact opposite will have happened.

Consider his 1948 testimony before the Armed Services Committee when he said: "There is race prejudice in this country and when you put in the same organization and make live together under the most intimate circumstances men of different races, we sometimes have trouble . . . If we attempt merely by passing a lot of laws to force some one to like some one else, we are just going to get into trouble."

This was Ike's pitch four years before election which was cancelled out soon after he assumed office by his appointment of Earl Warren as Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, by his approval of the un-constitutional "law of the land" perpetrated on the American people on May 17, 1954, by the ramming of a dastardly Civil Rights bill through the Congress and by the sending of storm troopers to Little Rock.

In 1949 from the eminent office of the President of Columbia Uni-

From an irate subscriber in St. Louis: "Your editorial about Truman's sermon in a Dallas church which appeared in your anniversary edition was a masterpiece but I notice you linked him to St. Louis. Why did you do this to us?" Answer: We just plain goofed. We knew of course that it was Kansas City but for some unaccountable reason we wrote St. Louis. We hereby apologize not only to the St. Louis subscriber but to the city of St. Louis for this indignity.

God speed the day when it becomes fashionable once again to be an American and proud of it; to be loyal to the American Flag and to defend the American form of government and American institutions, customs and traditions against all comers.

versity, Ike declared: "I firmly believe that the army of persons who urge greater and greater dependence upon the Federal treasury are really more dangerous to our form of government than any external threat that can possibly be arrayed against us."

These were brave and noble words indeed but, nevertheless, beginning with the 1955 White House Conference on Education he has vigorously sponsored Federal Aid to education, with inevitable Federal control. And although advocating Federal economy in season and out, he has constantly plumped for excessive foreign aid bills and demanded that giving away of taxpayers' money to alien countries become a permanent policy of government.

Consider also how he has consistently sabotaged States Rights while yet echoing in bewildered citizens' ears was his campaign oratory of 1952: "Freedom's greatest threat today is too much government too far away from the people."

One might almost say that his utterances emanate from Dr. Jekyll while his consummated deeds are reminiscent of Mr. Hyde.

Is it possible that our Chief Executive is such a vacillating character that he is tossed in all directions by every wind of chance and actually not responsible today for what he may do tomorrow? How can he possibly reconcile his oath to uphold the Constitution with his hearty endorsement of Earl Warren's shameful attempts to shatter the safeguards in that document against the encroachment of World Communism?

How can the President salute the Flag of the United States and accept its protection as he travels throughout the world while giving prior allegiance to the flag of the United Nations, an organization cleverly designed for replacing the Constitution of the United States with a One-World Charter?

Hadn't we, as freedom-loving Americans better do our dead-level best to find out whether it is the President's words or his deeds on which we can depend?

Most newspapers gave little space to the brawl at the Dallas Cotton Bowl football game between University of Texas and Syracuse players on New Year's day. The trouble was occasioned by the fact that Syracuse had three Negroes on its team. Blame for the trouble rests with the University of Texas whose officials knew in advance that the Syracuse team included Negroes and they should have refused to let Texas play in an inter-racial game. No decent white man wants colored men piled up on top of him in the intimacy of a football game and even if there is not open trouble, there is natural human resentment. There is nothing normal about such an arrangement.

What Every Citizen Can Do To Help Save The Republic

There is no greater lay authority on the proper functions of the American governing system in the United States than the Honorable Tom Anderson, editor of Farm and Ranch at Nashville. His brilliant writings are more and more proving instrumental in awakening his readers to the urgent need for intelligent and responsible political action on their part if the Republic is to be rescued from the folly of inept, if not traitorous, leadership in Washington. The following editorial by Mr. Anderson appearing recently in the Arkansas Farmer provides a sort of blueprint or guidance sheet for those Americans seriously desiring to render service to their country in its greatest hour of peril—Editor.

"What can I do?" That's the question more and more patriotic Americans are asking. "What can I do to save my country from bankruptcy, defeat, and slavery?"

You can do plenty. If America can be saved from becoming a socialist-labor-welfare dictatorship it can only be saved by a revolution at the grassroots. Our nation can be saved the same way it was founded, by rebellious patriots demanding a return to home rule. We must return to the Constitution, to states rights, and to states responsibilities.

The greatest enemy of man is, was and always has been government. And the bigger the government the bigger the enemy.

What can little you do to cut the federal monster down to size? First, we must know what we're for; and then work for it. Specifically, here are some things we need to do to save America:

First, kill the federal personal income tax. This is the one most vital thing we can do. It would automatically solve many of our problems.

The federal income tax law (16th Amendment) threatens to lead us to complete federal dictatorship and Socialism because it enables the federal government to engage in 19,000 businesses it has no business in; and to usurp powers and responsibilities which, under the Constitution, belong to the states.

