Isolated Moslem group charged with shooting

Cairo, Egypt (AP) — Egypt said Wednesday that an "isolated" group of four soldiers including a Moslem fanatic murdered President Anwar Sadat, and the government quickly scheduled a referendum next week to approve Vice President Hosni Mubarak as Sadat's successor.

Parliament held an emergency session to overwhelmingly endorse the nomination that Egypt's ruling party gave Mubarak within hours of Sadat's murder Tuesday.

The Parliament's action meant Mubarak's name will be the only one on the ballot Oct. 13. The date falls within Egypt's 60-day constitutional limit.

Defense Minister Abdel Halim Aub Ghazala told reporters during a break in the parliamentary session that Sadat's murderers were not part of a coup plot but were "an individual group and they are not even related to any group or country."

Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. echoed that assessment at a news conference in Washington, saying there was no evidence of external involvement in the murder.

But Haig served notice to Libya and other radical Arab states opposed to Sadat's peace treaty with Israel that the United States "would view with great concern" any attempt to seize upon the murder to fan instability in the Mideast.

Haig will lead the U.S. delegation to Sadat's funeral Saturday. President Reagan will not attend for security reasons, the White House said. But he asked former Presidents Jimmy Carter, Richard Nixon and Gerald Ford to go with Haig. Carter and Nixon accepted, but there was no word from Ford.

Israeli Prime Minister

Menachem Begin also will attend the funeral, and in a letter to Mubarak said, "we are confident that the legacy of peace of President Sadat will live on... this is a sacred trust we have to fulfill."

Sadat's body was being held at Maadi military hospital, and officials said there were no plans for it to lie in state. They said it would be taken to a mosque near the parade ground in the section of Cairo known as Nasr City, then interred in a mausoleum near the reviewing stand in which Sadat was killed.

Sadat's family remained in seclusion, with the slain president's only son, 25-year-old Gamal, rushing home from a vacation in Florida.

In Parliament, all 330 votes counted in the special session, endorsed Mubarak. Another 55 members of parliament abstained, four were absent and three votes were disqualified, officials said.

A two-thirds majority of the 392 members of parliament, or 261 votes, was needed to endorse Mubarak as Parliament's nominee. He is expected to be sworn in Oct. 15. Mubarak was chosen by Sadat in 1975 to be his vice president and eventual successor.

Information lapse causes delays in financial aid

By JAMES RUSSO
Writer for The Daily Cougar

Government postponements and an understaffed financial aid office are the two reasons why the basic grant program has been delayed this fall semester, according to Financial Aid Director Rob Sheridan.

Some students have yet to receive the money that was supposed to be available to them at the beginning of the semester, Sheridan said.

"We had to sit on about 2,500 grants," he said, "when we finally got the necessary forms, those were the ones we began to process first."

The government forms were received in August, but there was not enough time to process the grants by the beginning of this fall semester.

The Basic Grant Cost of Education Formula was released by the Department of Education in mid-August instead of early summer as it has in the past. This was caused by the Reagan administration's supplemental funding process.

The Grant Payment Schedule, which compliments the Basic Cost of Education Formula was also delayed by Reagan's funding process, Sheridan said.

The problem the financial aid office faces now is the same problem facing most offices at the University of Houston, Sheridan said.

"Because of the budget cuts, our staff has been reduced from 24 to 18. These people are having to work on the grants that were supposed to be ready this fall and at the same time work on the things coming into our offices every day," said Sheridan.

Finding a classroom

Students march on E. Cullen for space

By MIKE MONSON
News Editor

Seventy-seven students marched into the offices of both Provost George Wagner and Chancellor Barry Munitz yesterday afternoon demanding a classroom change.

The students were members of Dr. Kent Tedin's political science class which meets in the E. Cullen auditorium from 10-11 a.m. on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

Magner met with the students at 10:20 in the overcrowded foyer outside his office. He was presented a petition by Sandra Purdue, who carried a placard that said, "We want a decent classroom."

