

TONI MAYES, almost a full-fledged female, spoke to Dr. James McCary's psychology class Thursday about her (his?) life as a transsexual.

Soon-to-be female explains transsexual modifications

By ALAN HILTON

Once again Dr. James McCary, UH psychology professor, offered students a look into the life of a transsexual Thursday in his "Marriage, Family and Sex Education" class.

Toni Mayes is a male about to become a full-fledged female. She explained her life as a transsexual to the 1,000 member class.

"A transsexual is understood to be one who has changed one's sex from male to female through surgery," Mayes said. "A transvestite only dresses the part of the opposite sex on occasion."

She explained a person can be a transsexual without undergoing surgery by "living everyday as a female."

She complied with a student's request to walk down the aisle in the Ezekiel Cullen Auditorium so that everyone could "get a good look at her."

Later, she answered questions concerning her change. She said she choose to use the women's restroom because "no one notices." "If I used a men's room, they would probably try to rape me and be very disappointed," she said.

Mayes was scheduled to appear in court Thursday for a charge of "impersonating a female." She said she was arrested five weeks ago when she went to the Houston jail to get a friend released. The case was later dismissed.

Mayes and McCary both appeared on a segment of the Steve Edwards Show last week. The format of the show allows for questions from the studio audience and the home audience as well.

Mayes said she will enter her final phase towards becoming a complete woman when her operations begin. "This could be as early as the first week in December," Mayes said. "By then, I will have finished one year under the influence of female hormones," she added.

T&S arrests state mental case in UC

They took Bill Patterson away Thursday morning.

Officer George Hayes of UH Traffic and Security (T&S) talked him out of the UC into a Houston police squad car.

Larry Fultz, director of T&S, said Patterson is an escaped patient from Austin State Mental Hospital. His story began early Thursday when customers and workers in the Cougar Bookstore, 4371 Calhoun, noticed him.

"He was wandering around, saying incoherent things," Mike Webb, bookstore manager, said. Webb called the Houston Police Department, but Patterson left the store before the officers arrived.

"The Houston policemen didn't want to go onto the UH campus unless called," Webb said, "but they decided to drive through campus anyway." Webb notified T&S to assist them.

Meanwhile, Patterson attracted some attention in a UH parking lot by looking into parked cars, Fultz said.

Patterson wandered into the UC lobby, turning over cigarette ashtrays and asking incoherent questions, Bill Scott, director of UC administrations, said. He added, T&S officers don't usually enter the UC without notification, but they did so to assist the Houston officers in asking Patterson to leave.

T&S turned him over to the Houston officers immediately. "As soon as he was put into the Houston police patrol car, he began to eat the ashes in the ash tray," Fultz said.

Patterson was taken to Ben Taub Hospital by the Houston officers. A hospital spokesman said Patterson was admitted at 9:12 a.m.

"He is under observation, but there is no hold on him. The psychiatrist will decide if he will be set free," a spokesman said.

Business, UH form liaison

The College of Business Administration will begin a new program for improved liaison between the Houston business community and UH, Dr. Charles F. Jones, dean of the business school, announced Tuesday.

The program will give businessmen a chance to help guide business students in their career preparation, Jones said.

Also, businessmen and faculty could discuss the role of business in society, and the faculty could be used for research projects and post-experience training, he said.

Member firms would be asked to contribute a minimum of $500 annually, Jones said.

Company representatives would meet with junior and senior business students to discuss the duties and opportunities involved in specific jobs such as marketing for an oil company, auditing for a bank or managing personnel for a retail store, Jones said.

were turned on. Several students took advantage of the cool water to relieve themselves of the heat.

FUNDS CUT

Magazines face extinction

Unless UH Pres. Philip Hoffman finds the funds to meet their $2,000 budget request, The Harvest and Hippocrene, literary and poetry magazines, will no longer exist on campus.

The decisive meeting will come Monday when Hoffman meets with the Board of Regents. This summer the committee recommended the fees not be used to fund The Houstonian yearbook, the UH debate team, Reader's Theater and Harvest.

Because of "letters and phone calls" against the action, Hoffman announced Wednesday the administration would find the necessary funds for the debate team.

