Defenders send three requests to SA officials

By MIKE MONSON
News Editor

The UH Student Defenders Office ceased operation Tuesday pending satisfactory compliance by Students' Association President Steve Yaney and SA Attorney General Martin Weiser with three formal requests made by Defenders Office.

"If our requests are not met the student defenders office will remain defunct and UH students will be left without free student council. We can't and won't do our job until we get these formal assurances in writing. To do otherwise would be unethical and foolish," Chief Defender Jeff Blackburn said.

The requests are:

Formal recognition of the Defenders Office from SA in accordance with SA bylaws. Four separate forms naming each defender and requiring the signature of the SA president and attorney general have been given to Yaney and Weiser.

•For SA, through Yaney, to immediately secure official assurance from UH to defend the Student Defenders Office in case of a suit and to pay any damages. Blackburn said, "No matter how fine the quality of our advise and representation to accused students, we can still be sued."

•Assurance from SA that no one will interfere with the defenders' handling of cases which includes: the preparation, trial and appeal, strict confidentiality, and the independence of the Student Defenders Office and all individual defenders. Defender Robert Fickman said, "It would be unethical for us to represent one in a system where we are responsible to anybody but the accused student."

The requests were delivered to Yaney and Weiser Tuesday and copies are being forwarded to University Court Chief Justice Vernon Lewis, Chief Student Prosecutor Terry Keel, and Associate Dean of Student Life Julius Gordon, according to Blackburn.

Yaney said he and Weiser would be meeting with the defenders on Friday. He said, "The first request is very much needed, no problem."

As for the second request, Yaney said, "I have sent a memo to Vice Chancellor Dean of Students Harry Sharp to have Bailey look into it. The problem is, the final answer would take a while and I doubt the administration will agree. I would like the defenders office to continue operating while we are awaiting the decision and will request on Friday that they do so."

Regarding the third question, Yaney said, "Weiser and I want them to be totally autonomous in their case work. Strict confidentiality will be observed."

The defenders first sought verbal assurance of the requests from UH attorney Pat Bailey. According to Fickman, Bailey said he would study the requests with Gordon and get back to them. All the defenders expressed a fear that such a process would take too long. According to Oxford, "At least one student has been deprived of the use of this office already."

Blackburn said, "We are taking this action to protect the interests of accused students, to insure the student body at large has a viable and independent student defenders office, and to protect ourselves."

The student defenders are Timothy Lee, Tom Oxford, Fickman and Blackburn. All four are upper-division students at the Bates College of Law.

McConn defends decisions as mayor

By JUDY BLUESTEIN
& RUTH BLUESTEIN
Writers for the Daily Cougar

Jim McConn, who is running for his third term as Mayor of Houston, finds his administration under attack by most of the fourteen candidates running against him.

One point of disagreement involves where responsibility for the MTA rests. Those most vocal in their contention that the MTA should be the responsibility of the Mayor's office include Jack Heard, Kathy Whitmire, Noble Ginther, and Louis Macey.

McConn disagrees. "Despite the hue and cry of all my opponents, the Metropolitan Transit Authority is a separate governmental agency. Admittedly, we appoint five of the board members, but the day-to-day operation of MTA is under the auspices of MTA, not the city of Houston."

However, he adds that he works very closely with them, and that he and Mr. Arnold, who is chairman of the MTA board "visit frequently." They are working together on such things as grade separations, the restriping of streets (contingent upon the success of the Westheimer test case), and vanpooling. Through the cooperation of the city and the state under-and-over-passes will be built. In the long range McConn sees rail as part of the answer to Houston's traffic problems.

"If you really stop and analyze the problem of traffic in the city of Houston," McConn says, "it's just very simply that we have too many cars on the streets. If we could just convince people that they need to double up, the problem would be greatly relieved if not resolved."

McConn points out that for over 100 years the city of Houston had no public transportation system "worthy of the name." In 1979 the Metropolitan Transit Authority was created. The Mayor explains that the only maintenance facility that MTA inherited was the Milby Barn, which has been in existence since street cars. "It's outdated," he says, and "it takes time to get those facilities built." New facilities are presently under construction. "We didn't get into this shape in 2½ years," the Mayor adds, "How do we expect to bail out in 2½ years? It's going to take time."

