Parking problem? What problem?

PEAK HOUR PARKING (below) finds students scrambling for the closest space.

However, a faculty lot (above) is far from full. Some faculty lots may soon offer additional space for students.

Put on your tennies and jog, jog, jog

Anyone who is concerned about the parking problem at UH can rest easy. There is no parking problem.

There might be a walking problem, though.

According to a recent traffic and security survey, there are from 500 to 1000 available spaces for faculty, staff, and students to park at UH even during peak hours (9 to 11 a.m.). The problem is, practically all of these places are in lots at least one-fifth of a mile from the nearest classroom, unless you're in optometry or physical education.

The important news, however, is that Traffic Court has been changed somewhat. There was once a time when anyone with a UH security-registered vehicle could park in President Philip Hoffman's parking place and subject himself to a fine of 25 to 50 cents.

"Not so anymore," said new Traffic Court prosecutor Joe Wicks. "If a student receives a ticket by UHS and he requests a hearing, either written or through personal appearance, the fine can only be reduced by a verdict of innocent."

Not only that, the parking suspension sentence, often added as punishment by the court, could be increased. "From now on, when a case comes before me, I look at the records," said Wicks. "If a student has gotten four to five tickets in the past, his or her parking privileges will be suspended an extra 15 days. If they've gotten six to nine tickets, the suspension will be increased by 30 days. The sticker will have to be scraped off and turned in to UHS. When the suspension is up, a new sticker will be issued at the window at UHS for no additional cost."

Wicks has several suggestions for those who feel they've been dealt with a little harshly by the ticket writers.

"Students can often get their fines reduced simply by appealing to the person at the window at UHS," said Wicks. "Extenuating circumstances will be dealt with fairly. But if one does appeal the ticket through the Traffic Court, use of a student defender is invaluable. All the cases I've lost this semester have been where a defender helped the plaintiff."

According to Wick, some of the worst offenders on campus are students of Bates Law School, who have lost every case they tried to appeal this semester.

SA executives' tuition paid this semester

by phyllis smith

Eight students working within the Student Association's Executive Branch had their tuition paid for this semester by the chancellor's office.

According to Andrew Rudnick, assistant to the chancellor, the tuition was paid as part of a trial idea to compensate campus leaders involved in student activities.

Rudnick said this trial is an extension of what UH Central Campus Chancellor Barry Munitz has said regarding leadership development. "We want to improve the quality and quantity of student participation," Rudnick said.

According to SA President Pat Powers, she, Vice-President Willis Williams, Directors Tom Deleanis, Jo Anne Zarowny, Mary O'Connor, Bonnie White and Sharon Irwin plus Administrative Aid Lin Eubanks received payment for their tuition.

Eubanks and Zarowny have since resigned because of health reasons and O'Connor resigned because she has to work where she can make more money, Powers said.

The tuition comes from the chancellor's discretionary fund and is only for the Fall semester, Rudnick said. "It's not a paper transfer of money. We reimburse the university," Rudnick said.

According to Powers, the eight students worked with SA fulltime during the summer for a $100 monthly stipend. Powers said none of the eight could afford to register for the semester even after exploring alternatives such as financial aid and loans.

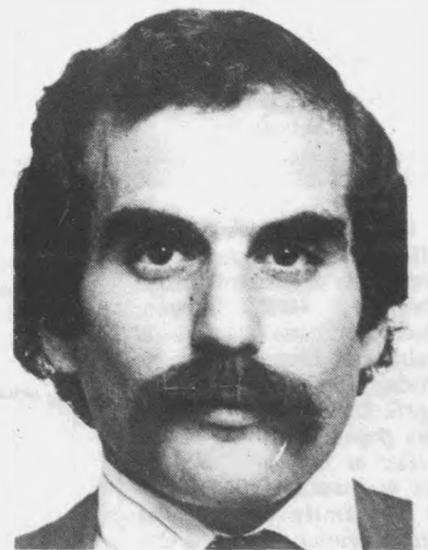

Powers said Rudnick suggested the idea as a trial during a discussion of developing a campus-wide leadership program to compensate students who are actively involved in the university.

"If somebody spends time gaining knowledge to change the way things are, then there ought to be some initiative given to them," Powers said.

Powers and Campus Activities Advisor Judy Markoe are currently working on a Leadership Development Program that would allow students to get credit for work they do in campus organizations. "So many students are forced to work and this program would give college experience some credibility," Markoe said.

