HEW talk spawns comment

By MARYLYN COLLINS
Cougar Staff

The Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) Conference evoked a lot of questions from University students and faculty

Wednesday. The Conference, which was sponsored by the University and HEW, was entitled "Equal Rights for Students Under the Law."

University practices which conflict with civil rights are sometimes subtle and may occur without the administration's knowledge, Gwendolyn Gregory, assistant to the director of the Office of Civil Rights and keynote speaker, said.

She labeled the practice of admitting Chicanos through special Brown programs, when it is the only way they can be admitted, as discriminatory.

Another potential trouble spot is counseling because "it can keep minorities behind," and aptitude tests can be discriminatory, Gregory said. Other areas in which discriminatory practices are found are health services, dormitories, student teaching and clubs, she added.

A medical school which requires a 3.2 GPA from undergraduate men and a 3.5 GPA from women is an example of civil rights violations that occur everywhere, Gregory said.

Gregory has found other problems in the area of athletics. "If men can fly to cities to participate in sports and eat steaks the night before, then why should a women's sports team be forced to hold bake sales so they can ride a bus to a city?" Gregory said. She named the unequal salaries of female and male coaches as another instance of discrimination.

Concerning dormitory regulations, Gregory said, "If the dorm wants the women to be in by a certain hour, fine, but the men should have to be in at the same time."

Gregory said HEW is concerned with Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and Title IX of the "Education Amendments of 1972." These deal with discrimination because of race, color, national origin or sex in any program or activity receiving federal financial assistance. Title IX deals with sex discrimination in any education program or activity receiving federal financial assistance.

All facilities which receive federal funding must submit affirmative action plans to HEW, Miles Schulze, Branch Chief of HEW, said. HEW reviews the plan to determine if Title VI and Title IX are being complied with, Schulze said. "The university submitted an affirmative action plan in February and we are in the process of reviewing it," Schulze said.

If any facility subject to Title VI or IX fails to eliminate discrimination on a voluntary basis, members of the Office of Civil Rights (OCR) will meet with officials to negotiate. If negotiations fail, the OCR will terminate federal funds to the facility, Schulze said.

Schulze encouraged students to bring to the attention of the administration any discriminatory practices at the university. Complaints of civil rights violations can be filed through the Regional Office for Civil Rights. The address is: Office of Civil Rights, Region VI, 1114 Commerce St., Dallas 75202. The OCR will investigate any complaints they receive, Schulze said.

Students attending the workshops of the conference reported various discriminatory practices at the University. Complaints were made concerning the Placement Center, which allegedly allows companies to specify whether they will interview citizens or non-citizens, men or women. The international students' guarantee of freedom of speech at the University was questioned. The difference in tuition rates of residents, non-residents and non-citizens was also questioned.

One student complained of an unwritten discrimination against internationals which says if a student is not a resident, there are certain benefits he or she will not receive.

The advertising policies of the Daily Cougar conflict with Title IX, Schulze said. He plans to discuss the policies, which discriminate on the basis of sex, with Ross Strader, business manager of Student Publications.

A student said another instance of discrimination at the University occurred when a male student applied to a belly dancing class of the University's new Sundry School and was reportedly barred from the class.

Sex discrimination on the part of the search committee for a Dean of the Law School was charged by one law student, who said he feels women will probably not be considered.

Another student charged that the 11 or 12 black faculty members and the three Chicano faculty members out of the University's 800 faculty members represent race discrimination.

The report that students from Ivy League schools are more apt to be admitted to the University's law school than graduates of the University was described another discriminatory practice.

Lobbying within the University and keeping data of specific cases of civil rights violations to present to HEW were considered as solutions to the problems by those at the workshops. However, a faculty member said there is still the problem of reporting problems to the administration. "When I go to the administration with a problem, they look at me like I'm a fool," one faculty member explained.

Library fines lowered

By DAVID RANDELL
Cougar Staff

Beginning March 18, overdue fines for library books will be reduced to five cents per day for students who have not been billed and pay at the circulation desk.

The announcement came at a University Library Committee meeting Wednesday.