The students, led by Purdue and Carl Chain, presented Magner with their complaints. They told him that the lighting in the auditorium was inadequate, that they couldn't hear the teacher, that there was no place on the chairs to take notes, and that the classroom did not have a blackboard.

They also said that they knew of two adequate and available classrooms one in the Fine Arts Building and the Kiva Room and asked Magner why previous efforts to obtain a room change had failed.

Magner replied, "We have run out of classrooms for the size class you have, at the time you hold your class. We are working on opening the Kiva room."

A student in the crowd shouted, "Shouldn't that have been taken care of before we paid our $90 building use fee?"

Magner answered, "I would like to take care of all problems before they happen. But obviously, since you're all here, I can't always do that. In this large an institution, things just don't happen that fast."

Magner urged the crowd to listen to what he had to say. "Based on what you have said, I see that you have a definite complaint here. I will commit myself to getting you out of that room by the end of the week. Understand though, I have made a few commitments in my career that I have been unable to keep."

The group then went en masse downstairs to the Chancellors office chanting, "We want a room!"

Chain was later asked why it was necessary to demonstrate at both offices. "Since all the previous efforts by us and Dr. Kent had been unsuccessful because of a bureaucratic run-around, we were trying to put the pressure on everyone possible to make sure we got results," Chain said.

The students hesitated a few moments outside of the chancellor's office. A few voices shouted, "Let's go in!" The group then spilled into the lobby shouting, "We want Barry! We want Barry!"

Once inside, there was a five minute delay. The receptionist informed the students that Munitz was off campus at a meeting. The students refused to leave, again taking up the shout, "We want Barry!"

Eventually, the crowd was instructed to go to a boardroom down the hall to meet with Senior Vice-Chancellor Dr. Robert Lawless.

Purdue led the students into the board room. She presented Lawless with another petition and told him, "Half the class hasn't heard half of what's been said so far in the semester, and we are very concerned about taking the mid-term without desks."

From the back, a student shouted, "Somebody has to be in charge of classroom scheduling, but everybody is telling us that it's somebody else's job. We're trying to go to school and haven't got the time to run around looking for a suitable room. We want to know who's responsible."

Speaking over the sound of cheers, Lawless admitted that he wasn't responsible and said, "Finding out who is responsible is not going to solve your problem."

A student asked, "Then what is it?"

Lawless replied, "Finding you a better classroom."

Chain then interjected with, "We don't want any more hearsay, we —"

He was interrupted by Lawless demanding, "Are you saying my word is no good?"

After a brief silence, Chain replied, "You just said so when you said you weren't in charge!"

Lawless laughed along with the students and said, "Without putting blame, the person responsible for room scheduling works in the Provost's Office. But I'll do my best to get you into the Kiva Room by Friday."

After the students spoke with Magner and Lawless, Kent received word from the office of the provost that the class would be moved to the Kiva room located in Farish Hall by Friday.

More on abortion

To the Editor:

In light of the long-standing controversy concerning abortion, I should like to point out the impropriety of the implication that proponents of abortion are Neo-Nazis. It is the most vile and base sort of propagandization, and bespeaks an attitude comparable in quality.

To disagree with one another on personal, political, or moral issues, is normal. Unfortunately, some persons find themselves unable to treat the issues, rather than mistreat, or abuse, those who disagree with them.

By way of example, I call to mind a recent article, published in this Cougar on Oct. 6, 1981, written by a certain Mr. Y. It pleases Mr. Y, who apparently opposes the principles behind, and the practice of, abortion, to portray those who do not hold his opinions as heartless, gruesome monsters. I would respectfully suggest that such a characterization is heartless, and gruesome, and further, that many who advocate the accessibility of such a last-ditch means of birth control do so in a spirit of concern for themselves and their fellow human beings.

It strikes me as most heartless to deprive an individual of the right to one's own body. If Mr. Y does not care to subject his body to the rigors of an abortion, so be it. I fault neither him nor anyone else for such a decision; it is theirs, certainly. I might, however, respectfully request that others be accorded this same privilege of self-determination.