Rudnick said this trial will be evaluated at the end of the year. "The total compensation of the students needs to be looked at in terms of which are most important (credit or tuition payment)," Rudnick said. He said the question must be answered regarding whether it is appropriate to pay the tuition when SA executives do receive some salary.

The 1978-79 SA budget, which was approved by the senate Monday night, calls for the monthly stipend of the President to be $320, $250 for the vice president and a raise from $235 to $250 for the directors and aides.

Just cards, no courtesy

Weingarten's has gotten rid of its courtesy cards.

Oh, yeah, they are still issuing the cards, but the courtesy has disappeared completely. The purpose of the cards was to provide little services for the patrons of the store. Now they provide little service.

First they started out by allowing the cashiers to perform the same functions as the courtesy booth once it was closed, which was a good idea since most people work the hours that the booth is open. Then they began cutting back the $50 check cashing limit, first to $15, then to $10. Now we are told it is impossible to receive change for more than a dollar from a cashier.

It is possible to get around these obstacles; you can go to five different stores to get the $50 promised on the card (although you will have to enlist the help of a friend, since the card is only good at three stores), and you can spend a good hour and a half standing in five lines to get the $5 worth of change you need for laundry. But that's not the point.

The point is that Weingarten's no longer feels that the customer is an important person, just another consumer to be exploited as long as the store doesn't lose profits. And considering that it is holding its own among the top 100 businesses in Houston, this does not seem likely in the near future.

What can be done? Shop at smaller neighborhood stores when at all possible. It will be a bit more expensive, but at least you will know that your patronage is appreciated.

Bentsen 'misses point' of CIA book

To the Editor:

About the letter from Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, (D-Texas) concerning how ex-CIA agent Philip Agee and his "small band of disgruntled radicals" and their attempts to divulge the identities of American intelligence agents are an outrage.

I'm afraid the good senator misses the point. Agee's activities may be an outrage, but the actions of the CIA, FBI, and the federal intelligence community in the past 10 years are an even greater outrage. We've seen civilians bugged and otherwise harassed, assassinations planned and numerous other infringements on the rights and privacy of people not just here in America, but in other countries as well.

Until recently, the CIA and FBI were not scrutinized in their activities around the world at all. It was a failure on the part of the President and the Congress which got the intelligence community into the piss-poor state it is in now.

The investigations of the last few years of what they've been doing have been nice, but I can't help feeling sorry Bentsen's Congress hadn't been apathetic enough to let the CIA and the FBI go as far as they did without checking up on them, and that, when it did, it didn't worry as much about what it found out as about how to turn what was found out into political capital.

Now, I don't think Agee and the people who are following his lead are saints, but I can understand that he's become embittered with our intelligence system, and is trying to keep it in line with the only weapon he's got—the knowledge he gained while he was in. But for Bentsen to condemn him for this is silly, as the fault is partly his that the man has become so embittered in the first place.

Dean corrected

To the Editor:

In the Sept. 28 edition of The Daily Cougar, Dean David Gottlieb, College of Social Sciences, is described as believing that "most teachers" are poorly trained in one area which could make classrooms less chaotic and more academic—that of classroom management. Dean Gottlieb is quoted as saying that "There is not one course of study anywhere, that I know of, which prepares a teacher for that part of the job. And at UH we have a professor in the education department who really knows classroom management, Dr. Wilford Weber."

While I very much appreciate Dean Gottlieb's kind words concerning my expertise in the area of classroom management, I feel the need to bring the following to Dean Gottlieb's attention:

The University of Houston Central Campus does offer coursework in the area of classroom management. At the graduate level, the Department of Curriculum and Instruction of the College of Education offers C&I 685: Classroom Management, a very popular course I have taught for the past five or six years. At the undergraduate level, the Professional Teacher Preparation Program offers a great deal of work in classroom management as a part of C&I 362 and C&I 333; EED 362 and EED 333; and SED 362 and SED 333. Additionally, during their student teaching, teacher education students are expected to demonstrate competence in the area of classroom management as a requirement for graduation and certification.

Finally, at least one other Texas institution offers coursework in classroom management. A former doctoral student of mine, Dr. Julie Grandinetti, offers both undergraduate and graduate coursework in classroom management at the University of St. Thomas.