The reduction in fines was first approved by the committee January 30, but the action was ruled contrary to university procedure by UH Controller Harold Scott.

The proposal was then studied by Scott and Douglas Mac Lean, vice-president of management services. Scott and Mac Lean had no serious disagreement with the committee's rationale for lowering the fines and made a favorable report to a staff conference of University Pres. Philip G. Hoffman and all University vice-presidents.

The conference approved the measure by general consensus and authorized Director of Libraries Stephen R. Salmon to initiate the new fine structure.

A fine of 25 cents per day will still exist for students who do not respond to overdue notices and are billed. Overdue notices are sent out weekly and are followed by a bill the next week.

"The 25 cents per day fine is punitive, but the five cents per day fine is only a symbolic act," Dr. Jurgen Schmidt, committee chairman, explained Wednesday. The committee has insisted in all its actions concerning the fine structure that overdue fines should not be punitive, but only serve as a recovery vehicle for books.

The committee also discussed recovery of overdue books from faculty members. The committee decided to contact department chairmen if faculty members do not respond to overdue notices and telephone calls from the library. If this method fails to recover the book, the department's purchasing fund at the library will be charged with replacing the book. This will enable departmental library liaisons to contact delinquent faculty and request the return of the book. The committee also authorized the library to contact college deans to request their intervention.

A fine structure for faculty does not exist. "Students collect the fines at the circulation desk and faculty fines might prompt faculty-student confrontations at the desk," Ronald Naylor, assistant director of libraries, said.

The committee is currently studying an automated check-out system to replace the manual system now in use.

The automated checkout system would utilize a coded portion of I.D. cards to check library records. The system will deny books to students and faculty with overdue books.

Library circulation and acquisition records will be stored in the system through a small computer.

The new system, which is expected to be in operation in the fall, will enable the University Library Committee to consider faculty fines, Naylor said.

The new system is also figuring in the Student Library Court proposal, Student's Association (SA) President Jim Liggett said Wednesday. The proposal, which has been passed by the SA Senate and the University Library Committee, is awaiting approval on the desk of Dr. Harry Sharp, vice-president of student affairs.

Streakers strike: raging in the raw

—(UPI)—Streakers struck during daylight hours for the first time at several Texas cities Wednesday, and warm temperatures predicted for yet another day promised an accommodating medium for more running in the raw.

The rage for running nude, previously limited to the hours around midnight on most college campuses, went dayside at Odessa Junior College and the University of Texas at Arlington.

Two youths with covered heads ran naked through the main hall of Roosevelt High School and scored, at once, the first daylight streak in San Antonio and the first high school streak reported in Texas.

The youths, one wearing a T-shirt over his face and the other a ski mask, ran past the main office, the cafeteria and into a waiting automobile

"It happened to the dismay of the assistant principal who witnessed it all," said a coed student at Roosevelt.

Two single streakers sprinted through noon sun worshippers at Odessa JC and a few minutes later six other brave and naked souls trotted along a southerly route across campus.

Odessa JC students have issued a challenge to University of Texas-Periman Basin students to "streak over any time" and say there are plans for a mass streak at the junior college.

Late Wednesday morning as Madalyn Murray O'Hair spoke in the UTA student center, two young men with pillow cases over their heads streaked through the auditorium. A few minutes later two more wearing ski masks followed.

Decision sparks response

By ROBIN COLLINS
UHSA Attorney General

I think it is especially important that the UHSA Department of Justice respond to a recent news item (2-26-74, Vol. 40, No. 80) appearing in The Daily Cougar. That article announced that the newspaper would no longer carry help wanted ads which indicated the sex preference of the prospective employers. . . until HEW establishes specific regulations. . . Ross Strader, business manager for Student Publications, was quoted in the same article as saying that he firmly believed " . . . the advertiser should have the right to put anything in an ad he wants to." Several issues which should be brought to the attention of the academic community become immediately apparent from the foregoing.

(1) Mr. Strader's decision to delete sex discriminating advertising can best be described as the ending of a long period of official foot dragging. Strader first became aware of this situation nearly four months ago and examples of The Daily Cougar's continuing violations have been brought to his attention time and time again by Women's Advocate, Ms. Allison Korn, as well as members of the UHSA Department of Justice. Only after receiving a strongly worded communique from a highly placed administrative official did Strader yield.