Urge your state legislator to introduce a resolution to require Congress to submit a proposed 23rd Amendment to the American people for ratification, or call a Constitutional Amendment for that purpose. Texas and Wyoming have already voted the proposed Amendment. The federal government can get along on the income tax it collects from corporations, and from other tax sources.

You would thus end the Federal Aid grab whereby thousands of state and local politicians fight for position at the Washington trough for every "free" handout on the excuse "If we don't get it, somebody else will" You'd resurrect states rights.

Some other things that we can do are: Demand that your congressmen vote to limit the peacetime debt, now. If they can't tax it or borrow it, they can't spend it. Compel an annual balanced budget and retire the national debt. Curb the Supreme Court. Drastically reduce U. S. aid to friendly foreign countries. Eliminate it to enemies like Tito, Russia's Trojan Horse.

If we are going to save the nation, we must save it on a Tuesday—voting day. But politics is an all-year job. We can't save the nation on any Tuesday unless we work the year around. Never again vote for the lesser of two evils. Vote for somebody you want even if you have to write in a name. Vote for principles, not personalities. Vote for integrity, not sex-appeal. Vote for what's in the candidate's record, not what's in his ghost-written speeches; for what he does, not what he says.

Vote against every congressman the Socialistic ADA (Americans for Democratic Action) is for. Demand a return to the gold standard and a stable dollar.

There must be a shift of the economic power back from Washington to the grassroots, where the people can understand it, feel it, control it.

Remember that a government big enough to give you all you want is big enough to take all you've got.

Why not send all officeholders for whom you have a right to vote, a list of things you're for? Tell them you'll be watching their votes carefully. Demand that they state clearly how they stand on each issue listed.

Demand that your congressmen support Senator Talmadge's proposed constitutional amendment vesting exclusive control of the public schools in the states and local governments. Kill the present Social Security System and install in its place a pay-as-we-go Social Security System. Set up a single, civilian-manned commission to buy all non-combat materials for all three branches of the armed services. Centralize control over disposal of government surplus.

What can you do? Ask yourself and others this question: What is the government doing for me now that's worth 1300% more than what the government did for me in 1940? How much more good can I afford to have done for me at this rate?

Demand that your congressmen protect us from treaties, executive agreements, and secret diplomacy by passing the original Bricker Amendment. Get the federal government out and set the farmer free. Give Red China a seat in the United Nations—our seat. Outlaw the Communist Party. Communism is a godless religion, a conspiracy (dedicated to our destruction) which masquerades as a political party. Insist that we cut off trade and relations with Communist nations and their satellites. Kill Civil Service, so millions of unneeded government workers can be fired. Insist that the labor union monopoly be ended and that unions be placed under the same anti-trust, anti-

LET'S SHOOT EXPERTS INTO THE AIR AND KEEP MONKEYS ON THE GROUND

Cuba Taken Over Without The Firing Of A Shot

It must seem strange to anxious Americans how silent would-be candidates for President on both the Democratic and Republican factions of the Socialist Party are on the horrible situation in Cuba, right at our very door.

As many of us predicted the successful Castro revolution merely meant that Communists were taking over this Caribbean isle and this has now been confirmed. And while the American President was on an eleven-country trip to far-off places "combatting" Communism the Soviets were perfecting their control over the puppet Castro right under the very nose of our State Department which never chirped in protest.

Cuba is now the beachhead from which World Communism is launching its ideological invasion of all Latin American countries according to admissions by Communist sources who concede that Cuba was taken over without the firing of a shot or of any appreciable protest from Washington politicians who regard themselves as world leaders.

Castro is taking the China line that he is an "agrarian reformer" but the fact is that he is a stooge of Moscow and that the United States which likes to meddle in other nations' business, is doing nothing about it.

Lyndon B. Johnson is certainly pursuing his campaign for re-election as United States Senator from Texas with great vigor. Recently he made speeches in Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska and Iowa, which sets some kind of a record in the territory covered by a candidate for a State office.

racketeering, taxpaying laws as are businesses.

Remember it is not what the politician says, but what he does that counts. And the same goes for all of us. We say we love freedom. What are we doing about it? The voice of the people, if it is loud enough, can prevail over the selfish minority groups.

Insist that your government stop its piecemeal surrender of the world.

Remember that the only way to end the cold war is to win it; that the Communist definition of peace is surrender. Remember that war is horrible but slavery is worse. It's better to die on our feet than to live on our knees.

The only way to peace and freedom is for Freedom Fighters across the world to rise up together. Peace must mean not surrender, but rebellion. Coexistence must mean not slavery, but freedom. We must fight the Communists with the weapon they fear most: truth. It's more devastating than any H-bomb.

