

Alcohol limit on UC drinks discarded Administration's approval pending

By SUSAN SNELLING
Staff Writer

A new alcohol policy, allowing the sale of a full range of alcoholic beverages in the UC Coffeehouse, passed by unanimous vote at the UC Policy Board meeting yesterday.

The recommendation will go to UH System President Philip G. Hoffman, pending approval by Dr. Harry Sharp, vice chancellor, dean of students.

Rick Brass, chair of the Foods Committee, introduced the recommendation and defended the new policy.

"Nowhere else, to my knowledge, can you find the type of current limitation of 15 percent alcohol without such drinks as martinis, Black Russians and straight shots also being available," Brass said.

Another provision of the alcohol policy could extend the selling of beer and wine to the Cougar Den, UC Satellite and UC cafeteria in the future.

The relationship between Mannings, Inc., the UC food service and the Foods Committee was also discussed under the Foods Committee report.

Recommendations for promotional specials in the food services at the UC have been presented to Melvin Busby, unit manager of Mannings, but so far few ideas have been initiated.

"I don't feel that is the Foods Committee's responsibility to direct or initiate these special promotions," Brass said. "Considering that the committee meets only once every two weeks, it would be virtually impossible for us to run the food service, which I feel is Mannings' responsibility."

A conference involving members of Coffeehouse Committee and Foods Committee with Mannings was suggested as a possible solution to the problem.

Other recommendations presented to the board included a smoking policy for the UC reading lounge.

During the reading of the recommendation by David Patronella, chair of the Space Allocations Committee, Allen Youngblood, Policy Board chair, donned a gas mask and suggested that the mask should be handed out to non-smoking readers in the lounge.

After laughing out Youngblood's suggestion, the board decided to set aside a designated smoking area in the lounge.

The board also approved a request allowing organizations holding late night activities in the UC, an extra 45 minutes for clean-up without the $25 charge which was previously enforced when an activity continued past 2 a.m.

Castillo campaigns

City pays interest on loan

Castillo

By JAN RICH
Staff Writer

The City of Houston paid more than $400,000 in interest on money borrowed to "tide it over" during 1976, said to John Castillo, candidate for city controller, in a speech to UH students Thursday.

The city was forced to borrow money because "revenues and available cash were insufficient to cover expenditures from the middle of the summer until December when property taxes were collected," he said.

Castillo explained that "the city borrowed $35.5 million from local banks in 1976 at a cost of $423,000 to finance city operations for almost half the year, then paid off the obligations when property taxes came in."

Castillo, who calls himself "wastewatcher" for Houston, said this pattern of borrowing to balance the budget could perhaps be changed with a "more rational budget making process. In essence," Castillo said, "we go half a year without a budget."

The principle problem, Castillo said, is that some taxes are due in January of each year but are not considered delinquent until December. Consequently, many people do not pay taxes until late in the year, and the city's budget comes up short of money. This problem could be eliminated, Castillo said, by collecting taxes on a quarterly basis during the year.

Another change Castillo would like to see made is to "strengthen internal accounting procedures" for all city departments. "No one has had a real close look at those departments," he said. A controller's job encompasses not only making sure money doesn't get stolen, but also making sure money is spent efficiently, he added.

Castillo graduated from UH in 1965 with a degree in mathematics. In 1974 he began working for the city by establishing the Manpower Jobs Program. In 1975 he set up the Community Development Program for Houston.

Whitmire speaks today

Kathy Whitmire, candidate for city controller, will outline her campaign platform at noon today in the World Affairs Lounge, UC Underground.

Whitmire's speech is one of a series of Campaign '77 speeches sponsored by Program Council and the Political Science Organization to acquaint students with city council candidates, according to Kay Lynn Harris, Campaign '77 director.

Whitmire will speak until about 12:30 p.m. with a question and answer period following.

"We hope that students will pin her down on issues brought out in Thursday's speech by John Castillo (also a candidate for controller)," Harris said.

Displays mark end of Safety Week

Settegast Hall was awarded $50 in a fire prevention display contest yesterday in Oberholtzer Lounge.

The competition was a culmination of the residence halls' participation in Fire Prevention Week, according to Thelma Douglass, area coordinator of residence halls.

During the week, residence hall fire equipment was checked, the staff and residents were educated on equipment location and operation, and fire drills were conducted for both the Quadrangle and Moody Towers.

Judges for the contest were Bruce Gurd, director of housing; Tom Pennett, assistant director of housing; Dan Hadley, director of campus safety; Ted Weise, vice chancellor of the Central Campus and Ken Jung, residence halls director of finance.

Bates Hall placed second.

The UH cheerleaders summon the forces of the bonfire to bring forth a festive feeling for the Homecoming activities. Homecoming bonfire festivities included a campus victory march and a dance performed by coach Yeoman to toast the evening. Other Homecoming season events include an all-school street dance sponsored by the Interfraternity Council and the Homecoming game.

Errors and gaps fill Cougar

By MICHAEL L. H. TUROFF

The decrease in funding of The Daily Cougar by the administration may have been a demoralizer for the newspaper staff. However, the question still remains to be answered as to whether the newspaper will be able to live up to its purpose in spite of the cutback.

Last year, before the cutback, the newspaper staff was notified of a Chemistry Department Awards Luncheon in which the department presented Teaching Excellence awards to three teaching assistants and four student scholarship awards to the outstanding student in each year's level of chemistry studies (freshman through senior). Also at the luncheon, the Alpha Chi Sigma Chemistry Fraternity awarded three $100 scholarships to outstanding chemistry students. Furthermore, the fraternity, cosponsored (with the college of Natural Science and Math) a $1000 Undergraduate Research Award to one of the chemistry faculty. These very important campus news items were neither adequately nor accurately covered by The Daily Cougar's staff.