The Mayor states that the freeway system is funded to a great extent by the Federal government. "I think we can look to those funds to disappear," he says, "because of the cutbacks that are a part of the Reagan Administration. I don't think there is anything the Mayor can do. It is going to be a setback."

McConn feels that toll roads will be an answer to Houston's growing traffic problem. "To me there's nothing more American than a toll road," says McConn. "You pay only if you ride on them. There are absolutely no tax dollars on a toll road. And after the road has been paid up by the revenues generated, it reverts back to the ownership of Houston. I can't imagine a more ideal situation to help solve the traffic problems than toll roads, despite the fact that I recognize that it is unpopular in some areas."

Responding to his opponents, who are almost unanimous in saying that Clear Lake City was a wrongful annexation, McConn states, "I believe that the aggressive annexation policy that the city of Houston has followed over the years is the proper policy." McConn points out that cities that have no annexation power are "dying on the vine."

He said a McConn administration would continue an

Lowy brings humor into race

By JUDY BLUESTEIN

Writers for The Daily Cougar

There are a record number of candidates running for mayor this year. Fifteen, to be exact. Many of them are appearing in forums around Houston. One candidate who raises a few eyebrows wherever he speaks is a 27-year-old first-time candidate named David C. Lowy.

Lowy graduated from Bellaire High School in 1971, and attended the University of Texas for two months. He took two courses here including one called "Baja Whaling Expedition." His employment record runs the gamut from copyboy to movie extra, and includes a brief stint as a disassembler with a travelling circus.

So what makes Lowy run?

"I have a goodly share of common sense and I am honest," Lowy explains. "These qualifications could carry a mayor far in this city. I also possess a natural ineptitude, and I'm currently unemployed."

Actually, he owns a small publishing business, "but it's so small that sometimes even I don't notice it," he said. He became a publisher two years ago to print his book Pencil Drawings, which is precisely that: 101 drawings of pencils. Lowy is running a low-budget campaign. Entering Lowy headquarters, which happens to be his mother's dining room, one is greeted by a cardboard podium and a tall sign bearing his campaign slogan, "A Sense of Humor."

"Considering my chances of winning this election," he said, "you can understand why my official motto is 'A Sense of

Correction

In a caption on page one of yesterday's issue of The Daily Cougar, Taiwan should have been identified as the Republic of China not the People's Republic of China. The Cougar realizes the difference between the two countries. There was no insult intended towards citizens of Taiwan.

The Cougar regrets the error.

Apology called for

To the Editor:

I was upset when I read the explanation under the picture showing the performance of "The Lass of Tribe Miao" on the first page of the Tuesday issue. As an editor you should have the common sense to know that Taiwan is not a part of the People's Republic of China, which is dictatorially ruled by the Chinese Communists. Taiwan, with freedom-loving and democracy-loving people, is governed by the government of the Republic of China, which is celebrating its 70th anniversary of foundation.

According to geography and pedigree we all know that Taiwan is a part of China. However, it is nonsense to say that beautiful island is the territory of the communist regime.

I wish you did not do this on purpose to mislead your readers. However, you should apologize to those people from Taiwan, the Republic of China, who are fighting against the communism to keep their current social and living styles.

Taiwan goof, take two

To the Editor:

In Oct. 27, 1981 issue of The Daily Cougar, there was a picture on front page with the caption "A member of the Youth Goodwill Mission from Taiwan, People's Republic of China." We don't know who wrote this statement, but apparently he (she) is too innocent to know the fact that Taiwan doesn't belong to People's Republic of China, or he (she), who as a newspaper person should report the truth to the public, ignores his (her) responsibility on purpose. We feel angry for this, and we strongly object it.

A group of students from Taiwan, the Republic of China

Taiwan goof, take three

To the Editor:

There is a terrible mistake on the description about the picture shown on Oct. 27 Daily Cougar. The correct national name for the Youth Goodwill Mission from Taiwan is Republic of China (free China) not the People's Republic of China (communist China). During the cultural revolution, all the traditional Chinese culture was completely destroyed in Mainland

China. It is impossible for communist China to show the real Chinese classical dancing shown on this picture. On the contrary, Taiwan, the Republic of China, has preserved the heritage of 5,000 years of Chinese culture. Only those who lived under a democratic system can make such a wonderful and friendly performance.