It would seem that those whose rights are in danger of being abridged are not, as Mr. Y suggests, the old, ugly or weak, but rather, those persons whom deign to disagree with Mr. Y. Also in danger, I fear, are those persons who, in order that they might consider this question intelligently, deserve to have a clear understanding of the issue being contended, free of the confusion fostered by those who, perhaps, either misunderstand the issue at hand themselves, or who fear their inability to persuade opinion by careful consideration of that issue. As the former consideration is certainly conceivable, I should like to clarify the said issue, if I may: The question of abortion is precisely that; not a question of euthanasia. I trust that Mr. Y is able to assimilate this deceptively small piece of information, perhaps for future reference.

I must say that I abhor the devaluation of human rights. Such devaluation, I think, is dangerous. If I might employ a bit of Mr. Y's own reasoning: If I accede to my right to my own body and its uses to Mr. Y, allowing him to prevent me from clambering aboard the surgical table of my choice, for whatever medical purpose I deem fit, at what point might this end? If Mr. Y may decide what is to issue from my uterus, perhaps he would wish to decide what other forms of elective medical treatment I might receive. Mr. Y, may I please remove my gallstones? Snip my hemorrhoids? Extract my wisdom teeth? Given the right to prevent my acquiring medical treatment, who can force at what point Mr. Y might assume the right to place me on the surgical table, for whatever purpose he may desire — vivisection, perhaps, for those who persist in opposing him.

I question any philosophy which values any informed opinion over any equally informed opinion. I question the validity of any argument which resorts in invective and vituperation.

Four people are lost in the desert; a highly opinionated man, a moron, a heartless bigot, and a pregnant woman. Each suggest a different direction to be taken, in order that they might rescue themselves from their predicament. How can this problem be solved?

Let each follow the direction that they find most suitable.

Melcher Gym needs security

To the Editor,

On September 30 at approximately 9:15 p.m., a female companion and myself discovered a young Negro male inside the women's locker room of Melcher Gym. Unfortunately, we had changed into our swimsuits before making this discovery. We informed the basket room attendant of the presence of the male intruder and one might go so far as to say she was slightly concerned but by no means was she overwhelmed. She told us that there was supposed to be someone watching the outside entrance to the locker room but the guard was nowhere to be seen. It is obvious that the young Negro was watching the door and observed us entering the empty locker room and followed us in.

Upon our return to the locker room after our swim, we discovered a large piece of wood propping the back door open which had not been there when we began. The door has no handle on the outside to prevent anyone from entering the locker room undetected but the system has blatant loopholes. Needless to say, we gathered our belongings and made a hasty exit. The basketroom attendant was gone.

I must confess that I, like most UH students, am characteristically apathetic. However, I feel I must shed my apathy to protest inadequate campus security for my own safety. If university policy is going to allow the use of such facilities as the swimming pool, action must be taken to protect the student. The crime rate on this campus is well known and the security system around the athletic facilities is lax. It is our right and our privilege as students of this university to use the athletic facilities without fear of harm. In my opinion it is not unreasonable to ask that a few safeguards be instigated for our protection.

In actuality, this instance was the second occurrence of its kind of which I am aware. In the spring semester I came upon another young Negro male viewing the sites of the women's locker room. I reported this incident to the TA teaching my tennis class. She was concerned but she did not think that anything could be done about it. I disagree.

It is time something is done about campus security before a small case of adolescent voyeurism becomes a major incident. Needless to say, this university cannot afford the bad publicity it will receive if this sort of thing is allowed to continue, not to mention possible legal action if something more serious were to occur. What is going to be done about peeping Toms in Melcher's locker room? When is something to be done? After a major incident? I think not.

Winemakers suffer labor problems, also

St. Emilion, France (AP) — "It tastes a bit too much of water," Jan-Jacques Moueix grumbled, sampling one of the dark, blue grapes in his vineyard. "It will be good this year, but not as good as we'd hoped two weeks ago before the rains came."