Last summer, the UH Amateur Radio Club installed a new antenna system on top of the New Technology Building. During the construction and several weeks thereafter (even as late as September), the staff of The Daily Cougar was asked to run a story with a picture of the new system as an example of what a student organization was doing on campus for the benefit of the university community. This September, I, as president of UHARC, submitted two typewritten articles for publication by The Daily Cougar concerning the services that the Ham operators on campus could perform for the campus community, as well as information about the organization in an attempt to drum up additional interest in the club. Neither of these campus interest items were ever published.

Furthermore, the ETCETERA Column has misprinted two of our meeting notices: the one in September was listed under the wrong date, thus causing confusion among the membership, and the one just this Tuesday (10-4-77), in which the room number was listed as T-2, Room 23. No such sub-basement room exists in that building. This is very disturbing to me because it means a decrease in meeting attendance due to a proofing error (I wrote out Room 203 in block print letters).

In my personal opinion, the job of a campus newspaper is to cover an assortment of CAMPUS events, news of campus students, faculty, staff, organizations and the like. Events of significance which affect the campus community should also be covered. Furthermore, organizations submitting articles for publication should be given preference over old reruns of "The Tower of Cheyenne," the nude statue in front of S&R I, the Cullen Family Plaza and other less newsworthy items. After all, the personnel of the organizations took the time to write or type them, so they must be slightly important. News coverage of campus awards ceremonies, such as were previously mentioned, should definitely receive high coverage due to the efforts made to present, and the effect occurring from, these awards upon the campus community.

It is also my opinion that stories of the news services which do not relate or concern the campus community do not belong in the campus newspaper. These stories, being used as fillers, should be superceded by reports on the different campus organizations which campus newspaper reporters should be seeking out, rather than waiting for them to fall onto their desks due to the efforts of individuals such as myself.

The time has come to re-examine the purpose of The Daily Cougar. If it is not accomplishing its purpose, or the purpose is not sufficiently viable, perhaps it is time to add more funds to provide new and different pathways for it to achieve its rightful goals. On the other hand, perhaps it should lose funds so as to cut it back to a bi-weekly paper as a penalty for not accomplishing its purpose in a given period of time, thus becoming an extravagance of the journalism department (if that is the department responsible for it), until such time as it proves worthy of increased funding by the re-directing of its staff's energies toward items of special campus interest.

Aid right to stay

By EBRAHIM RAHIMI-KHAMNEI

As an uneducated Iranian youth facing unemployment, Ali Shokri, along with many other Iranian youths in similar predicaments, joined the Iranian Air Force in 1971. He was transferred to a U.S. Air Force Base in January, 1973 for military training. In August, 1973, Shokri defected from the Iranian Air Force at Dyess Air Force Base in Texas. In September, 1973, he crossed the border into Canada.

Upon his arrival, Shokri was mistakenly told by the Committee to Aid American War Objectors (CAAWO) that he would not qualify under the terms of the amnesty program proclaimed by the Canadian Department of Immigration; therefore, should not contact Canadian Immigration officials.

Shokri then lived in Canada for three years without knowledge of the authorities. In 1975, he met Michelle Brosack, a U.S. citizen from Tacoma, Washington. They were married in June 1976.

While in Iran, Shokri saw brutal assaults on peaceful student demonstrations. He saw unconscious bodies thrown on military trucks. Later, in the military, he witnessed the arrest of a sergeant who was found reading a banned book. He never saw the sergeant again.

Once in the United States, Shokri became very conscious of the difference between American and Iranian Society. He immensely admired the existence of human and democratic rights in America and came to deplore the total violation of these basic rights in his home country.

Shokri's plea for permanent residency has been denied, and instead, a deportation order has been issued by the U.S. Immigration authorities. At the present time, he is appealing his case to the immigration authorities.

If the U.S. government yields to the pressure of the Shah of Iran and delivers Shokri to the Iranian police, he is certain to share the common fate of all political dissidents in Iran: imprisonment, torture and possible execution. Only an international campaign of protest can save his life.

As part of this campaign, a panel discussion will be held on Oct. 18, in the Engineering Building, Lecture 2 Auditorium Ali Shokri; Dr. Armando Gutierrez, Texas Vice-Chairperson of Raza Unida Party; and Ms. Gertrude Barnstone, from Women Equity Action League will take part in the panel.

The panel is sponsored by Iranian Student Association-Democratic, International Student Organization, Young Democrats, Student Coalition Against Racism, Chicano Pre-Law Association, Committee for Artistic and Intellectual Freedom in Iran, Young Socialist Alliance and Houston "Call For Action."

EDITORIAL

Give us the facts

Hide-and-seek is one of the administration's favorite games.

Thursday morning The Daily Cougar received a call from the system's public information director. He said the front page headline, "Anniversary fund drive climbs to $4.6 million," was wrong. The story referred to the UH 50 Fund which is a fund-raising drive with a goal of $23.5 million.

We then asked him how much money the UH 50 Fund has officially received to date. He said he didn't know.

The absurdity of an office of information official making such a statement is self-evident, especially when you take into consideration how the reporter arrived at the $4.6 million figure.

After every administrative source said, "I don't know" or "he's not in today," we took the most recent official total available (about $3.5 million last July), and added to it the new donation (valued at $1.1 million).

If university officials want to ensure that the information which appears in the Cougar is correct, they should open their doors and make those facts accessible. Cutting off the free flow of information from one source only means that reporters must dig a little bit harder to get it from other sources which may not be as reliable.

Alternative lifestyle

By 168701

In my experience, T. Edward Bell's loneliness for people long gone (10-4-77, "Sold Out") is common among people under 30. Why don't such people drop out as we did? The rednecks used to tell us in the '60's, "if you don't like it here, get out." So, in our own way, we did.