(2) It should be made plain to the academic community that Mr. Strader cannot shield himself by urging that restrictions placed on advertising infringes on First Amendment freedom of press rights. This is clearly not the case and the most superficial reading of constitutional law in this area will substantiate this. The University as a federal grantee is bound to follow federal guidelines prohibiting discrimination and Mr. Strader as an agent of the university is not exempt merely because he seeks to invoke the non-existent penumbra of the First Amendment. Commercial advertising in the context Mr. Strader is using it is simply not protected. As Oliver Wendell Holmes has said, we are not allowed to yell "Fire!" in a crowded theater and then wrap ourselves in the First Amendment for protection. Mr. Strader informs us that he " . . . firmly believes. . ." that advertisers should be allowed to put anything in an ad they wish to. From that statement I can only assume that Strader feels it would be perfectly legitimate to accept advertising wherein the prospective employer sought to place an ad for a "Jew," a "Black," a "Mexican" or a "Caucasian." If Strader wishes to adhere to such a policy I would quickly submit that such conduct would border on official misconduct.

(3) Finally it should be noted that the Constitution and guidelines from HEW do not allow a lesser vigilance or a loosening of federal restrictions in the area of sex discrimination than in the area of racial discrimination. A violation in one area is as repugnant to the Constitution as the other. On the very day Mr. Strader announced his policy change the paper carried an ad for Gallagher's and the Carriage House Pub which is in clear violation of the policy just announced. Although the paper has removed many of the ads in violation, Mr. Strader should be warned that "sinning just a little" is hardly a defense. The law requires complete compliance with its provisions and will not lower its standards for Mr. Strader alone.

EDITORIAL

Enough's enough

The Houston Service Station Owners Association said today that they had to have an across-the-board five cent hike on all gasoline prices. This comes right on top of the two-cent jump that prices took late last week.

If this price rise request is granted by the Federal Energy Office, it would mean that finding gasoline, even regular, for under 50 cents a gallon would be virtually impossible. It could spell the end of driving for vast numbers of the population, such as students and those in the low or fixed income bracket. Those with jobs requiring long distance driving to and from work, like salesmen, could be forced to move or even change jobs.

Americans have already suffered enough because of the energy crisis. The people decided in many states to reduce speed limits without federal insistence and after the 55 mph law was passed by Congress many citizens voluntarily obeyed the law before its period of grace was over. We have cut back on pleasure driving. Few gas stations are open at night or on weekends. Enough is enough.

At this moment, Congress' energy bill awaits the signature of President Nixon. After continuous foot-dragging, Congress agreed on a bill that would help to relieve consumers of some of the burdens of the energy shortage. Among other things, the bill would in fact call for a rollback in gas prices.

This rollback is the first positive sign gas consumers have seen since this crisis was dumped on them. If Nixon vetoes the bill in his typical pro-big business stance, it will be up to Congress to work diligently for the two-thirds majority needed to override it. One thing is very clear. The last thing the average gas consumer needs is to have to pay a half-dollar for a gallon of gas.

To the Editor:

According to Wanita Rothkop, the end justifies the means. The problem is that we have unwanted babies, starving babies, beaten babies and motherless babies. Rothkop's solution is kill the babies. What difference if we kill them at conception, at one month or at one year. Murder is murder. Don't give a baby the chance to overcome life and become an Alexander Hamilton, who was both illegitimate and orphaned; kill it.

To the Editor:

As I walked onto campus Monday, March 4, I was violated by an anonymous speaker on a platform near Moody Towers. His voice came at me magnified ten-fold by an amplifier. Continuously he droned out propaganda about how Jesus saved him from the miseries of life.

The booming voice possessed my mind. My thoughts were drowned out, replaced instead by the thoughts of the speaker. The voice made everyone within earshot a captive audience. No one could escape the merciless verbal torment.

I felt at once like a prisoner confined helplessly within a concentration camp. Big Brother reached out to control my mind, and deep within me, I felt an acid residue of hatred for my amplified tormentor.

