NCAA Honor Roll

Program recognizes past, present student-athletes

Bill Cosby, five current student-athletes and five former student-athletes were honored at this year's NCAA honors luncheon held during the Association's 76th annual Convention in Houston in January.

Cosby received the NCAA's highest honor, the Theodore Roosevelt Award. The award is named for the 26th President of the United States, who was the individual most responsible for implementing the organization of the NCAA.

While attending Temple University, Cosby participated in track and field, basketball and football. Although he was a second-string fullback in football, his best sport was track. A versatile performer, he scored at various times in the high jump, shot put, low hurdles, javelin and discus. He also won the Middle Atlantic Conference high jump title in 1962.

The "Teddy" is presented annually to a prominent American "for whom competitive athletics in college and attention to physical well-being thereafter have been important factors in a distinguished career of national significance and achievement."

Previous winners include former President Dwight D. Eisenhower; Senator Leverett Saltonstall; Supreme Court Justice Byron R. White; Purdue University President Frederick L. Hovde; Jerome H. Holland, ambassador to Sweden and last year's winner, Art Linkletter.

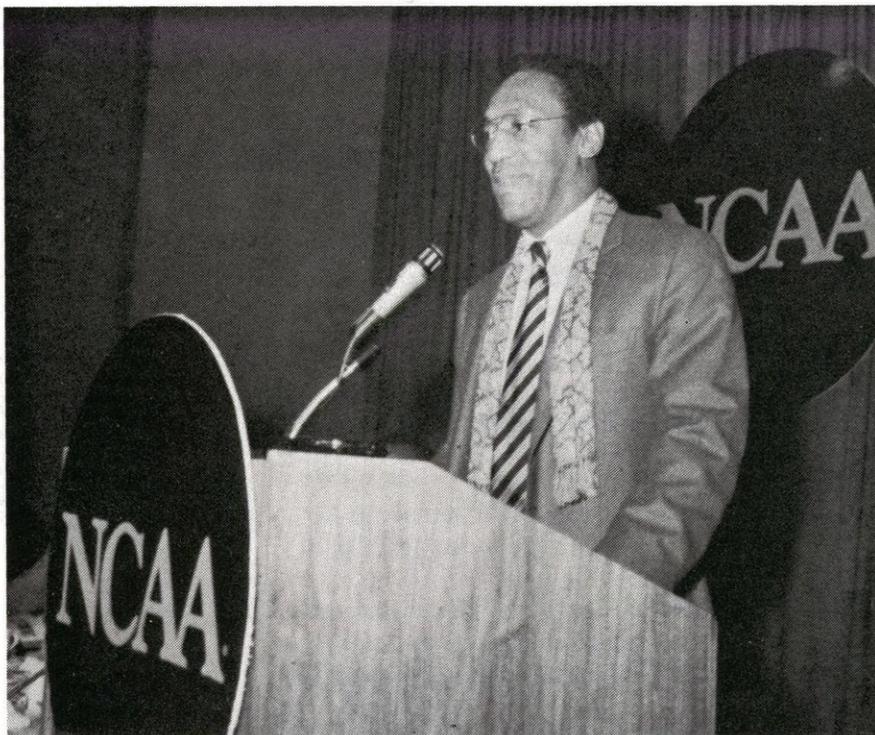

Also honored at the luncheon were five current and past student-athletes.

The NCAA recognized five outstanding student-athletes who completed their college eligibility in 1981. Two football players, two swimmers and a women's basketball player were honored.

Ken Sims, a defensive tackle for the University of Texas, was the winner of the Lombardi Award in 1981, emblematic of the outstanding lineman. Sims also was named to an all-America team for the third straight year.

Oliver Luck, a quarterback at West Virginia University, accumulated 6,150 yards of total offense during his career, a WVU record, and led the Mountaineers to a 9-3 record and Peach Bowl win in 1981. Luck is a two-time academic all-America and a National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame Scholar-Athlete.

The two swimmers honored were Par

Arvidsson of the University of California and Rowdy Gaines of Auburn University. Arvidsson captured a gold medal at the 1980 Olympics while competing for his native Sweden and is the world-record holder in the 100-meter butterfly. Gaines was a member of the U.S. Olympic team and won five NCAA individual swimming championships.