Possibly, some of these young people are simply too materialistic and ambitious. This may be because they are not as deeply alienated (committed to a better world) as we were (are.) This place today, at least superficially (no big war, corruption, lack of civil rights, etc.), although a little insight reveals the reality of Armageddon 10 years closer than in 1967.

The alienation may not exist, in part, because there is no longer the glaring generation gap. The parents of people under 25 today are often the first rock 'n' rollers, the rebels-without-a-cause. Our parents are those fat legionnaire Archie Bunkers reminiscing about the "Big One" and anxiously awaiting the next scientific technological miracle and more solutions to social problems; all of which we could see was becoming a nightmare.

Yes, "hippiedom" is no longer visible because we have left the institutions and the cities except for brief returns for the basics provided by them. And the vacuum we left behind is filled with 1950's nostalgia and future shock disco fantasies. Young folks seem interested in the present because they believe there's nothing there. Well, for anyone interested, lots of us '60s dropouts are alive and well in the country communes, and I recommend, (though I have no personal interest in these publications) "A Waldon II Experiment" by Kathleen Kincade, prefaced by B.F. Skinner, found in El Paso (both public and UTEP libraries and at SMU in Dallas)—a living experiment still in progress after over 10 years, a growing, successful communal alternative—and the communal bi-monthly, Communities, (CPC, Drawer 426, Louisa, VA 23093). There is still an alternative.

In all fairness to the 1954 alumnus you mentioned, 23 years after your graduation you may look just as haggard, no matter how noble your lifestyle. Time does that to people.

$37,000 priority

To the Editor:

The priorities of the UH Board of Regents, and other administrators, have needed to be significantly altered for some time with respect to the allocation of university funds. The most recent absurdity, has been the allocation of $37,000 to obtain and suspend a fabric sculpture in the library entrance.

According to this action by the UH Board of Regents, we, the students, are supposed to believe that this so-called "art" is more important than having adequate facilities, equipment and faculty, to produce a respectable level of education in all of the departments and sections of the university. While this "art" hangs in the library, the speech and hearing clinic is a pathetic disgrace to the university and an embarrassment to the individuals who patronize it.

There is no soundproofing in any of the therapy or testing rooms. This makes accurate hearing tests impossible, the therapy rooms echo terribly, the lighting is grotesquely inadequate and the sound system used for students observations is absolutely hideous. The department has approximately, one half of the needed equipment. Most of the equipment should be replaced. As if that were not enough, the student-faculty ratio in the department is approximately 44-one.

These conditions are not unique to the Speech Pathology-Audiology department, but similar conditions also characterize several other departments and sections, including journalism. The time has come for students to speak out against such irresponsible management. Such as decorating the campus in preference to overall educational adequacy.

Flick flops

To the Editor:

In regards to last night's showing of "Network" in the Houston Room, UC, there were several problems:

- 1) The seats were horrible;
- 2) The screen was entirely too small;
- 3) The sound system was inaudible;
- 4) There were many distractions from the outside.

These, plus other minor distractions, caused us to feel regret that we didn't receive minimum value for our dollar and time spent. Ripped off.

Cameras, not art

To the Editor:

The UH Communications Department will soon be in its new building. However, the new home will be inadequately equipped because of a lack of funding.

Communications students must have fully equipped television and radio studios to complete the learning process. Have you ever tried to make a movie without a movie camera? It's difficult to comprehend the situation, especially in light of the Regents frivolous expenditures. An example of their foolish spending is the new fabric sculpture in the library. It cost $37,000—no small sum.

I appreciate the sculpture, but must question the Regents ordering of priorities. Is the sculpture more important than desperately needed equipment? Of course not! The Communications Department is ill-equipped (you ought to see the antique I'm typing this letter on) and poorly funded. Dear Regents, please tell us why.

Who pays?

To the Editor:

The NCAA, in putting the UH football team on probation, has done a great injustice to the players and fans. If the NCAA wishes to punish the guilty party, reprimand the coaches or the administration, not the players. Why punish the team? They are not at fault, and the fans did no wrong. The coaches are responsible for their actions. The administration is guilty of not being responsible for keeping the coaches accountable for their actions.

Why not allow a team on probation to participate in post season bowl games or on TV, but not allow any net proceeds go to the school. A "Financial Probation" would not punish the players and fans. Also, a "Recruitment Probation" to restrict coaches recruiting during the next few years, or a scholarship limit, may be imposed while the team is on probation.

I do not need to say how much a bowl game means to the players and fans, so why accept this when they are not at fault? I am in complete agreement with the NCAA ruling, as long as the guilty are punished, but not when the innocent have to suffer. I am sure the NCAA could work out a FAIR but stern solution to the problem.

UT vendetta

To the Editor:

How can the University of Texas get away with the garbage (and I say "garbage" to be nice) they are pulling on UH?

As I recall, this whole matter (the recruitment of Shepard) was put to rest last spring. Is Texas really that envious? Look at the facts:

1) There is a representative, according to the Houston Post, from the University of Texas on the NCAA Infractions Committee that placed UH on the probation, by the name of Charles A. Wright.

2) Shepard originally opted for UT, then changed his mind and decided to go to UH. Texas was notably perturbed.

3) Unconfirmed, yet probable, rumors circulating among prominent sportswriters, several players, and officials name Texas as the initiator of the investigation. In addition, another rumor said that Coach Yeoman told his players Tuesday night that he was "turning it in" because UT was about to launch a SWC investigation.

4) And finally, Texas was demolished by the Cougars last season 30-0 to put an end to the Royal era.

This in itself, I admit, is not an overwhelming amount of evidence against Texas to warrant a riot. Nevertheless, I think that all Cougar fans should still take notice that ours is not the only team that this happens to. Even though we did damage the traditions, history, and records of the SWC by winning the championship and Cotton Bowl our first year in the conference, it won't bother the other eight members.

By the way, whatever happened to the Texas scandal where some of the players were getting paid by the legislature for watching the trash cans mate? Or did King Darrell put that to rest, too?