As I moved farther into the campus the voice followed me. Like a rapist, the voice kept at my mind. He would not be satisfied until he had penetrated into the innermost recesses of my brain.

The voice masquerading under the guise of Christianity is in reality the worst form of tyranny. Equipped with a loudspeaker, any demagogue can force his pronouncements on others. I call upon everyone at UH to resist the rape of the mind. Loudspeakers spewing forth incessant propaganda should be outlawed on campus.

Oil depletion predicted by experts

By GARY HEES

A member of the Special Training Division of the Oak Ridge Associated Universities predicts that present oil supplies will be depleted within the next 150 years, with present natural gas reserves facing a quicker death within the next 50 years.

Professor Lauren Lutes, a physics professor from Emporia College, presented these and other facts about the present availability and demand for energy at a workshop session recently at the University.

The presentation of the program came in three parts—a slide show with a lecture on the evolution of man's power sources through time, from primitive to present; a discussion session on current energy problems and a look at a simulator, a computer programmed with data on the availability of world energy sources and predictions as to how long they will last.

"What we're trying to do," Lutes said, "is look at the effect supply and demand has on our available energy. Our information, however, deals only with energy which we can obtain now at relatively little cost increases. We also do not take into account technological developments in energy gathering. So what we deal with are these energy sources which we utilize at the present time, what quantities are available and how long they will last."

Dr. Robert Hill, professor of biochemistry at the University of Nebraska at Lincoln, conducted the slide presentation and provided narration and explanation of what was being shown.

The slides show the evolution of man's power sources through time from the primitive to the present. The slides also give basic facts about the state of our current energy resources, such as the fact that demand for oil in the U.S. exceeded supply in 1960 and that our present supply of oil should run out in about 100-150 years. Present natural gas reserves should be exhausted in 50 years and our coal production will peak out in 150 years.

It should be remembered that these figures have both the economic and technological constraints mentioned earlier embodied within them.

Dr. Hill, with the aid of the slides, went on to point out the possibilities of utilizing nuclear energy both in the fission and fusion reactor.

A simulator is by far the most interesting and novel part of the entire workshop. On first glance it reminds one of a Buck Rogers' spaceship panel. It is a conglomerate of lights, dials and meters. But it is far removed from mere fantasy.

Basically, the simulator is an analog computer which is calibrated to the world supply of energy in terms of the quantity of each source and the projected amount of time that supply will last. It is not a predictive model, however, in that it assumes that new supplies will not be developed and also that the known sources will be utilized only within certain limits of economic expense.

In short, it deals with the energy situation facing us now. At the top of the main unit are six areas which represent the world's supply of petroleum, natural gas, coal, hydroelectric power, nuclear power and geo-thermal power. These six are also divided into two groups: the first three being chemical energy and the last three electrical energy.

Each energy source has a dial which allows the operator to utilize as much of that source as he wishes. These sources, however, are programmed to "run out" according to the rate at which they are used, and the available amount of these resources corresponds to the actual amount available to the world today. At the bottom of the main unit appear the varied areas of demand on these resources. These include mining, transportation, air conditioning, automobiles, appliances and the other various areas of demand on energy. These are also variable, but are calibrated to represent only the demand for energy of the United States.

The game begins with the supply of energy and demand on energy in equilibrium, which is denoted by lights saying "OK" under the two types of energy. Time passes at the rate of one year per second. After about 10-15 years you get a negative sign under the chemical energy section, and from there to the end things get very hectic. You find yourself constantly adjusting your demands downward and your supply upward.

All the while the population is doubling once every 35 years and other read-out facilities are showing levels of pollutants growing as you are forced to turn from natural gas and petroleum, which run out quickly, to coal and nuclear energy.

Each individual can also run the simulator by using a lap-size duplicate of the main unit. This creates even more problems in that the priorities of each individual sometimes conflict and cancel each other out, while the supply of energy constantly

demand of energy and deal, in a simulated way, with the problems concerning energy facing the United States within the next few years," he added.

For those who missed the workshops at the university, Lutes will be presenting the program at Rice, March 6 and 7.