Wine growers such as Moueix, here in the heart of Bordeaux country, are fretting about the weather, the labor problems involved in the harvest and, above all, the critics.

The early reviews of the 1981 French wine harvest are in, and the general judgment is that there will be a significant improvement in quality compared to 1980, which was considered about average. The harvest has not been bountiful, however.

An estimated 140 million bottles of wine will be produced from this year's crop, compared to 177 million in 1980, which already was considered a below average yield.

Here, where Moueix produces the highly-prized "grand cru" wines of the St. Emilion commune at his Chateau Fontroques, production may be down as much as 25 percent from last year.

About the same is anticipated for the Bourgogne region where the wine is expected to exceed 1980 in quality but fall a bit short of the well-received 1979 harvest.

Wine experts also look forward to this year's Beaujolais, which they say should be more uniform in quality than last year. Its production is again down however, even though the Beaujolais region was one of the few not hit by the late frost in the spring.

Haig has hard time answering reporter's question on women

Washington (AP) — Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. fielded tough and diplomatically sensitive questions on AWACS and the aftermath of Anwar Sadat's assassination at his news conference Wednesday, but he was thrown for a loop by a question about women.

Haig had talked about the delegation of Americans who will attend the funeral Saturday and was asked by reporter Sarah McClendon: "You didn't mention that any women were going on this funeral delegation."

"Oh, golly," said the secretary of state.

"Women are very interested in peace and also Mrs. Sadat's been a world leader for human rights and peace," Ms. McClendon persisted.

"I agree with that," said Haig. "I think our problem will be simply how much space we have and whether you make an exception..."

Ms. McClendon, who runs a news service for a number of newspapers in Texas, was quick to break in.

"Oh, sir, come on," she said. "You've got enough space for some women."

"In my heart, yes, always," said Haig.

A few minutes later, he apologized for being "so flippant." He said he doesn't have an answer yet and that he'll have to see whether some women will go.

"You agree we have some qualified women who could go?" asked Ms. McClendon.

"We have qualified women, period," said Haig.

And still later, after being handed a note, the secretary returned to the subject.

"Now Sarah," he said, "I again remain just appalled that I was so lethargic and so overawed by your question that I forgot to point out to you that our U.N. ambassador, Jeane Kirkpatrick, will be on the delegation to Egypt."

Students can obtain free legal advice through campus office

By MARY MARTIN
Writer for the Daily Cougar

Legal aid is available here on campus for a reasonable price — free.

"Students whose incomes fall below the federal poverty level may obtain free legal counsel from The Legal Aid Clinic," Assistant Director Kay Whyburn said.

According to Whyburn, most students not employed full-time will meet the eligibility requirements. Students employed full-time with dependents may also be eligible, she added.

"There is an actual dollar figure used to calculate eligibility, but I hesitate to reveal that figure publicly to students," said Whyburn.

The only fees incurred by the students are court costs, which includes a filing fee of approximately $100.

The Legal Aid Clinic, which is funded and operated by the UH Bates College of Law, can handle a variety of cases, including felonies, according to Whyburn. Theft, drunken driving, hot checks and landlord-tenant problems constitute the majority of the student cases handled.

The clinic is located in the Teaching Unit I building of the Bates College of Law. The clinic is open Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Clients are seen by appointment only.

Third-year law students, under the supervision of Whyburn and Dr. Joseph Hensley, professor of law and director of the clinic, act as legal counsels.

"Working in the clinic is voluntary, and it serves as a five-credit law course," Whyburn said. Eight students now work in the clinic and 222 cases are pending.

"Besides the student population, the clinic also offers its services to the entire Houston community," Whyburn said. Eligibility requirements are the same for all clients.

Clients are referred to the clinic by judges, lawyers and organizations such as The Gulf Coast Legal Foundation, "a federally-funded law office serving the poor," Whyburn said.