Kit van Cleave, editor of Harvest, said the entire staff and sponsors of the magazine were "shocked" by the news. "Hoffman will be out of town until Monday, so we won't have any time to plead our case," she said. "I can't believe we have been voted out of existence by five students," Van Cleave said Thursday.

The end of Harvest will end the magazines' 40-year history at UH. Last year's Harvest budget was $1,872.

Van Cleave said the fall issues of Harvest and Hippocrene will be on sale in the UC Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. She invites students with questions about Harvest to come by the table and talk to Harvest workers.

Members of the fee allocation committee include Paul Rogers, Students' Association president; Jim Moriarity, former SA senator; Maria Jimenez, former SA president; Judith Abbott; Jim Schmidt; Larry Markley, staff representative; Dr. Joseph Schnitzen, acting dean of students; and Treadway Brogdon, UH treasurer.

Tower speaks

U.S. Sen. John Tower (R-Tex.) will speak at noon Monday in Krost Hall, Bates College of Law. He will respond to questions from the student audience.

Barefoot Sanders, Tower's opponent in the November election, is scheduled to speak November 1.

All UH students are invited to both forums (which are) jointly sponsored by the UH Student Bar Association and Dean John B. Neibel, College of Law.

EDITORIAL

a long time coming

UH Pres. Philip G. Hoffman wanted to know what students were thinking this week concerning the allocation of over $1 million of their student services fees.

He had to rely on the student members of the fee allocations committee to give him their so-called expert opinion on the mood of the students.

To think those five students know what the mood of this campus is—is a false assumption. They come no where near representing UH's student body.

The five were appointed by a Students' Association (SA) president who was elected by a miniscule 1,554 votes. Out of a population of over 26,000, that's a pretty tiny percentage.

This campus is so large, no one group of students can speak for another. No one organization or service, be it the yearbook, Program Council or SA, can say it serves all the students, or even a majority of them.

If the day should ever arrive when all students vote in elections and all students take an active interest in their life on campus, then a group of five SA-appointed committee members will be able to speak for all other students.

But that day is a long time coming on this campus.

AN WE'D LIKE TO APOLOGIZE BY SHARIN' A SIX PACK WITH EACH AN EVER ONE OF YEW SWEET LIL' THANGS...

equal time

To the Editor:

As you know, the Student Services Fees Allocation and Planning Committee has recommended that The Harvest, UH literary magazine, be deprived of its budget for the 1972-73 school year. This decision, according to Paul Rogers, Students' Association president, and a member of the five-member committee, was made in three days, without notification to Sylvan Karchmer, our faculty sponsor, or any of the staff of the magazine.

The Harvest has served the student community of UH for almost 40 years. Donald Barthelme, who has brought fame to Houston through his novels and short stories published in The New Yorker magazine, first published in The Harvest, as have many other literary talents from our university and our city.

After reading of the suggested demise of The Harvest in The Daily Cougar (for this was the only notification received by anyone connected with The Harvest), I contacted Paul Rogers and was told that it was suggested to invite the staff and faculty sponsor, but that this idea was rejected by the committee. In short, without the barest hint of due process, without an opportunity to provide any information about the number of student submissions we receive each semester, without any opportunity to explain the validity and quality of the university's only literary outlet, we have been voted out of existence by five students. We of the staff feel that such action is unthinkable on a free university campus; it is not representative of the student body and censors those on the campus who are involved in learning the essentials of the creative and literary and art-photographic act.

As Aleksander Solzhenitsyn so eloquently stated in his Nobel Prize speech, the elimination of outlets for individual expression is one of the early methods of bending the individual to the will of the state. Shall UH lead the pack in dimming the lights of literature on the campuses of America?

Kit van Cleave
Editor, The Harvest

To the Editor:

I found the letter that appeared in the September 20, 1972 issue of the Daily Cougar by Lynn Reynolds (228291) to be very disheartening and not at all reasonable.

Reynolds expressed extreme remorse toward the behavior of construction workers at various sites on our campus. Apparently, they harass her by making lewd comments concerning her anatomy.

I dare say there are a number of male students (far exceeding the number of construction workers) on campus that make similar remarks, as well as stand under stairways, etc. Evidently, the issue in question isn't what is being said, but who is saying it. Perhaps if those same construction workers were a few years younger, and would be seen carrying textbooks, their comments would be acceptable and perhaps even flattering.