Although it is true that nearly all teacher education institutions have neglected this vital area of professional training, it is clearly not true that the UH College of Education has. This relatively unique feature of our programs is no doubt due to the college's extensive program development efforts of the past half-dozen years. We can be proud of having attended to an area so many have neglected.

SA sponsors leadership workshop

by phyllis smith

The Student Association's Department of Special and Organizational Concerns will sponsor a leadership skills workshop entitled "Affecting Change Together" (ACT) on Oct. 14.

The workshop is geared toward how students and organizations can gain input to policy and source allocation within the administrative areas that affect them, according to Willis Williams, coordinator of the workshop.

The workshop will be broken down into four major areas, each lasting two hours. The topics are: setting priorities of an organization; defining and analyzing the system by knowing its red tape, its pressure points and the personalities involved; designing strategies on how to approach people within the system; and evaluating what has been accomplished and what should be done next.

Judith Detchmندی, who received her master's in political science from UH, will be one of the lecturers. She will speak on designing strategies to effect changes. She currently works as the special assistant of community affairs in Los Angeles. According to Williams, Detchmندی has done workshops of this type before.

Dr. Donald Lutz, associate professor of political science at UH, will lecture on the evaluation part of the workshop, and Eve Varellas, Campus Activities advisor, will speak on setting priorities for organizations.

A speaker for the defining and analyzing part of the workshop has not been found, according to Williams. Lee Elliott Brown, assistant to the chancellor, was scheduled to lecture on that part but is now unable to do so, according to Williams.

The workshop is free to UH students and organizations, but off-campus groups will have to pay a small charge, Williams said.

The day long workshop will be in the Hercules Room in the Continuing Education Center starting at 8 a.m. Reservations must be made by Oct. 11 and can be made by calling or coming by the SA office in the UC Underground. The SA number is 749-1366.

State reps. claim votes are bought by lori korleski

State Reps. John Whitmire and Mickey Leland said Wednesday that GOP gubernatorial candidate Bill Clements was "spending thousands of dollars" to buy votes and claimed they could substantiate it, then refused to do so.

Whitmire and Leland joined 20 other Harris County state legislators in endorsing Rep. Bob Krueger for U.S. Senate at a local press conference.

Whitmire lashed into Clements' campaign tactics, saying, "Those who think money will buy black votes are sadly mistaken. The high visibility of money will only backfire on them (the Republicans)."

When asked by a Houston Post reporter if he had proof of this, Whitmire replied "I certainly do." When pressed to substantiate what violations he personally had witnessed, he told the reporter flatly, "it is up to the press to substantiate it."

Leland said he would not release the information he had on alleged violations until after the elections. "I do not want to be accused of slinging mud, because I am part of John Hill's campaign and will abide by his ethics."

John Hill, Clements' Democratic opponent, would not comment on the legislator's refusal to report what would be blatant campaign violations. "I have not talked to legislators yet," Hill said. "I will not comment on this until I have."

The funk leaves the 'Funk'

by michelle chargois

ONE NATION UNDER A GROOVE
Funkadelic
Warner Bros. Records Inc.
BSK 3209

At one time, the Funkadelic had the ability to take disgustingly morbid, perverse lyrics, some nice abstract sound and make a hit.

Is it that our tastes have changed or is it that the Funkadelic is all funk-ed out? It just goes to show you—you can feed off to the public some of the time, but after a while, it gets old.

George Clinton, a member of both the Funkadelic and Parliament funk groups, has seen to it that we get a double dose of washed-up funk in the latest album, One Nation Under a Groove. Yes, finally, the funk has sunk.

If you want to buy an album (sides one and two) with only one good song, the title cut "One Nation Under a Groove" which also includes its own 45-disc (sides three and four), that's cool. But this is one "constriction" Clinton couldn't dance his way out of.

The 45-disc is not a total loss. "Maggot Brain" and "Lunchmeataphobia" only have one foot in the toilet. Who knows! Perhaps this the Funkadelic goal.

The only way this album could be a hit is to file it under "sunk funk."

'Avalanche' caves in on Hudson, Farrow

by h. n. graham

AVALANCHE

Director: Corey Allen; producer: Roger Corman; A New World Picture and release.