Demonstration panned

To the editor:

Concerning the Arab students, whose intentions were to educate the university community about the "real Sadat," I was saddened by their efforts, though unsuccessful, to murder a man twice. I personally had great respect for Sadat. I remember his efforts in the peace talks a couple of years ago. I remember the feeling of watching three world leaders trying to gain harmony in the midst of turmoil.

It is so sad to watch now the continued eruptions, the constant conflict, the slow destruction of the goal these three men had hoped to attain.

Paula Hughes

Letter resembled 'Kung Fu'

To the Editor:

Keith Rudy's letter in the Cougar of 10-27-81 on the P.C.'s forum on Sadat's death in a way made interesting reading. The construction is akin to an episode in the TV serial "Kung Fu" — starring David Carradine — in which some Euro-Americans would passionately refuse a sole surviving native American (Indian) a burial place on his own legal property because the native's tribesmen had killed seven kinds of the Euro-Americans in a war in which the whole native tribespeople had been wiped out.

The cause or the effect: which requires a solution?

Maybe history has a way of presenting itself. Or like St. Paul says, "we see through a coloured glass, darkly" when it comes to facts concerning our own very selves. Or maybe, there are as many answers as questions. And if, like Keith suggests, it were possible to compromise, let people put on all the different sizes of shoes and it might come out that the most pacifying pacifist will want back that which he is dispossessed of.

And then also, it might be regarded as a bias for an observer to point out the result of un-negotiated dispossession.

P. Kofi Baah-Arhin

Where are interviews?

To the Editor:

Over a month ago, on Sept. 22, The Daily Cougar ran an interview with Kathy Whitmire, along with an editor's note that this was the first in a series of interviews with the mayoral candidates. The election is now less than a week away, and to this day, I have seen no additional such feature. One can only see this to be a biased and unfair act on the part of the Cougar. I believe that the Cougar owes it to its readers to fulfill promises it makes to them, especially in a matter of such importance as the mayoral election. If the Cougar really did have intentions of presenting all the candidates and their views, I certainly didn't see any evidence of it. If Ms. Whitmire's interview was the only one the Cougar had, either it should not have been printed unless articles on the other candidate were printed, or it should not have been printed at all.

Band again

To the Editor:

I found it appalling to sit through the Homecoming performance displayed by the band Saturday night. The theme, "I Love New York", was inappropriate and brought much disgust among the Texan fans as noted from the response of the crowd.

Solidarity continues strikes

Warsaw, Poland (AP) — Solidarity defiantly went ahead with plans for a one-hour, nationwide strike Wednesday over food shortages and other problems. The Polish Communist Party's Central Committee and the Soviet-led Warsaw Pact were reported preparing separate meetings.

Lech Walesa, leader of the independent labor movement, had been expected to hold talks with government officials Tuesday night, apparently in hopes of heading off the walkout. But union sources said he had not met any officials, and that the nationwide protest would go ahead as planned.

The government information agency Interpress said Polish troops were taking up positions in villages and towns and their initial reception was "friendly."

Communist Party officials said the 200-member Central Committee would meet just hours after the strike, the biggest since a four-hour, national walkout March 27. They said Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, the party chief, defense minister and prime minister, might reshuffle the Cabinet or Communist Party Politburo. The Hungarian news agency MTI said the Warsaw Pact defense ministers would meet soon in Budapest, Hungary. MTI did not give a date but there have been fears of Soviet intervention in Poland ever since Solidarity was created 14 months ago as the first union free of party control in the Soviet bloc.

The Polish protest is expected to include millions of workers, and has been condemned by the government and party as threatening Poland's "political, economic and defensive" foundations. It has also sparked protests from state-run unions who vowed to work."

Wildcat strikes have been simmering for weeks and continued Tuesday in Zyrardow, 20 miles west of Warsaw, where 12,000 workers occupied textile mills; in southeastern Tarnobrzeg, where 120,000 more struck heavy industrial plants; and in far western Zielona Gora where some 150,000 workers were off the job.

Walesa met with about 5,000 people at a rally in Zyrardow, where women textile workers were on strike for the 15th day over food shortages. "The strength of the union lies in the unity of action, but this strike was unavoidable," he told the rally.