What are we defending against the Communists? We are defending the freedom and the dignity of the individual; the right to be masters of ourselves and of our govern-

If we had ever sat down and given any serious and concentrated thought to the subject, we would have figured that the experts in the spending field had already exhausted every possible device by which taxpayers' money can be wasted and the national treasury depleted, but we would have been wrong.

New methods are being thought up every day.

Now they are even tossing monkeys up into the air encased in expensive capsule contraptions and while the cost of the project is not disclosed, it is admitted that our scientific geniuses don't fool with anything unless it sets the taxpayers back at least a million dollars.

Presumably the bright boys who thought up the experiment had some objective in heaving these simians into the clouds and letting them plop down in the ocean but, if so, it is being kept a dark secret from the hoi polloi.

Personally, we think that civilization would be better served if we would hurl a few thousand scientific experts into the atmosphere and let the monkeys stay on the ground.

From a longtime subscriber and nationally-known conservative in Memphis, Tenn.: "Sincere congratulations for your tenth anniversary of hard fighting. You have been tremendously effective in holding our crowd together."

Richard Nixon deserves the support of every member of the Steelworkers Union for helping to settle the strike in such a way that they received all the advantages and the steel owners practically none. This is statesmanship of the Modern Republican type.

ment; and to be servants only of our God. Defend? We must not only defend. We must get on the offensive, and take these ideas, these freedoms, and these blessings to the world. "Containment" of Communism is only a beginning, not an end.

"You can't turn the clock back," is a favorite excuse of the politicians. Turning the clock back more than 2,000 years, we find that a "reactionary" named Plato said, "One of the penalties for refusing to participate in politics is that you end up being governed by your inferiors."

Dante said, "The hottest places in hell are reserved for those who in a period of moral crisis, remain neutral."

Government spending and government bureaucracy are out of hand, beyond the willingness or the ability of the President and the Congress to control. It's up to you. What can one small voice do? Multiplied, it can work wonders. Let's remember, "I am only one, but still I am one. I cannot do everything, but I can do something. And I will not refuse to do the something that I can do."

Faithful Disciple Of Marx Officially Enters Contest

Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, one of the longest-winded members of the Senate, has been running for President of the United States practically since the first day he entered public office. Recently he made it legal by announcing his intention of going after the nomination on the Fair Deal Democratic ticket.

Humphrey is different from the other half dozen or so candidates in both parties who are contestants for the nation's chief executive job.

All of them are Socialists, of course, but with most of them it is only skin deep as they know better. Way down deep in their hearts, they are bound to be ashamed of their Marxist alliance and would probably be recognized as good, sound Conservatives if they did not mistakenly believe that they must be "liberals" in order to hold office. In their quiet moments of reflection, their conscience undoubtedly hurts them because as public servants they have performed like little yellow dogs with their tails tucked between their legs as they meekly followed Socialist leadership to the almost complete destruction of Constitutional Government.

But not Humphrey. He's a born Socialist and proud of it. He actually believes the tripe he spouts forth in the Senate and in the public forum and the fundamental principles on which the American governing system is based are as alien to him and as far beyond his understanding as is the tribal language of the Bushmen of South Africa.

In a way, he might be described as the most sincere candidate in the whole caboodle for while the others are Socialist converts for expediency, he is a born believer in the theories of Karl Marx as a matter of principle.

ROCKEFELLER'S WITHDRAWAL MEANS GOOD RIDDANCE OF BAD RUBBISH

Nelson A. Rockefeller, Governor of New York, and International Socialist of the first order announced late in December that he would not try for the nomination for President of the United States on the Republican ticket.

He was convinced, he said, after a trip throughout the country that while people liked him, they preferred Richard M. Nixon as their standard bearer in the next election.

We congratulate the people of the United States on Mr. Rockefeller's withdrawal from the contest. As we have said before, while Mr. Rockefeller may be a genial gentleman in private life, as President of the United States he would be more dangerous to the best interests of the country than any man who has held that office heretofore and that is saying a lot.

As a matter of fact, there should be a law to prevent any governor of New York from ever becoming President. While New York is physically a part of the United States, actually, with its heavy foreign-born population, it is largely an alien section of the country completely out of sympathy with the

THE SPECTER OF OLD WORLD INTRIGUE REARS UGLY HEAD IN UNITED NATIONS

Haunting visions of intrigue, secret police and a frightening tap on the door at midnight which many feel is the future fate of humanity were brought to the forefront by the "suicide" of Povl Bang-Jensen, Danish diplomat attached to the United Nations whose strange death placed an obligation on representatives of decent nations which has not been discharged.