The first woman to receive a Today's Top Five award was Lynette Woodard, a basketball standout at the University of Kansas. Woodard set a national career scoring record of 3,646 points during four years as a Jayhawk and was a three-time all-America selection.

Silver Anniversary awards were presented to five former student-athletes who have accomplished distinguished careers. They were honored on their 25th anniversary after college graduation.

All five played football and three of the five also played basketball.

Jimmy Brown is recognized as one of the greatest players in the history of football, but also starred in basketball and lacrosse at Syracuse University. Brown went on to the NFL and since retiring has enjoyed an excellent career in acting.

A two-time captain of the Grambling Tigers, Willie Davis went on to greater fame with the Green Bay Packers. Davis played on five world championship teams and never missed a game. Davis currently owns the Willie Davis Distributing Company and is a member of the Joseph Schlitz Brewing Company board of directors.

Jack Kemp was an all-America at Occidental College and went on to quarterback the Buffalo Bills to AFL championships in 1964 and 1965. His jersey—No. 15—is retired in the Pro Football Hall of Fame. Kemp is currently a member of the U.S. Congress from the state of New York.

Another Green Bay Packer great, Ron Kramer, was a football and basketball star at the University of Michigan. Kramer caught 53 passes from his tight end position in college and led the Wolverines in scoring in basketball his junior and senior years. Kramer is currently vice-president of Paragon Steel Corporation.

The final honoree was Jim Swink, former Texas Christian University running back. Swink is the only TCU player to rush for over 1,000 yards in a season. Swink also was a two-year letterman in basketball. He is currently an orthopedic surgeon and chief of surgery at All Saints Hospital in Fort Worth.

UH Central Campus

Framed by Houston's central business district to the north, ship channel industries to the east, Astrodome sports and Galleria shopping to the west, and Gulf coastal plain to the south, the University of Houston is clearly in the hub and thriving on the spirit of the nation's fastest growing city.

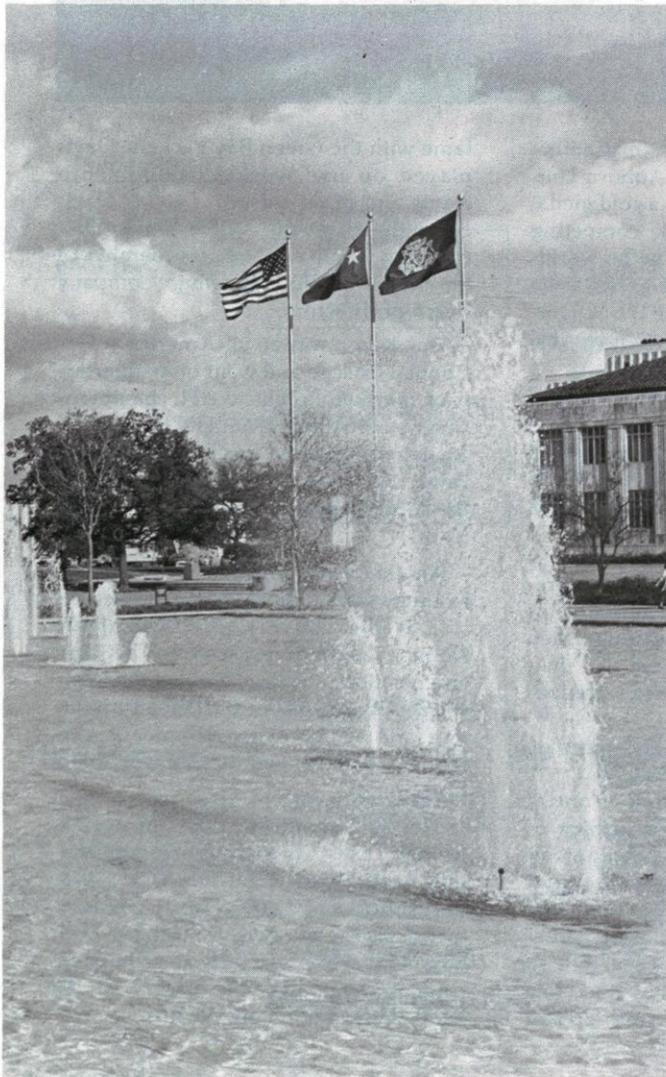

UH has expanded rapidly in its 55-year history; the central campus, the pacesetter for the four-campus UH System, now serves more than 30,000 students.