Secondly, I find Reynolds' reference to the construction workers as men with "grizzly leather faces" and "undressing eyes and beer guts" to be very general and unfair. I have stood on the other side of a construction fence and can honestly say it is no picnic having to dig holes and work in sweltering heat amidst mud and tar. I feel extremely fortunate to be in school and would wager that any of those "beer gutted" construction workers would give anything to be in Reynolds' position—to live with the promise of a clean and prestigious life, as life has not been as fortunate to them.

Indeed, we on this side of the fence find it too easy to ridicule and look down upon the less fortunate on the other side, not realizing it could have easily been one of us.

To the Editor:

Why do landscape artists insist on laying out sidewalks in right angles? For every two sidewalks that meet perpendicular to each other there is usually a well-worn diagonal path through the grass approaching the same intersection.

Why not wait until after construction to pave the sidewalks and then lay them along the paths made by students' feet.

No one wants to walk in squares if they have to go from one side of the campus to the other.

Pollution agency hears testimony

By ROBERT OCHOA
Asst. News Editor

The newly-created Interim Committee on Solid Waste Disposal headed by State Reps. Vernon Stewart and Joe Hubenak heard testimony from Houston and vicinity pollution control agencies on the state of pollution laws and the development of waste disposal Thursday.

The hearing was the first of its kind. Jack McDaniel, director of the Department of Solid Waste Management spoke on the necessity of one single department with the authority to act and rule on all aspects of environmental control and pollution standards.

A long and detailed report given by Dr. Walter A. Quebedeaux, director of Harris County's pollution control agency, pointed to the deficiency of unity and coordination among the various agencies in the state.

"We think adequate controls already exist but we don't feel we need another control agency," McDaniel said. He said cities and counties need one agency to look to in order to remove the confusion created in differing pollution standards, rulings and areas of jurisdiction in environment-control violations.

He said the capability to effectively handle solid waste is already available. He cited the recycling station at the site of the old Compose Plant on Lawndale Blvd. which is contracted to handle 500 tons of solid waste per day.

The development of this system will be determined by its effectiveness, he said. Presently the best method is incineration as the Holmes Road incinerator does, at the rate of 250 tons of solid waste per day.

The House of Representatives' Interim Committee will report to the legislature the existing condition of inter-relations of these pollution control agencies relative to their effectiveness in maintaining federal pollution standards.

THE MEMBERS of the Interim Committee on Solid Waste Disposal held a hearing for Houston pollution control agencies Thursday. Members of the panel are (l to r) County Commissioner Bill Elliot and State Reps. Vernon Stewart and Joe Hubenak.

SCHOLARSHIPS

Japanese aid researchers

Consul General of Japan, Mitsutaro Kataoka, has informed the Office of Scholarships and Financial Aid of the availability of Japanese Government Scholarships for research students in 1973.

"Any student wishing to apply for the scholarship must be an American citizen, have a bachelor's degree by January 1973 and have a definite and concise area of research for any field in mind," Mrs. Paige Arnold, secretary to the Consul General, said.

Applicants do not need to know how to speak Japanese, but, if selected, they will be required to take a test in Japanese for classification purposes, Arnold said. "Those students who do not know how to speak Japanese will take a six-month course in the language," she added.

Arnold said not more than 20 students from the United States will receive the scholarships, but "as many students may apply as want."

Application forms may be obtained from the Consulate General of Japan, 504 First City National Bank Building, 1021 Main St. The deadline for applying for the scholarships is October 13.

Hurricanes host hungry Cougars

By MIKE STACY
Sports Editor

The last time UH lost their first two games was 1969, and then the Cougars, led by an unknown sophomore by the name of Gary Mullins, won nine straight and then whipped Auburn in the Bluebonnet Bowl.

Now the 1972 Cougars, 0-2, travel to Tulsa, Okla., to battle the Tulsa Hurricanes in search of their first win and maybe more.

Tulsa, 1-1, defeated Wichita State last week 10-9, but that same Wichita team was soundly beaten year. In fact, they have a good running attack which should help that great passing game they always have."

That running game is paced by the duo of Raymond Rhodes and Ed White. Rhodes had had two consecutive 100 yard games while White had 89 last week against Wichita State.

Yeoman has a few surprises in store for the Hurricanes Saturday and that includes the promotion of a freshman griddy up to varsity, a first ever at UH.