Piper award

Faculty nominations sought

Nominations are now being accepted by the Faculty Senate for the annual Minnie Stevens Piper Foundation Awards.

Each year 10 professors are chosen for the awards from Texas colleges and universities based on "outstanding academic and scholarly achievement and for their dedication to the profession." Winners receive a cash honorarium of $1,500.

Nominations may be submitted by UH students or faculty members. Interested persons should pick up the necessary nomination forms in the Faculty Senate office, Room 20 of the Ezekiel Cullen building (auditorium side). When the forms are filled out, they should be returned to the Faculty Senate office to Dr. Louis Williams. The deadline for submitting nominations is Nov. 1.

Nominations should include at least three letters of recommendation offering an evaluation of a nominee's "stature as a teacher, scholar and contributor to the achievement of the purposes of the institution." These letters may be from colleagues and current or former students.

After all nominees are submitted, three candidates will be chosen by the Faculty Senate's Student Life Committee. These nominations will be forwarded to the Piper Foundation, which will select the winners. Winners will be notified next spring.

Workshop orients students

A one-day workshop entitled "Contemporary Woman: Returning Student" will be offered from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Oct. 25 in the Continuing Education Center.

The workshop will offer guidance and information to adults interested in university study. It is designed for persons returning to a university for an undergraduate degree, for graduate school entry or for a self-enrichment program of study.

A $45 fee will cover the cost of materials, refreshments and a luncheon.

Workshop topics include career placement, student services, and tutorial services.

Funding gets scarce

University faculties across the state must start working on issues now in order to effect state legislation in the 1979 session, according to a director of Texas Association of College Teachers (TACT).

"All money needed for education is hard to come by," said Frank L. Wright, executive director of TACT. "And it will only get worse, so faculty members and students must start working now on issues, in order to inform legislators of problems before the session starts. Once the session starts it's too late to be effective."

TACT is an association open to fulltime faculty members throughout Texas. "Affiliate membership" is reserved for teaching fellows and part-time faculty at half the cost.

The association lobbies for "effective education," Wright said. "The main reason I'm on campus this trip is for a membership drive."

Only 13 percent of all college faculty in Texas are members of TACT and UH only has a 9.7 percent membership. "The more members we have, the more effect we can have on bills."

During the last legislative session TACT worked on 24 issues. "Not all were passed, but we were able to alert legislators to bills that would hurt higher education," Wright explained. "Also, one of the most important aspects of TACT is to alert educators of possible problems before they happen."

Wright said an example of the association's ability to oppose legislation was shown in its opposition to House Bill 833. The bill would have put severe limits on teaching fellows and faculty by requiring them to be in class a certain number of hours each week. "This was one of the worst bills introduced. It passed the House, but because of our ability to inform, it never finally passed. However, the question still remains open," he said.

Cougar Guard

Allocation goes exclusively to cats

By JUDITH K. MCGINNIS
Staff Writer

(Third of 12 parts)

On the budgetary totem poll, the Cougar Guard ties with Dorm Council for the smallest amount of funds received from the Student Service Fees Planning and Allocations Committee.

The committee designated $3,100 for the guard's 1977-78 budget, an increase of about 30 percent over last year's allotment. Guard captain Thom Simons attributed the boost to the acquisition of a second mascot, Shasta IV.

Unlike many other UH organizations, the guard does not have to provide for staff salaries, all members work on a voluntary basis. The allotted funds go directly into the care and feeding of the two cougars.

The group consists of 19 students who oversee the care of both Shasta III and Shasta IV, as well as supervising their transportation and display at all major Cougar athletic events.

Lt. R.V. Johnson of UHS and Peg Marquette from the Half Century Office act as advisors for the guard, however, all decisions concerning the budget are made by its members.

Simons said approximately 25 percent of the budget is used for feeding expenses, with the rest divided between maintenance costs (purchasing harnesses, soap and leashes) and veterinarian supplies.

This year's allocation of student service fees, as set by the Student Service Fee Planning and Allocation Committee:

University Center	$903,652
Student Publications	74,000
Vice Chancellor, Dean of Students	89,000
Intramural Athletics	93,000

THE DEAN OF BEER SUGGESTS ALL STUDENTS IMPROVE THEIR READING, WRITING, AND PUNTING.

Fellow Beer Persons, life is full of problems. Fortunately, as your Dean of Beer, I am full of answers. For example, many problems can be avoided with good reading skills. Such as "Danger. Wild Boar Ahead."

Many others can be avoided through good writing skills. Such as "Dear Mom, Send Cash."

However, some problems require more. Some problems require special attention. Such as "Good evening, Officer. What can I do for you?"

That is why, in addition to the fine arts of reading and writing, I recommend you master the fine art of punting. Preferably with either foot. That is also why I am offering $5.00 off the suggested retail price of an official, intercollegiate-quality Wilson football, with the Schlitz emblem. So you can practice. (Besides, no one would be interested if I offered $5.00 off on lip balm.) Class dismissed.

UH, Mustangs match offenses

By DAVID MUNDY
Assistant Sports Editor

A fireworks display is expected to highlight UH's homecoming football game Saturday night in the Astrodome.

The fireworks may not be the bottle rockets and roman candles one sees on the Fourth of July, but instead will pit the Southwest Conference's (SWC) leading passer against the conference's third-ranked unit in total offense.

SMU freshman Mike Ford currently ranks first among SWC passers. He has completed 47.7 percent of his passes for 778 yards and four touchdowns.

Ford hit 19 of 36 passes against mighty Ohio State for 273 yards.

Choate

The Buckeyes, however, intercepted seven of his passes en route to a 35-7 win.

Houston's defensive backfield led the SWC in interceptions last season, and with a healthy Anthony Francis possibly seeing playing time, the Cougars should be able to choke off a good bit of the Mustang passing game.