Current cases pending include eviction, divorce, welfare fraud and child support.

The Legal Aid Clinic does not handle some cases, including lawsuits against the university, divorces where property is involved, adoptions and immigration. "Fee generated cases, (those where statute provides for recovery of an attorney's fee) are also not handled by the clinic," Whyburn said.

In a hierarchy, each member tends to rise to his level of incompetence.

Jokes wait on Aggies

By RICHARD BROWN
Sports Editor

The Cougars are pumped up for Texas A&M. After they blasted Baylor last Saturday 24-3, some Coogs were shouting, "Bring on the Aggies!" as they entered their Astrodome locker room.

UH plays an Aggie team in Kyle Field Saturday that nipped Texas Tech 24-23 last week. Both teams have identical 3-1 overall records and both are tough against the rush.

The Cougars are ranked third nationally in rushing defense, allowing 55.7 yards a game. The Aggies have yielded 86.2 on the average to rate eighth nationally.

Aggie Coach Tom Wilson, who watched the Cougars tear Baylor apart on television, sees UH stretching the Aggies to their limits.

"I was very impressed with (UH quarterback) Lionel Wilson," Wilson said. "He has the ability to scramble, has a quick release on his passes. I was impressed with Houston's quickness on offense. And Houston has a great defense. It's big, quick and aggressive. Houston will be, by far, the best football team we've faced this season."

The Cougars also know A&M will be tough. The Aggies rank second in the SWC in total offense, with a 424.0 yard-per-game average, and they have put 108 points on the board. UH has allowed opponents to score just 32.

A&M junior quarterback Gary Kubiak ran for 49 yards and hit 11 of 18 passes for 137 yards against Tech. He's second in total offense in the SWC with a game average of 176.7 yards.

The Aggies' rush depends on the talents of junior tailbacks Johnny Hector and Earnest Jackson. Hector leads the Aggies in rushing and scoring, with 407 yards and five touchdowns on 53 carries, while Jackson has gained 366 yards on 66 tries.

The Cougars counter with Wilson, fullbacks Allen Polk and David Barrett, and running back Eddie Wright. In two games, Wilson has picked up 463 yards in total offense and has been responsible for five touchdowns.

Barrett had the best day of his career so far against Baylor, carrying 25 times for 104 yards and one touchdown. Polk has scored three touchdowns and Wright averages 4.6 yards a carry.

UH, though, won't have the services of placekicker Jeff Shaffer, due to a pulled muscle in his kicking leg. Shaffer kicked a fourth-quarter 27-yard field goal last Saturday. He has been good on 10 of 11 extra point attempts.

These gentlemen haven't decided to embark on modeling careers yet; they're too busy running for the 1981 Cougars. (From left) Fullbacks David Barrett and Allen Polk, and running back Eddie Wright form the nucleus of the Cougar running attack. Their combined four-game totals come to 571 yards and four touchdowns on 142 carries.

Conference preview

Texas [3-0] vs. Oklahoma [1-1-1] at Dallas: The Sooners were knocked out of the No. 1 spot in the Associated Press college football poll two weeks ago in a last-second 28-24 loss to Southern Cal. They then tied with Iowa State last week, 7-7. Oklahoma is the No. 2 rushing team in the country with 6.4 yards gained per try and 358 yards per game, while Texas has the second leading defense against the rush in the nation with 1.1 yards allowed per play and 40 yards yielded per game. The battle will be the Texas defensive line, anchored by Kenneth Sims, against the Sooner wishbone rushing of Stanley Wilson (105.7 yards per game), Kelly Phelps (7.9 yards per carry) and Buster Rhymes (nine yards a whack). The Longhorns hold a 45-27-3 lead in the series that dates back to 1900, with Texas winning the last two years. The Longhorns are within two games of winning their 600th game.