In a surprisingly open report, Interpress said troops were countering "indolence," "stupidity and license of bureaucrats," and halting "the scandalous wastage and favoritism."

Interpress said the soldiers who were ordered into villages and towns as of Monday were beginning to study causes of a drop in meat supplies, the illegal trade in meat, and to supervise procurement of supplies of fuel.

Lt. Col. Stefan Lukaszewicz was quoted as saying that his squads had already solved problems in sugar distribution at one factory and reopened a shop which had been closed because the shopkeeper was ill.

Western observers said that the reported success of the military squads would enhance the image of the army as an organization apparently capable of acting when the bureaucracy became bogged down.

Noted UT Chicano author to give lecture here concerning recent works

By CORINNE JIMENEZ
Writer for The Daily Cougar

Award winning Chicano novelist Rolando Hinojosa recently had his fourth novel "Mi Querido Rafa," published and a public reading and discussion of the new work will be held Friday at 2 p.m. in the Pacific Room of the University Center.

Like his earlier books, the new novel is about Mexican-American life in the Rio Grande Valley, and particularly about Belken County — a fictional county in South Texas — and its people.

Hinojosa, 52, is currently Professor of English at the University of Texas in Austin and has gained international recognition as one of the most significant of all Chicano authors.

Hinojosa was the first and only Chicano to win Latin America's most prestigious literary award, the Premio Casa de las Americas, for his book "Generaciones y Semblanzas." He also won the National Award for Chicano Literature — the Quinto Sol Prize — for his prose piece "Estampas del Valle," and he was winner of the prestigious "best novel of the year" award for his "Klail City y Sus Alrededores."

Juan Bruce-Nova, of the Latin American Literary Review, described Hinojosa's new novel as "Precise, clean, not a word of excess, his ironic and subtle humor, so well within the Hispanic tradition; his undeniably popular and regional themes, and, thus, universal appeal; and a persistent understatement, all blend to make his work unmistakable."

"My role is to write and then to try to get the stuff published; in the meantime, I keep writing," Hinojosa once said in an interview.

The event is being sponsored by the Revista Chicano-Riquena, Mexican American Studies, Concilio and the Spanish Department at UH.

A wine and cheese reception will follow the presentation.

UHPD plans rape seminar

The University of Houston Police Department is joining forces with the Houston Area Women's Center Rape Crisis Program in presenting a program on rape prevention at UH.

Fourteen campus and community experts are scheduled to speak at the Nov. 3 program, which will be offered twice, noon-3 p.m. and 7-10 p.m. Program Council and Students' Association are also working on the program.