Across the field, Cougar quarterback Delrick Brown seems to be improving his passing form. Although he has completed only nine of 28 passes for 170 yards, it should be noted that several of those incompletions were dropped.

In addition, he has thrown two touchdown passes, a bomb to Rickey Maddox that went for 52 yards and a clutch pass to Don Bass that won the Coog contest with Baylor two weeks ago with only 39 seconds left.

SMU has a pair of talented linebackers, however, in Putt Choate and "Champ" Dickerson, each with two interceptions so far this season, to pressure Brown.

Choate became the third SWC player in history to return an interception 100 yards earlier this season against TCU.

On paper, however, both teams look weak in passing defense. SMU ranks eighth and UH ninth in the conference in pass defense, allowing 179.2 and 181.7 yards per game, respectively.

Both teams boast talented receivers. SMU's Emanuel Tolbert ranks third in the SWC, having caught 19 passes for 319 yards and two touchdowns.

Houston's Don Bass and Rickey Maddox rank fourth and seventh, respectively, in SWC receivers. Bass has caught 12 passes for 182 yards, while Maddox has nine receptions for 153 yards. Each has a touchdown to their credit.

Talented tailback Arthur Whittington leads the SMU ground game. Whittington currently ranks sixth among SWC runners with 376 yards on 76 carries.

In addition, he is second in the conference in kickoff returns, with a 23.2 average. Last season he rated second in the nation in all-purpose running, averaging 167.5 yards per game.

Whittington, has been a trouble spot for Cougar defenders for the past two years. He has averaged 7.9 yards per carry, gaining 182 yards against them in two previous meetings with UH. He scored two touchdowns in leading the Mustangs to 26-16 win over the Cougars two years ago.

Alois Blackwell, who went to the same high school as Whittington, (Cuero) is currently fourth among SWC rushers. He has amassed 401 yards on 78 carries and scored three touchdowns in the Cougars' first four games, while backfield mate Dyral Thomas has gained 241 yards on 43 carries with one touchdown to rank ninth in the conference.

SMU has the edge, on paper, in the punting department. Freshman Ken Rosenthal has booted 27 punts for a 44.2 average, while UH's Jay Wyatt has punted 21 times for a 41.0 average. UH may have the edge in returns, however, with Rickey Maddox averaging 7.5 per carry to rank fourth in the SWC.

On paper, the game looks to be a high-scoring affair. However, UH head coach Bill Yeoman says to look for a possible surprise. As he stated earlier this week to Houston Post columnist Jack Gallagher, "I thought Baylor had an excellent second half against us. Yet at home, they couldn't score a touchdown against SMU. That gives you an idea of the defense we'll face Saturday."

In conference basketball Coaches

By DAVID MUNDY
Ass't Sports Editor

Arkansas emerged as the pre-season favorite among Southwest Conference basketball coaches at a luncheon press meeting with members of the Houston press yesterday.

Coach Guy Lewis of UH pegged the razorbacks as the team to beat this season, noting that Arkansas boasts four returning starters and a good recruiting program.

Arkansas Coach Eddie Sutton agreed that his team will be favored, but noted that other conference teams will be improved. "I would think that we have to be given the nod, with four returning starters," he said.

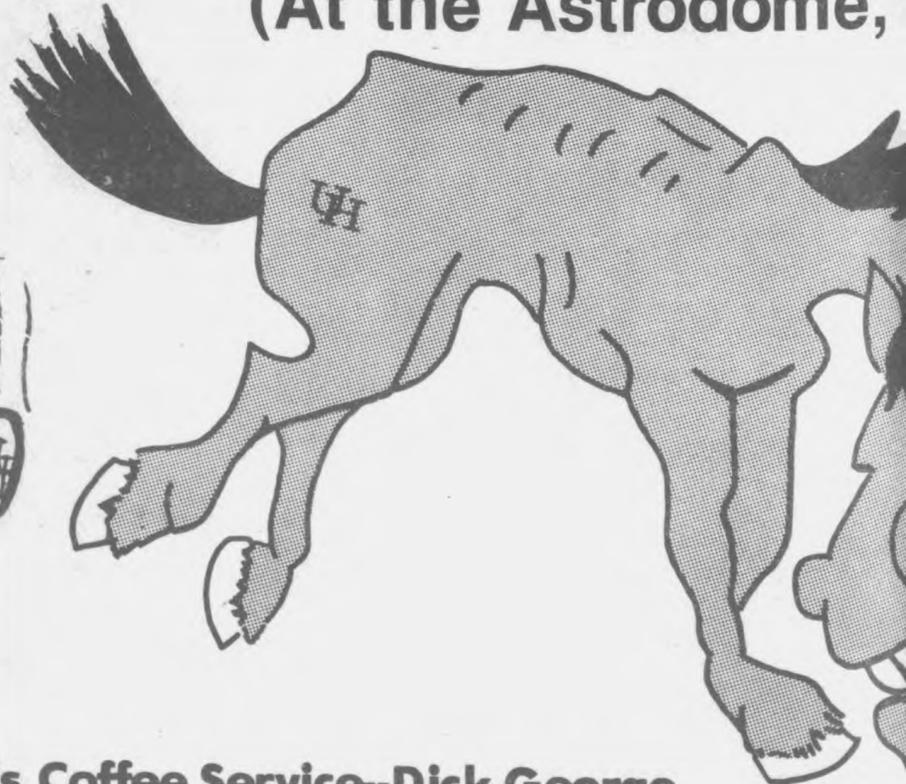

"We can do just as good as last year, but the league is much stronger. Houston will make a bid, because they have an abundance of talent. Texas had possibly the best recruiting year, and Baylor, Texas Tech and Texas A&M will run strong, also," he said. Head Coach Jim Haller of Baylor evaluated his team's stance with Arkansas. "We're approaching the conference race with Arkansas head and shoulders above everyone else. We're going to just try to be a better team each time we step on the court," he said.