Arkansas [3-1, 1-0 in SWC] at Texas Tech [1-3, 0-2 in SWC]: Both teams will try to rebound from close SWC losses last week. Tech lost a 23-10 fourth quarter lead over Texas A&M before losing 24-23. The Razorbacks fell to TCU 28-24 after leading at one point 24-13. Arkansas leads the Tech series 20-4, and is 10-1 at Jones Stadium, including the last six. Arkansas leads the SWC in pass defense, allowing 143.2 yards a game.

Baylor [3-2, 1-1 in SWC] at SMU [4-0, 1-0 in SWC]: The last six games in this series have been decided by a total of 27 points, with Baylor winning four. Mustangs are ranked 14th in the AP poll and rank in the top 10 nationally in total offense, rushing scoring and rushing defense. Baylor's rushing tandem of Walter Abercrombie and Dennis Gentry are the Bears' 1-2 career rushers who were stopped cold by a fierce Cougar defense in last week's 24-3 UH win.

TCU [2-2, 1-1 in SWC] at Rice [1-3, 0-1 in SWC]: Both teams won last week. The Frogs ended a 22-year drought against Arkansas while Rice popped Tulane 20-16. Frogs' quarterback Steve Stamp is the nation's second-leading passer and Stanley Washington is the top receiver in the country.

Coog spiker is an all-around sport

By BRENDA ALVARADO
Sports Writer

Former Wheatly High School right fielder Linda Williams is living proof that the male-dominated sport scene can be co-educational.

Williams, who is now a member of the UH women's volleyball team, was the only woman to play on a men's high school baseball team in the history of the Houston Independent School District.

The feat came to pass thanks to a court hearing, the patience of Wheatly baseball Coach Eugene Jones and Williams' competitive nature.

"At that time, Linda came along and she was the best at that position," Jones said. "She was quiet, easygoing and the ideal female athlete dedicated enough to fit into any athletic program."

Williams, 22, began her baseball career playing softball at age 15 for a local pony league team.

"It was after volleyball season," Williams said, "and the guys were practicing baseball one day. I went out and started catching for them. Then Coach Jones asked me to play for the team."

It didn't bother her being the only woman on the Wildcats, since some of the guys were from her neighborhood.

Williams was active in other sports. She played on Wheatly's tennis and volleyball teams, and ran track.

The spirit of athletics traveled with her to Wharton Junior College and she joined the tennis and basketball teams. She was also the captain of the volleyball team. The 5-foot-4½ spiker transferred to UH and lent her talents to first-year volleyball Head Coach Dave Olbright's rebuilding efforts. Olbright inherited a team that found itself decimated by the departure of Ruth Nelson to LSU. Three key

Williams

Cougar starters left to join Nelson in Baton Rouge.

Olbright is glad to have her as a player. "She is a potentially very good player," Olbright said, "but she hasn't had the court time that could give her experience. I'm waiting for her to be one of the best hitters on the team this year."

Williams, a health and physical education major, has enjoyed sports since she was seven years old.

"My brother got a basketball set for Christmas when he was five," Williams said. "Since he was too little to use it, the neighborhood kids and I played with it."

At that time, Williams had thoughts of playing professional basketball or volleyball when she got older. But now her ambitions have changed.

"I want to get out of school and coach either high school or college volleyball," she said.

But for now, Williams and the rest of the Cougars will be competing against 11 other teams in the 15th Annual UH Volleyball Invitational Oct. 8-10.

The tournament includes teams from Oral Roberts, which won the Kansas State Invitational earlier this season with a perfect 7-0 match record; Purdue, which picked up the Redbird Invitational title at Illinois State; and Tulane, which captured the New Orleans Invitational and has a 9-1 season record.

Olbright, though his team has a 7-13-2 record so far this season, thinks the Cougars are playing as well as they can be.

"I feel we have a good chance to finish in the top four," Olbright said. "Our mental consistency has been our problem this year. Even though it should be a strong tournament, I think we'll do well."

The competition starts with pool play today at 7 and 8:45 p.m. in Hofheinz Pavilion and Garrison Gym, and will continue Friday at 9 and 10:45 a.m.