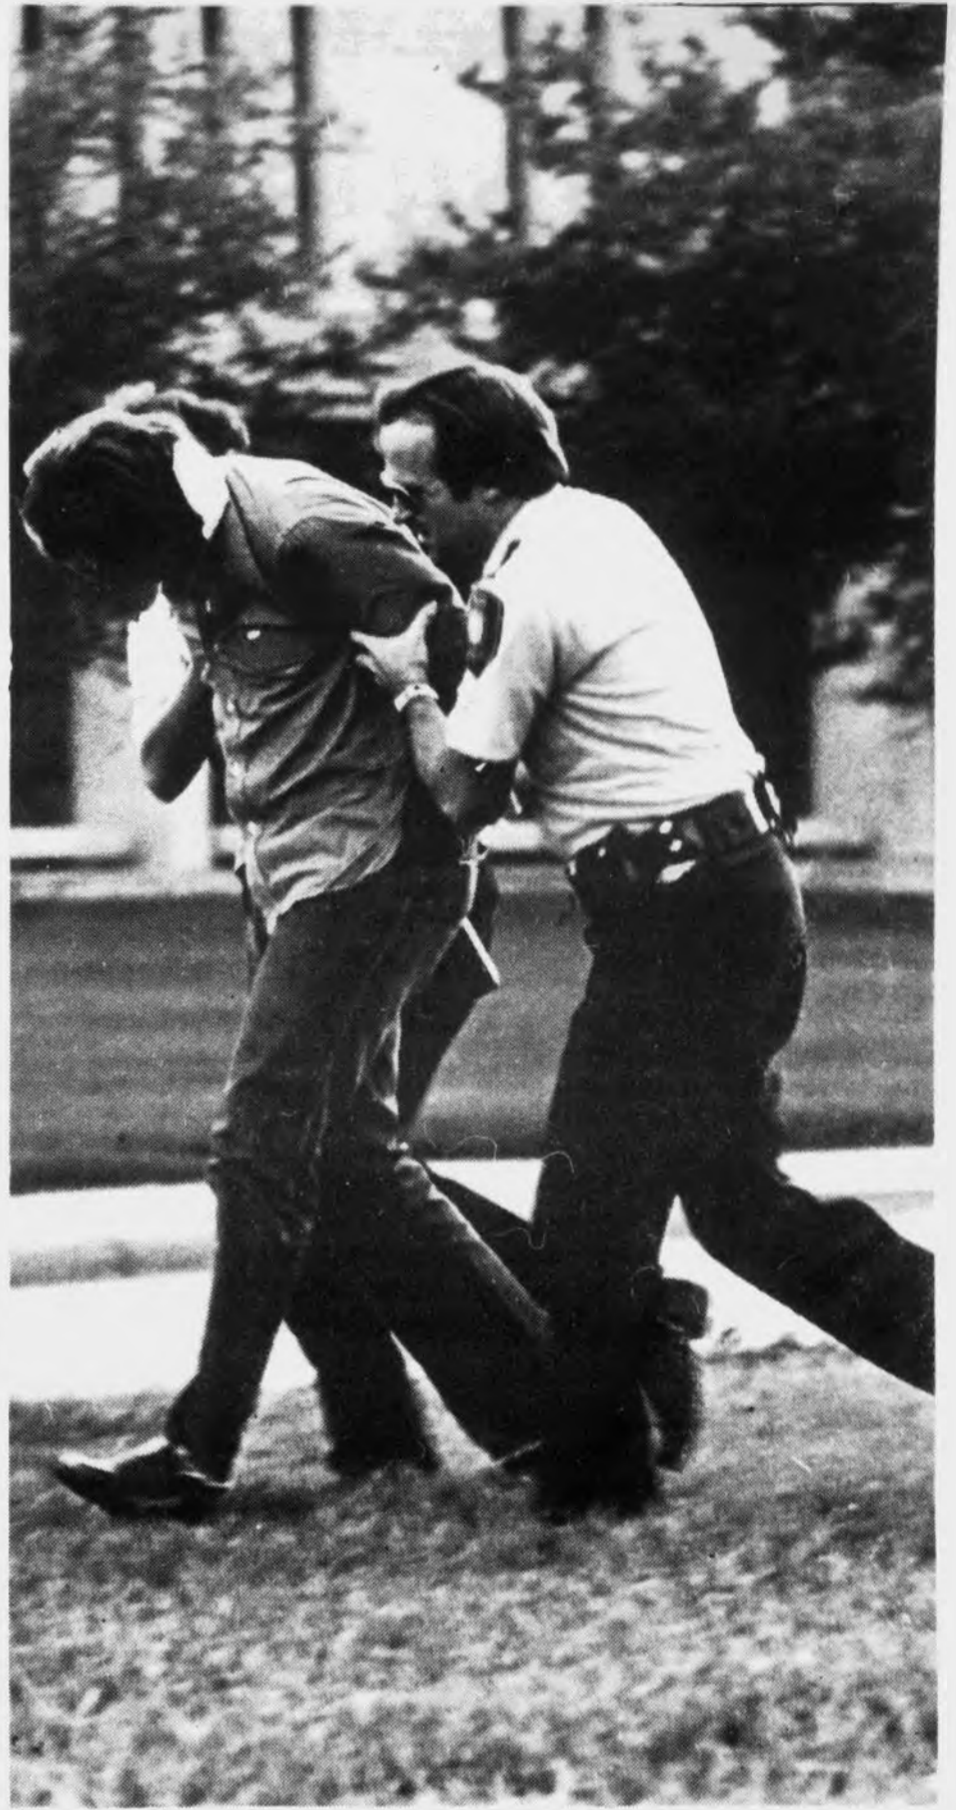

The program, cosponsored by the UH chapter of the National Organization of Women and Counseling and Testing Services, will explore myths about rape and identify the profiles of possible rapists.

"This is going to be one of the best programs we've ever put on," UHPD Officer Glen Albright, who created on his own time a videotape invitation to participate in the program. "We want to make the community aware that this crime of violence can be prevented by active and passive self-defense."