With 390 acres of plazas, parks, lawns, fountains and sculpture surrounding its 86 major buildings, the university is recognized as one of the most beautiful urban campuses in the nation. Most important, though, is the teaching, learning and research going on inside those buildings.

Devoted to the cause of excellence, progress and opportunity, UH offers a wide range of academic programs, flexible class scheduling, innovative graduate studies, cultural events and activities, specialized continuing studies for professional enrichment and promotes research and external services aimed at improving the day-to-day lives of Houston-area residents.

About Volleyball

SOME FACTS YOU SHOULD KNOW

- There are six people on a team—no more nor no less are allowed on their side of the playing court when the game is under way.
- The object of the game is to have the ball strike the floor on the opponent's side of the court.
- On any given play, each team has a maximum of 3 hits to accomplish this objective. They may take less than 3 hits—never more.
- A player may not make contact with the ball twice in succession. The 3 plays that are exempt from this rule are: (1) successive contacts by blockers, (2) simultaneous contacts by teammates, (3) simultaneous contacts by opponents. The players participating in any such contacts may strike the ball on the next contact.
- The defensive team attempts to keep the ball from hitting the floor on their side, by blocking it at the net or digging it in the backcourt.
- The ball must be clearly hit. It cannot be thrown.
- A team only makes points when it serves. The serving team keeps the serve as long as they make a point; the opposing team takes over the serve when the serving team fails to make a point—and then they are on the attack. (This is different than tennis where one team serves an entire game, or table tennis where the serve is alternated every 5 points.)
- The first team scoring 15 points, or the most points in 8 minutes of actual playing time, wins the game, provided there is a two-point advantage.

There are many finer points to the game than those outlined above, but if you read these basic rules over a couple of times while you are watching, it will help you better understand what you are seeing.

THE MAN ON THE STAND ISN'T WHISTLE-HAPPY— THAT'S HIS JOB

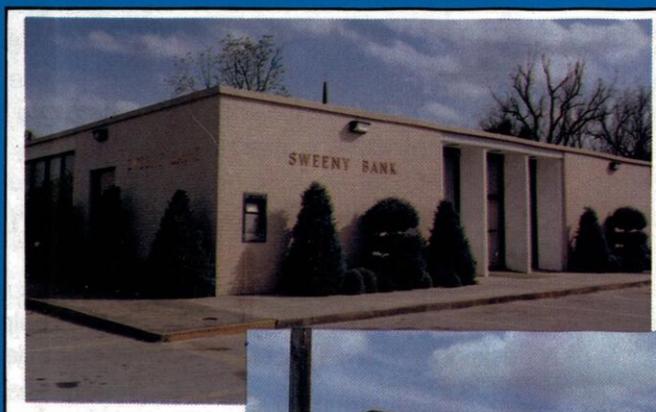

Volleyball is a game of judgment calls. The referee is top man. He has an umpire and linesman to help him, but his decision is law. He will blow his whistle if he detects either a foul, an error, or a disruption of play.

THE 5 MOST FREQUENT WHISTLE STOPS

1. Bad serve. The server must hit the ball into the opponent's area. If it goes out of bounds, or touches the net in any manner, the whistle blows and the other side has a serving opportunity.
2. Ball not hit cleanly. The ball must be cleanly hit. When in the opinion of the official the ball came visibly to rest at contact, the whistle blows and a foul is called.
3. Ball hit out of bounds. Many times this is a close decision. If the ball strikes any part of the line marking the outer perimeter of the court—the ball is good. If it misses, the man blows his whistle.
4. More than 3 hits. The maximum number of allowable hits for any one team on a play is three. If in the official's opinion there were more than 3 hits—he toots. That is why you will hear blockers yelling "no" at the net, to indicate they did not touch the ball on the block and his team knows they have 3 hits coming.
5. Backcourt Spike. The men in the backcourt cannot spike the ball unless they are at least 10 feet behind the net. If they do, it is a foul, regardless of whether it lands safely on the opponent's side of the court or not.