It's Walling this time who comes to rescue the Astros

Astrodome (AP) — It was the kind of cliff-hanger that has become almost a trademark of the Houston Astros.

There they were again Wednesday...extra innings, two outs, score tied. This time, pinch-hitter Denny Walling drilled a bases-loaded liner into the right center field alley to give the Astros a 1-0 victory in 11 innings over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Now the Astros have a 2-0 lead in the National League Western Division best-of-five series. The two teams travel to Los Angeles for the third game Friday and any subsequent games Saturday and Sunday.

The loser again was Dave Stewart, who was tagged for a two-out, two-run homer by Alan Ashby in the bottom of the ninth Tuesday night for a 3-1 Houston win.

Phil Garner, who scored the winning run, said the Astros wanted a sweep of the series because "we would hate to let 'em get their heads above water in their own park."

Shallow-playing right fielder Derrel Thomas caught Houston's eye before Walling's clutch hit.

"I noticed that Thomas was playing shallow in the earlier innings and remarked about it on the bench," Walling said. "I wanted to take it up the middle. It was a fastball over the plate and I kept my shoulder down and drove through it."

Dodgers first baseman Steve Garvey thinks all is not lost for his team. "I've been playing with Los Angeles eleven years now and we've always bounced back," Garvey said. "However, this is the first time I've lost two playoff games in a row. That should be enough incentive to come back and use our homefield advantage."

Walling's clutch hit on an 1-1 pitch from reliever Tom Niedenfuer scored Garner from third base with the winning run.

The loser, Stewart, came on in the bottom of the 11th and yielded back-to-back singles by Garner and Tony Scott.

The Dodgers walked Cesar Cedeno intentionally to load the bases to set the stage for Walling, who was pitch-hitting for shortstop Dickie Thon.

The winner was Joe Sambito, who came on in the top of the 11th and got out of a jam after yielding a double to pinch-hitter Steve Yeager.

Starters Jerry Reuss and Joe Niekro were locked in a tense duel until Niekro left after eight innings. Reuss was replaced after nine innings of work in which he allowed just five hits.

The Dodgers wasted excellent scoring chances in the second, third, sixth and seventh innings as Niekro continually bore down in the clutch.

Nebraska wild pot harvest underway

Omaha, Neb. (AP) — They come in airplanes and four-wheel drive vehicles, bearing special maps and wearing camouflage fatigues. They are marijuana hunters, and their target is the low grade pot that grows wild — and plentifully — along Midwestern fencerows and ditches. The marijuana harvest in Nebraska is on again and State Patrol officers say the pace this year is "hot and heavy."

Lt. Robert Clinkenbeard, head of the patrol's drug division in eastern Nebraska, said arrest statistics indicate that out-of-staters are doing most of the pot picking and taking the crop with them to be mixed with high-grade imported marijuana before it's sold.

Clinkenbeard said 436 people have been arrested for picking pot in Nebraska since 1975; just 126 were Nebraskans.

He cited three incidents in just the past two months:

Four people from Maine and a Massachusetts man are arrested along Interstate 80. Thirty-three duffle bags stuffed with 1,455 pounds of "Nebraska ditch" are seized along with $4,000 cash, two cars and a van.

Twelve people from New York, Oregon, Hawaii, California and New Mexico are charged with various drug law violations after several are arrested on a Nebraska farm that authorities suspect was rented solely for pot harvesting.

Near Lincoln, four Georgians are arrested in a field and 150 pounds of freshly picked pot seized. Authorities had been tipped that some people who'd harvested in Nebraska before were back for more.

Clinkenbeard said that last year alone, 125 people were arrested for harvesting marijuana and almost two tons of pot worth an estimated $2 million were seized along with a $12,000 airplane and 26 vehicles valued at $64,000.

And the harvesters are using ever more sophisticated methods.

"For instance, they're using expensive police scanners, 50-channel programmable scanners. You're talking a lot of money there," Clinkenbeard said.