"We've got a rough pre-conference schedule, playing teams like Notre Dame, University of San Francisco and Oklahoma. Hopefully, it will provide us with enough experience to make a run for the title," he added.

The Cougars, who open practice Saturday at 9 a.m. in Hofheinz Pavilion and play the national team from Czechoslovakia Nov. 11, return four starters themselves from a 29-8 team.

Senior forward Charles Thompson is the leading returning scorer for the Coogs, averaging 13.2 points per game last season. Center Mike Schultz led the team last year with 9.8 rebounds per game. Also returning as starters for the Coogs are senior guard Mark Trammell and Cecil Rose, a senior guard-forward last season.

Other returning lettermen include forward-guard George Walker; Cedric Fears, a junior forward; sophomore guard Kenneth Williams; Ken Ciolli, a junior guard; sophomore forward Darnell Roper; and Byron Gibson, a sophomore guard.

Newcomers to the team are junior-college transfers Carl Byrd, a guard, and Henry Small, also a guard. Freshman recruits are center Willie Porter and guard Chuck O'Neill.

Frisbee enthusiasts compete in Texas championship meet

Players from all over the state will compete in the second-annual Texas State Frisbee Championship in Milby Park this weekend.

Men and women will show their skills in frisbee-golf, maximum time aloft (MTA), accuracy, throw, run and catch (TR&C), distance and freestyle events, sponsored by the Parks and Recreation Department and the Houston Frisbee Club.

In golf, frisbee-style, players aim and throw the discs at marked regions of a tree trunk and around various obstacles.

Maximum Time Aloft is a test where the disc is thrown one-handed, in a boomerang fashion, and caught one-handed upon its descent. A player is timed from the moment the disc leaves his hands to the moment it returns.

In accuracy, each player is given 28 chances to throw his disc through a hoop (the size of two hulah hoops) from different angles and distances. Dan Rodick holds the world record of 20 out of 28 tries.

A player throws his frisbee, runs with it and catches it in the throw, run and catch competition. In this event, players strive for yardage.

In distance skills, a player also throws for maximum yardage.

No admission will be charged to spectators, but anyone interested in competing must pay a $5 entree fee to cover the cost of a shirt and frisbee disc. Registration for the championship is 8-9 a.m.

Plaques will go to the top men and women competitors in these events.

Cougar tales

This is UH's 32nd annual homecoming game. The Cougars have a 16-12-3 homecoming record and have lost just three homecoming games since Bill Yeoman became head coach in 1962. SMU was the last team to beat the Coogs on homecoming. The Ponies won 26-16 in 1975.

Running back Alois Blackwell needs only one yard to become the ninth Cougar ever to rush for 1,700 or more yards in a career. Blackwell's 1,699 yard mark is right behind Tommy Mozisek (1969-71), who finished with 1,708 yards.

Fullback Dyrail Thomas needs just 16 yards to hit the one thousand mark for his career.

Cash Birdwell, a former student assistant to UH's Tom Wilson, is now the SMU head trainer.

The "H" Association will sponsor a pre-game party at 5:30 p.m. in the Astrodome Club.

Historian predicts city's future

Will speak at area library

By PATRICIA FUHRER
Features Writer

Dr. Barry J. Kaplan, UH assistant professor of history, unlocked his office door, pushed past his golden retriever, "Sam," and began talking about the need for citizens "to be involved in and aware of what's going on here in the city."

Kaplan, an "American urban historian," will give his speech, "The American City: Where are We Going? at two Houston public libraries today and Monday.

He will help his listeners understand the present in terms of the past. "We try to figure the factors and variables that created trends," Kaplan said recently. "Then, using those trends, we see if we might be able to have some ideas about the future."

"I use possibilities," the bearded, booted professor said. "I don't make predictions and I don't have any panaceas."

Kaplan uses three basic scenarios to describe urban futures. In each, he makes assumptions which he ranks according to probability.

First, Kaplan assumes continuation of the present trend toward outward expansion, with the inner city decaying and losing economic viability. Because the emphasis is on private automobiles, the city assumes a "doughnut" shape with a ring of suburbs and stores around a core of poverty. Kaplan's possible solutions call for creation of green parks and industrial parks in central areas where present buildings are unsalvageable.

The second set of assumptions includes an increasing energy shortage and continuation of the trend toward inner-city renewal. Areas such as the Heights and Montrose command premium prices because mass transportation is unavailable and cars and gasoline cost more, Kaplan said.

The third scenario involves shifting emphasis from the automobile. Kaplan assumes the city will become "multi-nucleated," a series of mini-cities linked by freeways. However, with-in areas such as Greenway Plaza or the medical center, the emphasis will be on small-scale rapid transit, he said.

Kaplan will present these and other considerations at 2:15 p.m. today at the Central Library, 500 McKinney.

Monday, Kaplan will speak at 2 p.m. at the Smith branch, 3624 Scott St., across from UH parking area 6A.

Each talk will be followed by a question and answer session. The programs are free and students are welcome.

Gwen Andrews, left, receives some of her prizes from Daily Cougar columnist Paul Scott Malone after winning "Flip Side" story writing contest. Andrews' conclusion to Malone's story appeared in yesterday's Cougar. Andrews won two tickets to the UH-UT football game, books and about a dozen records. In addition to the winning story the judges decided one story submitted by Pat Fuhrer, a staff writer, deserved honorable mention. Fuhrer's conclusion to the story appears below.

Where does Walter go from here?

Nowhere.

Walter stays in the personnel department until he gets his first son at 29, his first daughter at 31, his first mistress at 37, his first heart attack at 43, his gold watch at 65.

Then Walter stays home until he gets his first stroke at 67, his second stroke at 69, his second heart attack at 71.