"It's realistic in that it brings home the problem of making our energy sources last and the need to develop new energy sources to replace the present ones which are, given present technology and economic restraints, running out." Lutes said. "We feel that the key to the success of the program is extending control of the simulator to those attending the workshop. In this way, they can manipulate the supply and

Scripts needed for drug programs

Graduate and undergraduate students between the ages of 18 and 25 are invited to enter the $5,000 National Drug Enlightenment Program college script writing competition for "The New Radio."

The competition consists of writing a half-hour radio script dealing with some facet of the drug problem. Thirteen of the winning scripts will be used to produce a national radio series for public service broadcast, and will be made available free of charge to all stations across the nation.

First prize includes $1,000 cash plus a one-week, all-expense paid trip to Hollywood. Winners will also receive a tape of their show as produced for broadcast.

Competition is sponsored by the FICU, a non-profit, educational public service corporation of Los Angeles, and is open to every college student in the U.S. and Canada.

Deadline for entry is May 31, and there is no charge. Students interested in entering the competition should contact the FICU at 1147 South Robertson Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif. 90035, for information.

Cougars meet Rice Owls; Edwards, Hayes end career

By HORACE BUTLER
Assistant Sports Editor

Houston's cagers square off against Rice tonight at 8 p.m. in Hofheinz Pavilion and for first time in three years the Cougars will not be clutching a post-season tournament invitation.

Jacksonville floored UH's chances for a bid Monday night with a controversial 83-80 decision over the visiting Cougars. Members of the Houston squad were reportedly the victims of airborne paper cups and other objects thrown by the crowd.

Rice had a somewhat easier time as they raced by TCU, 82-72 last Saturday despite the absence of its two black players who didn't show up for practice last Saturday. The win upped the Owl's season slate to 11-16 with the game against Houston to wind up its schedule.

Wednesday, Bill Whitmore, sports information director at Rice said, concerning the absence of the black players, "I don't know of any story behind it—they've missed one practice and they missed Saturday night's game. But they're out there playing right now, so I presume they will be playing tomorrow (Thursday) night."

The contest itself will be somewhat meaningless, except that it will mark the final UH appearance for seniors Donnell Hayes, Sidney Edwards, Randy Green, David Chatman and Curtis Sartell.

Houston does have a chance to reset its team's shooting percentage mark for the season if they post a good shooting mark tonight. The old standard of 48.6 was set in 1965-66, and Lewis' squad is presently shooting at a 48.9 clip.

The Cougars squeezed out a 95-86 decision over the Owls in the first meeting between the two teams earlier in the season. Houston overcame a half-time deficit after finally managing to slow down Rice's Tim Moriarity, but not before the junior from Wisconsin had singed the nets for a career high 32 points.

Scott Fisher, Charles Daniels, Danny Carroll and John Kabbes will join Moriarity in the probable lineup for the Owls.

UH will no doubt start its usual lineup of Maurice Presley at center, Edwards and Louis Dunbar at forwards and Hayes and Otis Birdsong in the back-court.

Houston Bowlers lead TIBC

The Houston bowling team, led by UC games director Joe Blair, is in full possession of first place in the Texas Intercollegiate Bowling Conference.

UH owns top position in the seven team league, four full games above second place Texas A&M. Houston is 32-10, while A&M has won 28 games and lost 14.

Blair has the highest average in the entire league, scoring at 190 per game thru nine games.

The Cougars as a team also hold the first highest individual scorer of any team in the TIBC. Bruce Wolfson, who owns a 197 average after 33 games, has bowled a 1085 series.

Other UH team members include Sheldon Bloch, Greg Fleisher, Larry Larson, Paul McCordic, Bill Michalak, Perry Nolen, Mike Rainbird, Larry Rosamond and Bobby Scales.

In the team competition, Southwest Texas is in third place, followed by Trinity, Texas, Lamar and Rice.

The next TIBC meet will be March 23 in Austin when the Cougars meet Trinity University.

World Issues Conference speaks on Power Elites

By BRENDA GOFFNEY
Cougar Staff

This year's annual World Issues Conference—"Power Elites in a World of Crisis"—will begin March 25. Speakers for the conference are men who are currently involved in and aware of domestic and foreign political policies.