Land developer Rock Hudson is opening his new multimillion dollar ski resort. Mia Farrow, his estranged wife and an editor at Vogue, shows up at the opening for no reason. Robert Forster is a brilliant young photographer and concerned conservationist who wanders around muttering about why they'd better not keep clearing all the natural covering off those slopes. What a good time to have an avalanche!

You would think that film producers would get the idea that disaster movies are a thing of the past, and stop schlepping TV-movie disasters out like the seven plagues. Roger Corman, king of the modern-day "crap" movie, is responsible for this boring, idiotic turkey.

"Avalanche" is not just bad, it is abysmal. The special effects stink (you just can't fool many people with styrofoam blocks of snow), the acting ranges from silly (Rock Hudson) to stilted (Robert Forster gritting his teeth and playing tough) to stupid (Mia Farrow, for being in this).

The film does have one interesting notion in it. The film is only an hour and a half long, and it takes them an hour to get to the disaster. By that time, you actively want the snow to come crashing down the slope on the heads of the filmmakers.

If, instead of the tepid and forgettable film they made, the people involved had made it run about an hour more before the disaster, and then killed off EVERYONE involved in the falling snow, they might have had a great sick joke of a movie, one that gratifies you not by who survived, but by who bought it.

As it is, the film is a waste of time (yours, if you go to it) and money (theirs). Fortunately no talent was involved, or it would have been wasted, too.

Liberal use of antibiotic

by martin brown

An epidemic disease formerly responsive to drug treatment suddenly becomes resistant and kills 130,000 people in Guatemala.

In the United States, similar epidemics break out in hospital wards scattered across the country, producing up to 300,000 cases of resistant disease in one year. Thirty to 50 percent of the victims die.

A passage from a biological warfare novel? No, such incidents have actually occurred in recent years, and will continue with greater frequency and higher death tolls, according to Dr. E.S. Anderson, past president of the Enteric Reference Laboratory in London.

Dr. Anderson recently warned a meeting of the World Health Organization in Milan, Italy, that the spread of drug-resistant bacteria, which causes the epidemics, is "probably past the point of no return."

What causes these new drug-resistant germs to thrive and multiply? The chief culprit, said Anderson, is the uncontrolled and unnecessary prescription of antibiotics by the medical profession.

It has long been known that the same antibiotic would produce an epidemic of drug-resistant bacteria. But over the past 20 years, antibiotics change the genetic structure of bacteria, hasten the process of drug-resistant factor to spread from one type of bacteria to another.

The implications of this discovery are ominous:

Harmless bacteria which have been in the human intestine can, in sewage, become disease-producing bacteria which will be human being. That disease is the result of the treatments.

The problem is particularly acute in the absence of adequate sanitation, and in even the best hospitals due to sewage effluent carrying drug-resistant bacteria. In an authoritative Journal of Medical Microbiology, that, in the hospital wards, up to 43 percent of the resistant bacteria were resistant to at least one antibiotic, meaning it carried multiple drug resistance.

The inevitable consequence of such a situation was an epidemic of drug-resistant disease in the next three years spread to Mexico, where the death rate was 250 per 100,000 people compared with a normal, non-resistant dysentery. At this particular bacteria, which later became resistant to all antibiotics normally used in treatment.

A similar epidemic of typhoid fever in 1972 and produced 100,000 illnesses.

And even in developed countries, outbreaks (of infection) are taking place in hospitals and pediatric units . . . serious and communicable than previous outbreaks of those at risk and kill 20 to 30 percent of those at risk.

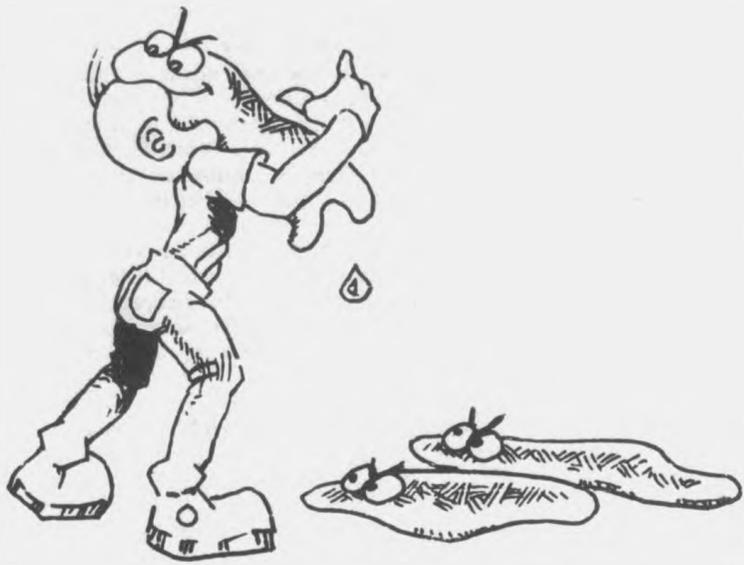

Anderson termed this unintentional form of "genetic engineering," a widespread use of antibiotics with hazardous, he warned in a recent article, at least 20 years, and are so firmly established that they will stay.