Sue Stoner of UHPD, one of the program coordinators said, "We also want to present how the law defines rape and how one goes about prosecuting a rapist."

A need for societal change in attitudes about rape also will be examined at the seminar, according to JoAnn Evans Gardner of NOW.

UHPD NOTICES

It has been brought to the attention of the University Administration that a serious problem exists regarding the parking of bicycles on campus. Members of our community are parking their bicycles in locations that create problems for handicapped students and that are blocking exits and stairways that must be kept clear in case of fire.

To address this problem the Dean of Students has instructed the Safety Department to begin ticketing and impounding those bicycles that are parked in stairways, impeding exits or interfering with handrail holds on handicap and entrance ramps.

For two weeks, beginning October 19, Police, Parking, and Safety personnel will notify University Police Officers of violators and starting November 2, Police will cut the securing chains and impound improperly parked bicycles.

To retrieve an impounded bicycle the owner must go to the Police Department, located in the stadium Annex, where he or she may be required to establish proof of ownership. People claiming an impounded bicycle will be issued a citation of 'parking in an area not designated for parking.' This citation carries a $5.00 fine. All property unclaimed after 30 days will be turned over to the University Center for sale at public auction.

It is unfortunate that we must resort to these measures to insure our community's safety. In addition to the citation, bike owners will have the added expense of purchasing a replacement chain for their bicycle. However, when handicapped students are finding access to and from buildings blocked by bicycles and when stairways and exits necessary to people's safety are blocked, then we, as a community must develop a means to rectify the situation.

It is our hope that bicyclists, now that we have made them aware of the problem, will voluntarily comply with these regulations so that we don't have to impound their bikes and so they aren't faced with the inconvenience and added expense. The safety and security of our community in an ongoing team effort. Please help yourself and your fellow students by parking your bicycle properly.

The University of Houston Police Department has just recently completed the move to its new location. We are now located in the Stadium Annex Building off of Entrance Eleven and Wheeler. This location is opposite of the Child Care Center and the new Cougar Place Dorms. LaCroix follows the play of the ball Junior left cornerback Butch LaCroix is still ranked nationally in interceptions after picking off his sixth interception of the season last Saturday at Arkansas. LaCroix snatched the Hog ball at midfield and returned it 20 yards, setting up freshman Mike Clendenen's winning 17-yard field goal in the fourth quarter. LaCroix is the first Cougar to intercept six or more passes in a season since Anthony Francis (with 10) and Mark Mohr (6) in 1976.

LaCroix believes luck plays a small part in making an interception: "If you're thinking about them, it's very hard to get them. The only thing I do is try to concentrate on every play and mechanically do the right things. Luck is involved, but if you play your position well, the interceptions take care of themselves. I've been very fortunate to have all of those interceptions."

Senior defensive right end Leo Truss' fumble recovery against the Hogs set up UH's first touchdown of the Arkansas game, a one-yard keeper by sophomore quarterback Lionel Wilson in the second quarter. Truss leads the team in fumble recoveries (4), tackles for loss (6) and yards tackle for loss (61).

Senior split end Lonell Phea leads the SWC in receiving and punt returns. Phea has made 26 catches for 406 yards and is averaging 18.0 yards per return.

Senior tight end Mark Ford, who has grabbed 22 receptions for 306 yards and three touchdowns, thinks the Hogs' defense was the toughest he has faced so far this year.

"They run so many different coverages," Ford said. "You are always blocking a different guy and they really mix it up for you. They also go for the big play at times and after stopping a team for a loss, it kind of gets the team down. I was sure glad to get Arkansas past us."

grid Lawrence comes to Houston from Grand Forks, N.D., after setting the National YMCA 100-yard backstroke record.

Three sophomores and one senior comprise the four returning members. Peggy Plough, UH's lone returning diver, is the senior while Lisa Burnes and the Archer sisters, Katy and Juliet, make up the remainder of the veteran squad.

All four qualified for the 1981-AIAW Nationals with Burnes and J. Archer receiving All-American honors. Burnes represented Australia in the World Student Games this summer, finishing fourth in the 200-meter fly and sixth in the 100-meter fly. K. Archer carried England's colors to the Student Games and placed seventh in the 200-meter IM and eighth in the 400-meter IM.