From confidential sources in Washington we learn that authorities there are convinced that Bang-Jensen was murdered but since this country is a member of the diabolic conspiracy and nest of international spies known as the United Nations, no action has been or likely will be taken in the matter of investigating this mysterious death which occurred on American soil. New York police officials hastily pronounced the death a suicide and closed the case.

The rumors which have attended the tragic incident are not pretty and the United Nations will be more suspect in the minds of patriotic Americans than ever. The affair has emphasized the fact that the U.N. is dominated by Communists and since no one in his right mind has any doubt as to what the Soviets will do to achieve their aims, it will be a long time before the conviction is erased from many minds that Bang-Jensen met his fate at the hands of the Soviet Secret Police.

For those who have not kept up with the case, the facts are these:

Bang-Jensen was one of a team of investigators who interviewed Hungarian refugees in Vienna. The Danish diplomat was able to collect much valuable information from these refugees on his promise that he would not reveal the names of his informers. This was to protect them and their relatives still in Hungary from reprisal by the Communists.

However, a few months later Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld's assistant demanded that Bang-Jensen give the names of his informants to be placed in the files of the United Nations. Bang-Jensen was promised that these names would be safe in U.N. files, but since the Dane was not stupid, and knew that a Soviet promise meant less than nothing, he refused to comply. He was promptly fired by Hammarskjöld and two armed guards were assigned to escort him to the front gate of the United Nations building.

This was followed by a typical Communist smear of the ousted diplomat to the effect that he was "mentally unstable" because he would not betray those who told of Communist brutality in connection with the Hungarian uprising.

Later Bang-Jensen was found shot to death with a note indicating that he had committed suicide. This was taken as evidence by those who apparently had never heard of secret police torture methods and the whole thing was apparently brushed under the rug.

Perhaps this may yet be the cause of a full scale exposure of the United Nations for what it is and, if so, Bang-Jensen will not have died in vain.

Any One Refusing To Affirm Loyalty Is Simply Not Loyal

The rapid advance of Communism in the United States is, of course, evident on all sides but its spread in educational circles is especially pronounced.

This has been demonstrated many times but never more forcefully than in the refusal of many educational institutions to participate in the student loan program under the national defense education act, so long as this legislation provides that those receiving aid must take an oath of loyalty to the United States.

Of course the act itself is Communist-inspired for it seeks to give the Federal government control over the educational institutions of the nation by providing them with taxpayers' money, but somehow the loyalty oath provision got slipped into it and the Reds don't like that. They want the Federal government to have control of colleges and universities through financial donations but they don't propose that those receiving the aid shall be forced to affirm their loyalty to the country providing them with this boon.

Six colleges are reported to have declined to participate in the program because of the loyalty oath requirement; thirteen have withdrawn from the program because of it and between thirty and forty

We Wish We Knew Identity Of An Anonymous Friend

Ordinarily when an unsigned communication is received by us it goes into the wastebasket and no further thought is given to it.

However, there is an exception to this rule in anonymous letters received periodically from the same person who writes us two or three times a year.

He is obviously a member of the National Press Club in Washington as he always uses the stationery of that organization kept in the members' writing lounge. His letters are extremely complimentary and occasionally he sends money.

On occasion we have had letters from other members of the Press Club but they sign their names while this one prefers to remain anonymous.

In his latest communication he says: "Some of us here get more incentive to better writing and clearer thinking out of your monthly newspaper than almost anything that comes to our busy desks. My wife says 'God bless Ida forever and protect our children in D.C.' I wish I might write more fully and sign it."

Well, why not sign it? This is not Russia — not yet. And besides, we never take liberties with anyone's name who writes us and are certainly to be trusted in that respect.

Nothing ever appears in our paper that is not good, sound Americanism and ninety-nine out of a hundred persons who write us are proud and unafraid to sign their names.

We value highly the friendship and good will of this unknown journalist but we would be much better pleased if he would only come out from behind his false whiskers and tell us who he is.

When a man has lost all desire to own and to protect his private property from confiscation he becomes lower than the animals for a beast in the jungle will fight to the death to keep the fruits of his kill.

If ever the morals clause of the immigration law barring undesirable from this country needed to be invoked, it is in the case of the shameless Canadian woman who has brazenly announced that she is coming to this country to marry some Negro entertainer.

educational institutions have protested it.

Arthur S. Fleming, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, has recently put in his two cents and expressed his opposition to a declaration of loyalty to the United States on the part of students who participate in the program.

Of course every form of excuse is given by those who are opposed to this oath including the one that it insults the American citizen who is forced to publicly affirm his loyalty to his country.

But the bald truth is that any individual or group who refuse, or object, to expressing loyalty to the American Republic and its institutions, are simply not loyal.

It is as simple as that and no amount of fancy phrases employed in explaining their objection will alter this fundamental fact.