When Walter is 73, his wife tearfully asks the doctor to turn off the respirator, "so dear Walter won't suffer any more, poor thing."

Then the young woman from Milwaukee, who captured Walter in Houston, spends the rest of her days preserving the memory of her husband of 46 years.

Every afternoon she tells "the girls" at the bridge table how Walter used to call her every day at noon to see how she was . . . and to tell her "I love you."

HAPPENINGS

Sat. . . Sun. . . Mon. . .

The Westheimer Colony Art Festival and Association will host its annual art festival from 10 a.m. to dusk, Saturday and Sunday on Westheimer from Brazos Street to Montrose Boulevard.

The festival includes original art works by artists from all over the country. Each work has been selected by a panel of four jurists.

There will be a variety of works from beadwork, acrylics, leatherwork and stained glass to woodwork.

The Colony expects more than 400,000 people to visit the festival throughout the weekend.

For information call 521-0133.

The Houston Grand Opera will present Rossini's "Tancredi" at 8 p.m. Sunday in Jones Hall.

"Tancredi" has not been performed in the United States in 160 years. The new critical edition by Phillip Grossett stars the famous mezzo-soprano Marilyn Horne.

For tickets and information, contact Linda Burton-Branson, 227-1287.

The Houston Opera Studio will present its first public performance at 8 p.m. Saturday in Dudley Recital Hall in the Fine Arts Building.

Members of the Opera Studio have been chosen through national auditions and will perform arias and ensembles by Gounod, Stravinsky, Charpentier, Verdi, Mozart, Puccini, Floyd and Gershwin.

The Houston Opera Studio is a joint venture between the UH School of Music and the Houston Grand Opera. It provides training and performance opportunities for singers.

Frank Corsaro, noted stage and opera director, teaches members acting techniques while Elena Nilolaidi, a leading concert and operatic mezzo-soprano, teaches vocal production. The students study vocal repertoire with Jean Mallandaine, chief coach of the Glyndebourne Festival Opera.

For tickets and more information contact Mariam Strane, 749-3796.

The Alley Theatre, 615 Texas Ave., will present Frederick Schiller's "Mary Stuart," at 8 tonight and at 5 and 9 p.m. Saturday.

"Mary Stuart" involves the 16th century romantic confrontation between the two most powerful women in the world, Queen Elizabeth of England and Mary Queen of Scots. It is a thundering historical drama aswirl with intrigue, melodrama and passion.

The Alley is also presenting through Thursday an exhibit of more than 30 paintings, drawings and sculptures created by women. The exhibit is the Alley's contribution to International Women's Year. It is open to the public free of charge.

The drama has student discount tickets available at the Saturday shows. For information call 228-9341.

Miller Theater Advisory Council, Texas Commerce Medical Bank and South Main Center Association will sponsor the Houston Jazz Society in a midday concert at Miller Outdoor Theater in Hermann Park.

The Houston Jazz Society is one of the finest jazz groups in Houston, blending big band jazz sound with innovative contemporary improvisations.

At dusk, the theater will show

"The Godfather Part II", starring Al Pacino, Robert DeNiro and Diane Keaton.

All events at the theater are free. Free transportation on specially marked buses will carry passengers to and from Miller Theater between 11:15 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. at 15 minute intervals from various locations in the city. Performances will go on, rain or shine.

For transportation information call 222-3576.

Program Council will present Grateful Dead in concert at 7:30 tonight in Hofheinz Pavilion.

The Grateful Dead, led by Jerry Garcia, are known for their acid-rock music and the performances they give.

St. More still defying Henry

By DEBBIE PARISI
Entertainment Writer

The Channing Players is a most ambitious group of actors, eager to tackle challenging scripts for a company of its small size. With its current production of "A Man for All Seasons," playing Friday and Saturday through October 22, the challenge is admirably met.

Robert Bolt's play concerns the life and death of Sir Thomas More in 16th century England, when Henry VIII "invited" divorce and Cromwell was on the rise. The contingent point of the action hinges on More's refusal to either approve or denounce Henry's marriage diplomacies.

More (Robert Woodside) is a complex, staunch Catholic who must abide by his own conscience.

Woodside portrays More not only with a genuine understanding of his lofty moral standards, but also with a flair and energy that a man of More's stature surely possessed. Woodside's versatile voice effectively softens in the scenes with More's family and bellows full force as More defies his judges and executors.

Cromwell (Kenn Cullinane) is the main culprit in More's demise, to insure his own good graces with Henry. Cullinane's Cromwell is at moments too satirical but provides an interesting contrast.

Michael Evans as Henry VIII displays the King's aggressiveness as well as his sincere need for More's consent of the divorce. Evans is on stage briefly yet most effective in his portrayal.

Robert West Jr. as the Common Man, was often too unsure of his actions and cues to portray his character's wit and humor. This hindered the show's continuity and smooth flow as this character functions primarily as a unifying agent.

Director, Janis Halliday, has a firm appreciation for the script's pace and tension. On opening night, however, her production was still in need of some polishing.

Little details, which for a historic piece can produce authenticity, can break the atmosphere created if they are overlooked. This was unfortunately the case in "A Man for All Seasons" as a Cricket lighter was repeatedly and blatantly used to light the castle's candles!

The Channing Players' production of "A Man for All Seasons," contains just a few shaky details which will probably be secured through the show's run. Despite this, the presentation is swift paced and endowed with several competent actors.

Oliver Reed and Alan Bates have an only partly friendly wrestling match, in Ken Russell's sensually evocative "Women in Love." The 1970 adaptation of D.H. Lawrence's novel plays at 1 p.m. today in the Pacific Room, UC Underground and at 7:30 p.m. in Agnes Arnold Auditorium I.