"We have more walk-ons than ever before, which is good for us," Hansel said. "We should be pretty consistent and solid this year. They will balance us off in a way we've never had before."

The lady tankers will be the first Southwest Conference women's group to join the NCAA. Previously a member of the AIAW, the Coogs will have to find a meet in which they can qualify members for the 1982 NCAA National meet in Florida. Hansel, though, seems unconcerned about this dilemma.

"I'm very optimistic about the whole program down the line."

Netters seek fifth Ruggles Cup

The UH men's tennis team will try to win its fifth straight Ruggles Cup Team Tennis Tournament title against Rice on Nov. 1 at the UH Hoff Courts.

First-year Head Coach Terry Neudecker lost experienced players like Nduka Odizor, David Dowlen and Juan Ayala to the pro circuit during the summer and will field a team that is mainly comprised of walk-ons.

The three players on scholarship, senior Mike Livshitz, junior Brian Gibbons and freshman Steve Couch will give UH some help, but Neudecker feels it will be difficult to defeat Rice this year.

"It will be tough for us," Neudecker said. "We are shy in the personnel to be as effective as we can be. To win, Livshitz, Gibbons and Couch all have to win their singles matches and we have to take two out of three doubles matches."

The tournament, which begins at 1:30 p.m. Sunday, is sponsored by Manfred Jachnich, a former tennis pro from the Houston Pacquet Club.

The Coogs defeated Rice 5-4 for last year's Ruggles Cup crown.

Cougar cross country

The women's cross country team finished fourth at the Texas Relays in Austin Oct. 24.

Nancy Staudt, a freshman from Lakewood, N.J. had a second-place 5:33 time in the one-mile run for the Coogs' best finish in that event. Junior Kirschen Hagenlocher placed second in the two-mile event with a time of 11:32.

Texas was first in the Relays, followed by Abilene Christian and Texas-El Paso.

The Coogs will host the NCAA District 6 Championships Nov. 7 at 10:00 a.m. The site has not yet been determined.

McConn feels he has improved quality of HPD

aggressive annexation policy but only when Houston can provide what he considers to be proper services to the annexed area. Although, he adds, "What you might consider to be proper services and what I consider (them to be) might be miles apart."

In answer to all those who have announced they will fire Houston Chief of Police B.K. Johnson, the Mayor responds by saying he is satisfied with the police chief's performance. Moreover, McConn justifies the operation of the HPD by pointing to the accomplishments within the department during his administration:

- The dedication of a $9½ million dollar training academy, which the Mayor says is "second to none in the world."

- The salaries of Houston police, which rank the HPD as the second highest paying police force in the United States (Detroit ranks first).

- The increase in the number of classes of recruits from five to eight per year.

- A budget increase from roughly $80 million dollars to $140 million dollars annually.

- Automatic three percent incremental pay increases for officers who have seven years experience.

- Bond revenues of $36 million dollars for the decentralization of the police department through the construction of mini-garages and substations in each council district. According to the Mayor, "That will hopefully decrease the response time."

The Mayor is also spearheading a nationwide recruiting effort. A $537,000 contract was just approved with a firm that according the Mayor is "supposed to know how to recruit."

Jim McConn says that he is proud of the many accomplishments that his administration recorded. He is especially proud of giving a voice to minorities. "When I came into office there were five minority members. Now there are close to sixty blacks and browns on the various boards and commissions." McConn adds, "now they have a voice in what happens. That is not real popular in some areas, and I understand that. But it's a necessity because 46 percent of the population of the city of Houston is minority (ethnic)."

McConn cites two ordinances passed during his most recent term as Mayor. The first requires all buildings over seven stories tall be equipped with sprinkler systems. The second is a strict sign-board ordinance which should make Houston a "prettier place."

Jim McConn, 53 was born in Tulsa, Oklahoma and raised in Houston. After graduating from St. Thomas High School he went to the University of Notre Dame and earned a Bachelor of Science degree. McConn served two terms on City Council starting in 1971, and was elected Mayor of Houston in 1977. When not holding public office, Mayor McConn is a private businessman.

Lowy wants to slow growth, revamp MTA

Humor. With a slogan like that, maybe I should be running for jester, but I guess running for mayor is pretty much the same thing."