"Yet calls to limit these hazardous materials for those who supply the materials for the production of antibiotics are fought tooth and nail by the pharmaceutical industry.

The problem of uncontrolled antibiotic use has received little attention from government agencies. Mike Riddiough, a representative of the congressional Office of Technology Assessment, says "OTA is considering a comprehensive study of American medicine. Part of this study will be the prescription of antibiotics and the production of antibiotic resistance."

In fact, there is already a large problem. Six years ago, Dr. Henry J. Gold of the Federal Drug Administration reported that 10 percent of hospital patients who receive antibiotics develop resistance to the given antibiotics, even though the antibiotics are given in the doses that does not respond to antibiotics.

A 1977 study by Wayne Ray and his colleagues at the School of Medicine examined the antibiotic use in the Tennessee Medicaid program. That study found that 134,126 prescriptions, or 39 percent of the more than 7,000 prescriptions Mules laden with Blue Maguey pinas on their way to Cuervo's La Rojena plant.

Since 1795 we've gathered our Blue Magueys for Cuervo Gold the gentle way. It's the old way. And still the best.

At Cuervo we know that there is only one way to make Cuervo Gold perfect. The way we've been doing it for more than 180 years.

That's why people still nurture our fields of Blue Maguey plants. And why mules are still used to bring these precious plants to our distillery. For tradition is still the most important ingredient in Cuervo Gold.

This is what makes Cuervo Gold truly special. Neat, on the rocks, with a splash of soda, in a perfect Sunrise or Margarita, Cuervo Gold will bring you back to a time when quality ruled the world.

tibiotic, could be justified by a proper diagnosis of bacterial infection, said the study.

Another report in 1976 surveyed 20 acute care hospitals in the United States and found that 30 percent of all inpatients received antibiotics. A large portion of these doses were prescribed for "prophylactic" purposes, or to prevent infection from occurring during and after surgery, said the study.

Yet, according to Dr. Steven Barriere, professor of clinical pharmacology at the University of California Medical School in San Francisco, and an expert on the use of antibiotics, "There are very few procedures were antibiotics prophylaxis really seems indicated."

"However," he added, "you still see antibiotics used all the time . . . The impression I have is that antibiotic use is on the increase."

Barriere's suspicions were supported by a Harvard Medical School study of infection and antibiotic usage at Boston City Hospital between 1964 and 1973. It found that while the use of antibiotics did increase during that period, the incidence of infection did not decrease.

According to a recently released federal study, there are currently 1.8 million hospital-acquired infections a year, most caused by inadequate handling of medical equipment such as catheters.

Dr. Milton Silverman, research pharmacologist at the University of California School of Pharmacy and Medicine, said the problem of antibiotic overuse—and the resulting production of drug-resistant bacteria—is much worse in Latin America because of the "glaring differences in the ways in which the same multinational pharmaceutical companies describe essentially the same drug products to physicians in the United States and to their medical colleagues in Latin America."

Restrictions on sales promotion of drugs which are observed in the United States are "curtailed, glossed over or totally omitted" by pharmaceutical companies operating in Central and South America, he claimed. Also, he said, the drug overuse problem is further aggravated in Latin America by the fact that many antibiotics, such as chloramphenicol, are often available over-the-counter, without a doctor's prescription.

Chloramphenicol, he said, has become "a daily self-medication for all

'About 60 percent of the people who complain to doctors of a common cold are given antibiotics, even though the common cold is caused by a viral agent that does not respond to antibiotics.'

ills and aches," in many Latin American countries. Not surprisingly, some of these same countries have experienced epidemics of typhoid which have been resistant to the normal drug of choice, which is chloramphenicol.