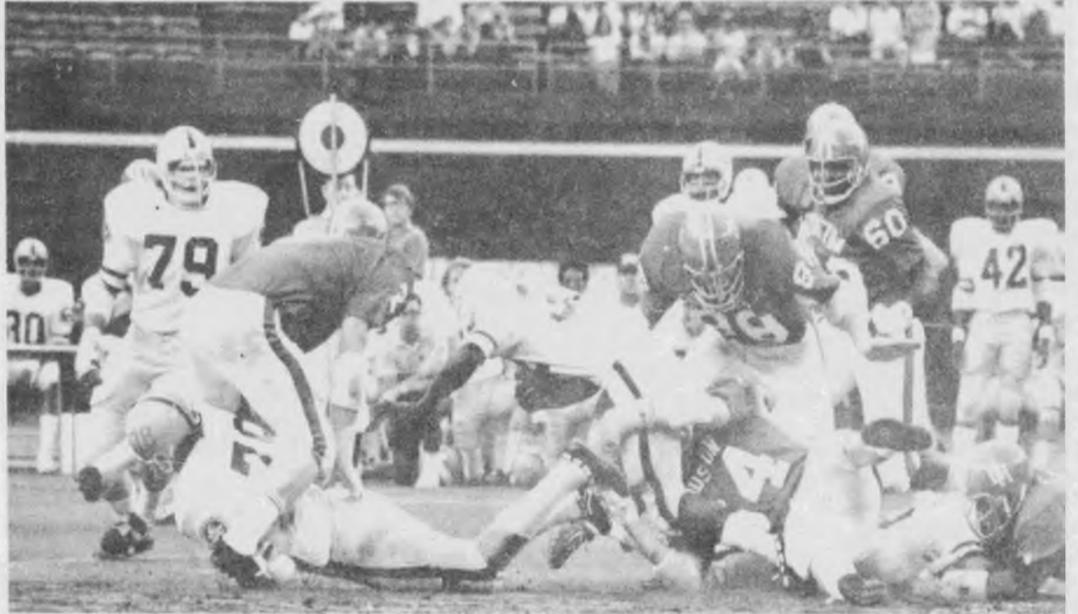

Defensive tackle, Everett Little, a 6-5, 285 pounder from Lufkin, will make the trip to Tulsa and Yeoman expects to give Little some playing time behind tackle Steve George.

"Little could be a great football player for us with some more time and work, but he's been doing such a great job scrimmaging against the varsity that we just had to move him up," Yeoman said.

"Little has been doing so good that no one on the squad can go one-on-one against the freshman. He's just that strong," Yeoman added.

Yeoman also plans to look at a lot of different running backs since fullback Leonard Parker is still considered doubtful with an injured ankle.

Puddin Jones and Milton Ward will start but sophomores

UH MADDOG DEFENSE, paced by Steve George (88), Larry Keller (64) and Bubba Broussard (2), face another tough opponent in the form of the Tulsa Hurricanes

Saturday night. In their first two games, the defense has given up 727 yards, including 498 to powerful Arizona State last Saturday.

Clarence Shelton and Reggie Cherry will take over in the second quarter. Who starts the second half is up to the two runners who play the best.

Quarterback D.C. Nobles is the 12th leading passer in the nation with 415 yards on 31 completions in 64 tries. That averages out to 207.5 yards a game and two touchdowns.

Jones is the leading rusher with 158 yards and a fine 5.4 per carry average. Parker, who has not played since the Rice game, has 125 yards on 34 carries.

Split end Marshall Johnson has snagged 14 aerials for 233 yards and one score. Tight end Marty Watts caught five against Arizona State for 66 yards and one TD.

On defense, sophomore left cornerback Roger Mayes had moved ahead of senior Ronny Peacock and Deryl McGallion and Bill Jones are battling for that middle linebacker position with McGallion holding the slight edge.

Houston needs to win this game and win it big. The Cougars are off next week but face the powerful passing attack of Virginia Tech, October 7.

PREDICTION: Houston will win their first game of the year; too bad Tulsa has to be the team to suffer. Houston 27, Tulsa 9.

LITTLE

by Texas A&M 42-14, two weeks ago. By comparison Tulsa doesn't look that strong, but Cougar Coach Bill Yeoman thinks otherwise.