Neatly laid out on his mother's dining room table are little piles of campaign literature, his schedule of appearances, his official motto, and a stack of press releases announcing a fund raising BYOF picnic. (Bring Your Own Food).

Lowy considers himself to be something of a financial wizard. "There are two methods for getting on the ballot: paying a very large filing fee, or submitting a petition of a minimum of 25 voters' signatures," he explains. "I chose the second method. I think this shows a much more effective use of money." As to why more of the candidates didn't use this method, David suggests that "maybe some of them couldn't get 25 signatures."

Noting with horror that some of the candidates have listed campaign expenses in excess of $200,000, David comments, "I'm just pushing the hundred mark."

Lowy has other economy measures in mind to save the taxpayers money. "As Mayor, I would move to cut my salary by $20,000. $81,000 is an exorbitant figure, and besides, $61,000 would be enough to get me out of my parent's home. Before election day, I may reduce it by another $20,000, and if people accuse me of blatant political maneuvering, they'll be right."

He doesn't promise the voters much, though. "Every politician since Adam has made promises that were either impossible to keep, or that he had no intention of keeping. As a result of that first broken promise, we are all here today. About the only promise I could make and keep is that I will be the first mayor in Houston's history to celebrate his 10th high school reunion while in office."

Despite his humorous approach to politics, David has a serious purpose in running. He hopes to involve more people, particularly young people, in government. "The people are the city," he says.

He contends that there are many areas where government cannot be expected to provide adequate services. "We will never be safe until there is more citizen involvement. There will never be enough money to hire and equip the kind of police force needed to fully control these problems. We must watch out for each other." He would like to see police walking beats again, and making regular car patrols of businesses, "stopping in to make sure everything's okay. And abusive treatment of prisoners must stop because this constitutes a criminal act in itself. Even law-abiding citizens are fearful of police."

David would be a mobile mayor. "You would see me on buses. I would take charge of the MTA!...asking constantly for employee input." He would also encourage corporate use of available computer technology to enable large numbers of people to work at home. "Public transportation and traffic together rank as one of our urgent problems," he says.

Unhappy with the direction Houston is taking, David would like to see a no-growth policy. "It is time to take a breather and make our city more liveable for those who are already here."

He is optimistic about his chances. "I've taken a poll among my family and friends and I'm going to win hands down. I should be a shoo-in," he adds solemnly, looking down at his bare feet, "although I have my shoes off. Lots of people say there's no way I can win this election, but there is one way: if more people vote for me than anyone else."

"I will be actively looking for a running mate. By that, I mean a woman to go jogging with." In lieu of debating, David challenges all of his oponents to a bowling match, although he hears some of them are accusing him of resorting to gutter tactics. "And no matter what the vote tally," he concludes, "I demand a run-off!"

ONE MILLION STRONG CAN STOP THE KOOKS.

Did you know that fifty Americans are killed with handguns every day? Fifty. Dead. Every day of every year.

That's 20,000 Americans dead from handguns every year.

Did you know that during the Vietnam War more Americans were killed here at home with handguns than were killed in the war over there?

The war over there is over. But the war here goes on and on and on. Fifty dead a day. Every day of every year.

It can be stopped.

BUT WE NEED YOU.

What will you do this school year more important than stopping America's handgun violence?

It's easy to blame the politicians in Congress. But the Congress works for us. What have we done? What have you done?

The gun lobbyists are insignificant compared to us. But the politicians hear from them every day. It's time they heard from us.

Our goal is to find One Million Americans who care enough about handgun violence to stop it. And when we have One Million Strong we'll find ten million more until the law is changed.

And if Congress won't change the law, we'll change the Congress.

Please clip and mail one of the coupons below. And ask your roommate to fill out the other one. Now. Don't turn the page. Now.

They will be delivered to the Capitol together with hundreds of thousands of others from across America. And they will be your only enrollment fee in One Million Strong which will end America's handgun violence.

Everytime a John Lennon or a Ronald Reagan is shot, America is called a sick society.

A handful of kooks who want to shoot our leaders doesn't make us a sick society. But what is sick is for the other 200,000,000 of us to let them do it.

Please care. In the name of Humanity, please care.

Your pleas to the Congress will be delivered to the Capitol and will be your only entry fee to One Million Strong to end handgun violence.