The major drug companies respond to Silverman's criticism with the argument that drugs are over-restricted in the United States, and that their practices in other countries are well within the law.

In the United States, the relatively few hospitals which have introduced programs to sharply restrict use of antibiotics have run into hurdles. Physicians tend to oppose such programs on the grounds that they encroach on "the traditional freedom of a qualified physician to exercise his best judgement in therapeutic decisions involving his patients," according to Drs. Reynold Spector and Allen H. Heller of the Harvard Medical School.

But Anderson believes the problem of inadvertent genetic engineering through overuse of antibiotics is a far graver danger than the potential hazards of the genetic manipulation experiments in research labs. These latter forms of intentional genetic engineering have produced intense controversy, government investigations and demands for a halt to all such work, even though great medical benefits may result.

"There seems to me," said Anderson, "to be a lack of a sense of proportion somewhere."

Bridal Fair helps students plan weddings

by Janet Wells

The Catholic Newman Association is sponsoring a Bridal Fair this weekend to help future brides and grooms build resources useful in preparing for their upcoming wedding.

The idea, which was proposed during organizational meetings at the beginning of this semester, is to help the student prepare early for their wedding. "We are aware that people often approach marriage and encounter things they're unprepared for," said Rev. Richard Patrick, a Catholic priest on campus and the coordinator for the event.

"We hope to present different parts of the preparations so that students (and faculty) who are planning to get married will know what they will have to do to get ready," Patrick said. He also said this would make the event a less tenseful situation and one that is more joyful.

According to Patrick, the campus ministers have many students come to them looking for advice on marriage. He estimated that they spend one-third to one-half of their time helping students with their marriage plans, both for the ceremony and for their life together. He said approximately 600 marriages are performed at the chapel every year.

"The Bridal Fair is a chance for students to begin thinking about everything that is involved before they get down to the last weeks before the ceremony," Patrick said.

Persons attending the fair have a chance of winning gift certificates and merchandise from participating stores. Foley's will be giving away a bridal veil, Gittings-Texas Inc., will be giving away a $100 certificate for wedding pictures, and the caterers and florists will also be awarding similar merchandise.

The fair begins Oct. 7 and runs through Oct. 8. The event will begin at 10 a.m. on Saturday at the Catholic Newman Center (directly across from entrance 1 on Calhoun) and will end at 5 p.m. Sunday's hours are from noon to 5 p.m.

A fashion show will be held both days at 1 and 2 p.m., respectively.

Sponsors for the event are Foley's, Al's Formal Wear, Simmons Florist, Marlin Catering, Joseph Photographic Studio, Huwyler Catering, Joyce's Bridal Shop, Salazar Printing, Ventura's Formal Wear, Gittings-Texas Inc., Flower Mart, and Betty's Flowers.

Patrick said that the response he has received from students has been good so far. If the event goes over well, he would like to see it become an annual event with more sponsoring merchants participating every year.

Work-study looking for students

Some jobs are located off campus, but most are found on campus for the sake of convenience and time. The people holding these jobs are work-study students who apply for them at the financial aid office in Ezekiel Cullen Building.

Any student who can show a financial need may put in an application for a work-study award. The jobs require a variety of skills and pay accordingly.

The jobs are part time to allow the student time to attend classes and to study, but full-time work is available during the holidays.

Students who have been awarded work-study but have not taken jobs should go to Room 23, Ezekiel Cullen Building for placement.

OU still No. 1 in AP poll, Porkers slip to fourth place

by the associated press

Southern California, getting an assist from an Oklahoma school, is the No. 2 football team in the land while the University of Oklahoma is still No. 1.

Southern Cal beat Michigan State 30-9 last week and moved from third to second in The Associated Press poll as Arkansas dropped from second to fourth after needing a second-half rally to beat unranked Tulsa 21-13. Michigan also took advantage of Arkansas' struggle, beating Duke 52-0 and moving up from No. 4 to third.

Oklahoma, 4-0 after a 45-23 victory over Missouri, received 38 of 63 first-place votes and 1,220 points Tuesday from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Southern Cal received 14 first-place votes and 1,166 points, Michigan got six first-place votes and 1,093 points. Arkansas received three first-place votes and 1,062 points. The other two first-place ballots went to No. 5 Penn State, which received 1,049 points after routing Texas Christian 58-0.