Monty Python film has Houston premiere today on UH campus

By LOUIS PARKS
Entertainment Editor

MONTY PYTHON MEETS BEYOND THE FRINGE

Director: Roger Gravel; at 3 and 9 p.m. and midnight, today and Saturday at Cullen Auditorium; a PC presentation.

To really enjoy "Monty Python Meets Beyond the Fringe," which has its Houston premiere today, one must accept a few non-cinematic aspects of the film. Once that's done, any of the army of "Monty" fiends should find plenty to keep them laughing.

First and primarily, the film is a cinema record of a stage benefit given by the Monties, another British off-beat-humor group, Beyond the Fringe and other English comics.

Furthermore, as one might assume from the above, the film is a series of blackout skits, rather than a story with plot and direction. This should not prove too bothersome to Python fans.

Finally, the cinematography and sound are sufficient to tell the story, but that is about it. You have to listen close to a decipher some of those heavy British accents.

Despite these drawbacks, the film had the audience literally screaming with laughter at its Texas premiere in Austin last month. It was obvious from the first that the crowd had the advantage of being enthusiasts before coming into the theater.

The film opens with an all-time Python favorite, "The Dead Parrot Bit." The story of a man returning a deceased, passed on, ceased-to-be, ex-parrot, to the pet shop is so familiar that both the stage and film audience were laughing and applauding at the mere sight of the skit's only prop, a bird cage with a dead bird, held by John Cleese of Monty.

From there it is one skit after another, almost all very funny favorites, requiring only an off-beat sense of humor to be appreciated. The range varies from essays on pie throwing to satires of Shakespeare.

Among the better additional comics involved are Eleanor Bron, doing a satire of the "this-great-cause-we-are-working-for" speech and Peter Cook, one of the writers of "Bedazzled," whose sharp odd-ball wit fits right in.

The most enjoyable aspect of "Monty Python Meets Beyond the Fringe," is probably seeing these familiar comics play to a live audience. Their old routines take on a funny dimension when the fluffs and crack-ups are included.

Nostalgia is becoming the big business of the future. Bits of the past are being packaged in neat little bundles and placed under a sign that says: "Youth and vitality instantly restored."

Currently the most obvious period to get this treatment, as anyone who has seen yo-yo's like "Laverne and Shirley" and the Fonze can testify, is the 50s. Why the 50s? "Why not," a studio executive might remark while counting the proceeds from his Fonze dolls.

Now, there was nothing wrong with bobby socks and ducktails when they were a fresh idea. But when they are pressed into a "fun" mold today, their fond memories can begin to crumble. Once you begin dancing around as the thing you wish to relive, it may not live up to past expectations.

When someone virtually froths at the mouth about all the chances lost to run around and show off one's white socks at the hop, hop, hop, or slick back one's ducktail, then something must be missing from the creation of fads today.

Every generation has the responsibility to create fads that can be looked back on in later years with fondness. But looking around my room, and then running out and looking around a department store, I am not able to find one thing I will want to look back on later. As a matter of fact, I found a couple of things I wouldn't care to take a second look at today.

I don't consider this my fault, but point an accusing finger at the manufacturers and movie studios. They have always created things in the past (Hoola-hoops, Godzilla movies and Silly Putty) worth looking back on.

But these clever people are slipping up. What we need today is the invention of something as classic and timeless as a Coke bottle.

The 60s, I suppose, will have to be my nostalgia. This is all right, beach movies were harmless, but there is one thing about this that disturbs me. I am afraid all my nostalgia is going to be prefaced by Dick Clark.

I don't know how many times I can look at old pictures of "American Bandstand." I feel like yelling, "Alright Dick, I already know what you looked like back then. You had greasy hair and wore a funny suit, so stop torturing me with all those pictures."

Yes, I know Dick Clark knew a lot of famous people "way back when" and can entice Frankie Avalon and Annette Funicello onto the beach again for a special, but does he have to be in all the old film clips?

In case you haven't guessed, I watched "Dick Clark's Good Old Days," (a Dick Clark production) the other night. Out of the two hours there was such trivia revived as Fabian wandering around a beach with a, "I used to be a teen idle, so where are all the groupies when I need them," look on his face.

There was Edd "Kookie" Byrnes standing around in front of a restaurant and running into old cast members from "Leave it to Beaver." And yes, there was an endless number of long since forgotten singers doing, once again, what never managed to make them a household word in the first place.

But as the wise old sage once said, "I saw the nostalgia and the hype and the man named Clark, and now I think I will wash my car. I have had my fill of the past."

MAGAZINE
Sherbert
MCA, 2304

Sherbert is a delicious new rock group from Australia, and the album is one of the most immediately listenable pieces of vinyl I've heard all year.

The vocals are well blended. The orchestration befits their ballads, and the album conveys a constant enjoyment of strong material and quite adequate musicianship.

One of the most impressive things about the album, is that there is not a grating abruptness between songs. They seem to flow into each other.

Even though there is a great variety of material, there is a definite mood which merges the songs on both sides.

It is obvious that a great deal of thought was put into the production of each piece, and each song contains a "fullness" which escapes most well-known material today.

Sherbert's new songs leave a good taste in your mouth, and they contain enough commercial potential to attract a moderate amount of airplay from local radio stations. The album is palatable for discerning listeners, yet their music reserves the distinction of being inoffensive, commercially acceptable and not (gasp!) aimed at the typical top-forty mentality.

RED BLUFF

Hwy. 225 & Red Bluff Rd.
Pasadena 472-0181
Opens 6:30 p.m.

Thinks college is one big time-out.
Holds school record for most games played.
Once managed to drop 7 passes and 3 courses in same day.
Cal drinks Lite Beer from Miller because it's less filling.
With his schedule he can't afford to get filled up.
Today he has to be in two places at once.
Insists on playing center and quarterback.
Spends spare time going to class.

Lite® Beer from Miller.
Everything you always wanted in a beer. And less.