Featured will be U.S. Congressman Les Aspin (D-Wisconsin), who will discuss the economic and political effects of the nation's energy crisis March 25 at 7 p.m. in the Houston Room at the University Center (UC). Psychologist-author Professor William Domhoff will be talking about the American ruling class March 26 at 7 p.m. in the Houston Room, UC.

Attorney-author Mark Lane, producer of the film "Executive Action," will be discussing the power structure of American industry March 27 in the Houston Room, UC at 7 p.m. Economist

Dr. Andreas Papandrou, exiled Greek leader, will be discussing the power structures of the world April 4 in the Houston Room.

Aspin, in cooperation with Sen. William Proxmire (D-Wisconsin), will speak out on the country's energy problem.

Domhoff, associate psychology professor at the University of California at Santa Cruz, wrote the books, Who Rules America?, Who Made American Foreign Policy? and Fat Cats and Democrats.

Lane is presently the defense attorney for Indians who are being held by authorities for their involvement at Wounded Knee. He is also the author of Rush to Judgement.

Papandrou, professor of economics at York University, wrote A Strategy for Greek Economic Development, Democracy at Gunpoint: The Greek Front and Man's Freedom.

Plans are being made to have the speakers take part in local radio and television interviews.

Along with the lectures, the Students' Association's World Council will show films dealing with international crisis. They will be shown in the Pacific Room in the University Center.

Dear Akadama Mama

The Kama Sutra of Wines.

Dear Akadama Mama:

I was at a party where they were serving Akadama Plum with Seven-Up, and I tell you it was fantastic. I wonder if you know of any other neat ways to serve Akadama wines.

A. Fan

Dear A. Fan:

First off let me thank you for the wonderful weekend I had preparing to answer your letter. We really had a ball experimenting with Akadama Red, White and Plum. And the only reason I'm not still partying it up is that I had to meet a deadline for this column. There are so many ways you can enjoy Akadama, I like to think of it as the Kama Sutra of wines. Here are some of my favorite recipes. Bottoms up.

OUTRIGGER PUNCH

2 bottles Akadama White
1 can frozen concentrated limeade
1 small block of ice
Mix together in punch bowl with pineapple and lime slices. Serves approximately 10 medium size cups.

SANGRIA AKADAMA

2 bottles Akadama Red
1 quart of club soda
1/2 can frozen concentrated lemonade
Mix with lemon and orange slices in large pitcher. Serve over ice.

PLUM DUCK

1 bottle Akadama Plum
1 quart extra dry champagne
1 small block of ice
Sliced oranges and strawberries
Mix in punch bowl: serves approximately 10 medium size punch cups.

AKADAMA BRASILIA

Equal parts Akadama Red and orange juice
Spritz of soda
Serve with ice.

AKADAMA SPRITZER

Pour chilled Akadama Red into tall glass with ice. Add soda and stir gently.

VODKADAMA

1 part Vodka
1 part Akadama Red (or add to taste)
Twist of lemon

PLUM AND BRANDY

1 part Akadama Plum
1 part Brandy
Serve in a large wine glass or brandy snifter.

RED BALL EXPRESS

1 jigger Gin
Add Akadama Red to taste
Twist of lemon
Sensational!

Listen to Mama, and pass the Akadama, the wine that tastes a lot more than it costs.

POST OAK FAMILY "Y". 7:30 PM only, 1331 Augusta Dr. (north of San Felipe — 2 blocks West of Chimney Rock)

SOUTHWEST BRANCH YMCA 4210 Bellaire Blvd. (3 blocks West of Stella Link)

DOWNTOWN YMCA 1600 Louisiana at Pease (1 block West of Exxon Bldg.)

The YMCA approach was originally designed in college to enable High School and college students to do a better job with the reading required for their courses. Students have consistently improved their grades after taking the course. Physicians, lawyers, and engineers report that they use the skills on their technical reading. Our files include many grateful comments from people in all walks of life. A carefully planned step-by-step process leads each student into a whole new level of reading efficiency in ten-two hour sessions held once a week.