Kittens fall prey to Owlets 24-14

By STEVE TOTH
Sports Reporter

Recovering five fumbles and time consuming ball control enabled the Rice Owlets to defeat the UH Kittens, 24-14, in the season's opener for both clubs in Rice Stadium last night.

Rice struck early as quarterback Reggie Anderson connected on 72-yard touchdown pass to Gary Cox to put Rice ahead 7-0.

The Kittens started their rash of fumbles when Ken Dunham dropped the ball on the UH 20 and Rice's Tom Moore recovered. Six plays later Rice's Mike Landrum kicked a 22-yard field goal to up the lead 10-0.

UH's Mark Mohr intercepted a pass and returned 46 yards early in the second quarter but a 29 yard field goal attempt by Lennard Coplin was wide.

The Kittens got their first score on a 57-yard drive in 10 plays with Dunham plunging in for the TD. Coplin's PAT was good and the half ended 10-7.

UH went ahead 14-10 on a 46-yard drive in 13 plays with 3:41 left in the third quarter when Barney Williams dove over from the one on a fourth down play.

Late in the quarter Rice completed an 11 play drive to go ahead 17-14 on a four-yard pass from Reed to Troy Squires.

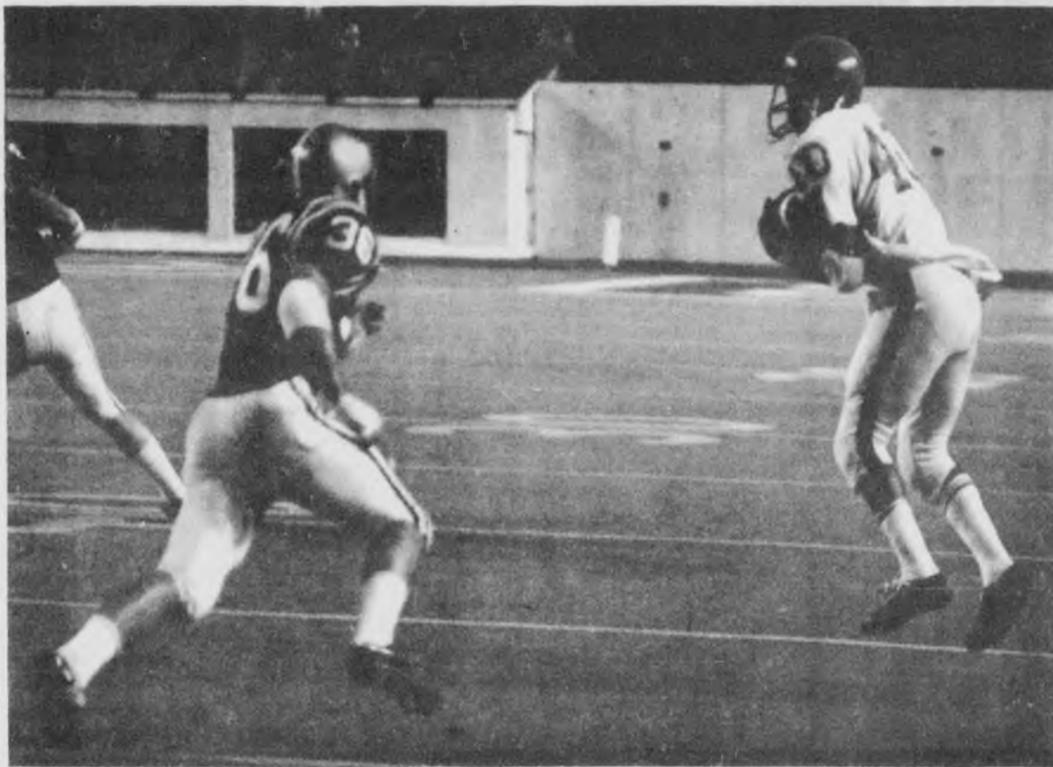

Rice's Claude Reed kept the ball flying in the last quarter and with 7:38 put the last points on the board with a 12-yard pass to Larry Edwards.

The leading rusher for the Kittens was Robert Avery with 59 yards in 14 carries. The primary receiver for the Kittens was Mike Welch with 90 yards on three receptions.

Rice kept the ball moving with 241 of 332 yards in the air, mainly by the second-half passing of Reed.