Rounding out the Top Ten were Texas, a 24-7 winner over Texas Tech; Texas A&M, which exchanged places with Alabama after beating Memphis State 58-0; Alabama which needed a second-half rally to beat Vanderbilt 51-28; Pittsburgh, which rallied in the fourth quarter to edge North Carolina 20-16, and Nebraska, which moved up from 12th after mauling Indiana 69-17.

The only team to fall from the Top Ten was Florida State, which lost to UH, 27-21 and dropped to 18th place.

The Second Ten: Louisiana State, Maryland, Colorado, Ohio State, Iowa State, UCLA, Stanford, Florida State, Auburn and North Carolina State.

Last week, it was LSU, Nebraska, Ohio State, Missouri, Maryland, Colorado, Iowa State, UCLA, Georgia and Stanford.

Nigerian heads UH spikers

by Janet Wells

His limber body crouches as if he were a panther preparing to strike. Suddenly, Ben Eruchalu stretches to his full 6-foot-5-inch height and he swings his right arm above his head in a circular motion. Down comes his hand on the volleyball, and he sends the ball spinning to the gym floor.

Having just completed a successful spike, the second year design major prepares once again to attack the ball.

It is a game that he enjoys deeply, and a game at which he's had to work very hard.

He practiced three times a day when he was a member of the Nigerian National Olympic Volleyball team in 1976. As part of his training, Eruchalu practiced from 6 to 10 a.m., again from 4 to 6 p.m., and finally from midnight until 4 a.m.

He didn't begin playing until he was in high school where one of the British instructors persuaded the then captain of the basketball team to come to a couple of practices just to see whether or not he could play. Eruchalu did, and in 1973, he was named volleyball's Man of the Year in Anambra, Nigeria. The honor is given to the best player in the state for that year.

In 1975, he was playing for an Olympic-bound team that was later disqualified. Two days before the team was scheduled to leave, they were told that because of his country's stand on apartheid they would not be able to attend the Olympic Games. Eruchalu called it "an opportunity lost. I wanted to be in the games. If you can't play in the Olympics, you aren't playing yet," he said.

Eruchalu, who plays on the UH men's volleyball team, admits that he has high standards. "Right now I really don't have big goals as far as volleyball goes. I just want to be as good as I was. I think that by next semester, every individual on the UH team will be playing big-team ball, but we need to practice more."

He said that the team has been steadily getting better in their game and he promised that the team would be better in their next match if they continue to work as they have been.

He said that he probably won't play much volleyball once he graduates from UH in 1981. "Volleyball and architecture just don't mix," he said. "I will play as much as I possibly can. That is, as long as I have time for my designs."

After graduation, Eruchalu plans to return to Nigeria to work with his father and two brothers who are involved in architecture.

In the meantime, he's working on his volleyball skills so that UH will "be able to be a big-league team."

UT plagued with injuries

AUSTIN (AP)—Six Texas starters, including the two leading tacklers and the top runner, pass receiver and punt returner, have not worked out for the game against No. 1 Oklahoma because of injuries or illness.

Coach Fred Akers told the Longhorn Club on Wednesday "It is too cloudy," to say whether the six will play Saturday before a regional television audience and a sellout crowd of 72,032 at the Cotton Bowl in Dallas.

The sixth-ranked Texas team suffered the injuries in Texas' 24-7 Southwest Conference victory over Texas Tech last Saturday, a game Akers called "very physical."

The injury list includes:

- Defensive tackle Steve McMichael, who leads the team in tackles with 39, pulled hamstring.
- Defensive tackle Bill Acker, second with 34 tackles, leg injury.
- Safety Johnnie Johnson, who has returned 13 punts for 62 yards, pulled hamstring.
- Johnny "Ham" Jones, the leading rusher with 236 yards on 55 carries for a 4.3-yard average, bruised shoulder.
- Ricky Churchman, defensive back, bruised hip.
- Johnny "Lam" Jones, who has averaged nearly 33 yards a catch on five pass receptions, flu-like illness.

"They're not working out," Akers said, "but the main thing is that they be there on Saturday."

Oklahoma is 4-0 and leads the nation in scoring—49.5 points a game—and total offense, averaging 515.7 yards a game. Texas ranks third defensively, allowing 172.7 yards a game in its 3-0 season.

Asked about the game's starting time, Akers said, "As far as I know it's high noon. We'll be there around noon, and anytime they want to start we'll get after it."