HERE'S WHAT YOU CAN EXPECT

- Reading Speed drastically increased 4 to 10 times.
- Improved Comprehension eliminates excessive rereading.
- Retention Techniques give students valuable tools for efficient academic work.
- Mature Reading Skills promote greater self-confidence.
- Reading Speed Flexibility brings efficient study time.

KUHF to sponsor Chinese program

The haunting strains of authentic Chinese music can now be enjoyed by tuning in to KUHF, the UH campus' FM station, at 7 p.m. every Sunday.

The program, Chinese Time, features not only music but news, commentary and discussion, all exclusively in Mandarin and Cantonese dialects.

Director Steven To is assisted by Dick Hui along with news directors Albert Eng and Michael Lee. Their purpose is to serve the Chinese community in Houston but they invite all nationalities to listen in.

The program is seeking volunteer workers from the campus who are fluent in Mandarin or Cantonese.

BAPTIST STUDENT UNION provides noonspiration Friday in the Upstairs Lounge, Religion Center.

ALPHA EPSILON DELTA will attend the National AED Convention in New Orleans March 14-16. Interested persons should sign up at Room 106, Science Bldg. or call Mark at 342-3529.

Fire fighters benefit from country concerts

Tom T. Hall, Barbara Fairchild and Don Gibson will highlight the 16th Annual Parade of Stars Show March 15 and 16 at the Sam Houston Coliseum.

The country music show is presented by the Houston Professional Firefighter Association (HPFFA) and will benefit the HPFFA benevolent, scholarship, research and pension funds.

Tom T. Hall, currently riding high in the charts with "I Love," penned hits for other country music artists before deciding to record his own material. "Spokane Motel Blues," "The Homecoming" and "Salute to a Switchblade" have established Hall as one of country music's most successful storytellers.

Barbara Fairchild, of "The Teddy Bear Song" fame, and Don Gibson ("Oh Lonesome Me") will share the spotlight with Freddy Weller, Johnny Russell, Brian Collins and Gary Sargents.

Tickets are on sale at all Houston fire stations and all five Foley's.

TexPIRG starts research; getting groups together

The Texas Public Interest Research Group (TexPIRG) must now involve itself in incredible research, Robin Pearcy, state director for TexPIRG, said.

TexPIRG has been devoting most of its time to organizing but now it is time for action, he said.

Pearcy said TexPIRG has two Model Cities projects going now. One is to draft a Model City's Ordinance on cable TV, he said, and the other is on mass transit for Houston. Pearcy said both should be ready before the end of the semester.

Pearcy said TexPIRG also has research groups studying revenue sharing, indigent defendants and water pollution.

Pearcy said he works for TexPIRG because it has the "potential" to change things. "This is one way the individual can fight back at the machinery of our society," he commented.

Pearcy said students working on TexPIRG projects receive college credit as an incentive. He said any student with an idea for a project should contact TexPIRG.

Pearcy added that volunteers were needed for a survey of drug stores and prices in Houston and the upcoming Southern Burn Institute surveys. He said any student interested should call 749-3130.

Pearcy said the choice to move the state office to UH was wise because UH was the most active PIRG and had the best funding system.

MILES JONES and Tim Naff joust in the Student Life Plaza to publicize the Medieval Society's presentation of "A Trip Through Time" to be held March 17 in the University Center's Houston Room.

Higher education assisted by CC

A compromise was worked out between opposing sides of the Constitutional Convention to set up a $31 million annual Higher Education Assistance Fund (HEAF) for state universities outside the University of Texas and Texas A&M systems.

The compromise was designed to increase state spending to colleges which do not share in the $620 million Permanent University Fund, but gives the legislature tight control over the use of the fund.

Efforts to place a limit of $40 million a year which Texas and Texas A&M Universities could receive in interest earnings from the Permanent Fund were rejected by the delegates. Rep. Craig Washington (D-Houston) introduced the measure in an effort to channel any earnings over $40 million into the HEAF.

Washington said the Permanent University Fund yielded about $31 million this year and will be producing $40 million in the next five years. He said the excess money would be more wisely spent on colleges outside the UT and Texas A&M systems.