UH's Lester Saucier completed 9 of 23 passes for 145 yards and had two intercepted.

Losing five of six fumbles killed many of the Kittens' chances of getting back into the ball game.

FRESHMAN RUNNING BACK Robert Avery, (40), hauls in a Lester Saucier pass Kitten 24-14 before 1,500 fans at Rice good for a short gain against the Rice Stadium.

THE SCENE WEST

You have to pay for the privilege

By ALAN HILTON

Traffic and Security is now trying to secure an agreement with the City of Houston for cooperative registration of bicycles.

The agreement would facilitate compliance by UH students with the new ordinance passed recently by City Council which requires all bike owners in Houston to register their bikes by March 31, 1972 for $1 or face a fine of up to $5 for each offense.

If an agreement is reached with the City Council, T&S could incorporate their bicycle registration files into Houston's computer records of bikes registered, stolen or recovered in the entire Houston area, Larry Fultz, director of T&S, said. Though T&S would still maintain their own separate files, they could work with the city's overall listings for the area, and Houston city officials would also benefit from the addition of information gained from UH records.

The Houston City Council has already made plans for fire stations to serve as outlets for bike registration under the new bike ordinance. "I hope they will agree to the idea of the T&S office acting as a substation for bike registration for UH students who ride bicycles on campus," Fultz said.

T&S could cooperate with the city by acting as an additional registration outlet, thus saving the city time and money and also making it easier on UH students. This would also alleviate the problem of duplication faced by having UH students register at T&S for a UH decal and then at a fire station for a City of Houston sticker.

If UH is not included in the city's bicycle registration program, T&S will not bother students for not having a city decal, but will continue to enforce school regulations and urge students to register their bikes, Fultz said. "I expect little difficulty in reaching an agreement with city officials upon bicycle registration," he said.

T&S already has a program for UH students to register their bikes and receive a UH decal at no charge. The student has a better chance of recovering his bike should it be stolen if he registers the bike as soon as he brings it to campus. This is particularly true now, since UH is participating in a new computer files exchange program in Texas made especially for recovery of stolen bikes and apprehension of thieves.

The idea originated at UT early this summer. It involves compiling of computer listings with information received from participating police departments and campus security offices in Texas. Through this program a bike stolen off the UH campus and later sold "hot" at the UT campus or any of the other colleges and towns involved can be quickly returned to the owner, with greater chances of finding out who stole the bike. The plan covers only five-speed and 10-speed bicycles worth $50 or more and identifiable through a serial or registration number, however.

"The new program has definitely been a help in recovering stolen bicycles. We have just recently returned a bike found on the UT campus," Phil Swisher, T&S investigator, said. The new computer exchange procedure is similar to the National Crime Information Center (NCIC), a nationwide program on a much larger scale. NCIC will probably absorb the statewide bike information exchange in the near future, he added.

Forty-four bicycles were reported stolen and six recovered at UH from January through June 1, 1972. However, these figures do not reflect how many bikes are recovered by owners on their own initiative or through other security offices and police departments, Swisher said. If T&S can concur with the City of Houston on registration and information exchange, both parties would have a better idea of how many bikes are actually stolen and how many are recovered, Fultz said.

MAYBE THE new license fees will be used to make bicycle paths so that more people will buy bicycles so that the city can charge more fees.

THIS NEW tax is really nothing to grin about.

EVERYONE should have a portable pollution detector. Dr. Aziz Siddiqi, chemical engineering professor, demonstrates this model. Experiments with it on the Gulf Freeway prove that air pollution doubles during the evening rush hour.

Registration volunteers needed

A non-partisan voter registration drive headed by Debbie Danburg, A&S junior, will be held at 1 p.m. in the OB lobby. From there volunteers will go into minority communities to get persons registered for the November presidential election, Danburg said. "Voter registration forms and instructions will be issued to volunteers," she said. "Car pools will be organized to carry them to and from the communities."

Danburg said free food and music will be offered near OB Hall after the drive for those volunteers who return with filled out registration forms.

"Voter registration is the most important thing that students can do between now and October 6 if they want to influence the November election," Danburg said. "People don't realize that the deadline to register to vote in any election is 30 days prior to that election."

To volunteer for the registration drive contact Bobby Brownstein at 749-4335.