Nebraska road maps with prime marijuana areas marked out are being sold around the country, he said. To avoid arousing the suspicions of local residents, some harvesters rent farmhouses.

"We've found these spots where they've had marijuana spread on all the floors of these old farm places to dry. Some use them as a place to store the stuff," Clinkenbeard said.

Authorities have also been finding garbage compactors used to compress wild marijuana into crude bales, he added. "They're kind of innovative in their dealings, so it keeps us on our toes trying to keep up with the latest trends."

Despite the evidence of more active domestic pot harvesting, federal officials say they're too busy trying to keep tabs on imports to help Nebraska or other Midwestern states.

"Our 2,000 agents are scattered extremely thin," Horton Heath, a spokesman for the Drug Enforcement Administration, said at the agency's headquarters in Washington. "They are not in a position to be able to aid the states in their domestic programs . . . and I don't see that situation changing."

"We rely on reports from the states . . . Most of the knowledge and effort that goes on in this building is in connection with the international marijuana traffic. That's serious enough."

Heath said most marijuana available in the United States is grown in Columbia and enters this country through Florida. Other sources are Jamaica and Mexico. "About 7 percent of it is grown domestically," Heath said.

Sophisticated smokers of marijuana shy away from wild marijuana, Heath said. Levels of THC — tetrahydrocannabinol, the chemical compound that gives pot its kick — in wild marijuana are just one half of 1 percent.

Heath said the THC levels in Mexican pot are around 2 percent, and Columbian weed hits 3 percent or higher.

But Clinkenbeard thinks THC levels are unimportant to people who travel thousands of miles to harvest Nebraska's new wild weed, most of which comes from the hemp plants the federal government encouraged farmers to grow during World War II.

Clinkenbeard said the "entrepreneurs" arrested in one case were wrapping bales of Nebraska marijuana in Mexican newspapers. "This would naturally make it appear that it, the marijuana, came from Mexico and would inflate the price," he said.

Clinkenbeard's year-by-year arrest and seizure figures lead him to believe the activity in Nebraska could be linked to national supplies of Columbian or Jamacian grass: the less high-grade marijuana available, the more demand for "Nebraska ditch."

Haig warns U.S. will watch Middle East

Washington (AP) — Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. served notice to Libya and other radical Arab nations Wednesday that the United States "would view with great concern" any attempt to seize upon the murder of Egypt's Anwar Sadat to fan instability in the Mideast.

Haig said also that America remains a full partner in the peace process initiated by Sadat, "this gigantic personality," and is committed to "pursue his work" toward a comprehensive Middle East settlement. He pledged full support to the Egyptian government now headed by Hosni Mubarak, Sadat's hand-picked heir.

The secretary of state also affirmed the administration's determination to sell AWACS radar planes and other military gear to Saudi Arabia, saying the $8.5-billion package is now "more important than ever." As he spoke, President Reagan met with virtually the entire Republican majority of the Senate in an attempt to reverse a congressional move against the sale.

The House Foreign Affairs Committee, as expected, approved a resolution Wednesday to veto the AWACS deal. The deal will go through unless both houses of Congress vote to veto it by Nov. 1.

In a midday news conference, Haig declared the United States "would view with great concern at this juncture any efforts by external powers to manipulate the tragic events of the last 24 hours."

Of the Libyans, he said he had "no evidence of their involvement" in Sadat's slaying, even though the level and character of "their rhetoric would give one pause. We hope they would not be tempted."

Haig obviously was referring to Libya's pronouncements in the wake of the murder, including strongman Moammar Kadafy's congratulations to the men who killed Sadat and his call for the Egyptian armed forces to take power and reverse the government's pro-Western course.

Moreover, Radio Tripoli urged Egyptians to revolt and said they "should march on the hospital" to destroy Sadat's body.

Asked if he also was telling Moscow to keep hands off, Haig said he did not intend to imply

Attempts to seize power in Egypt discouraged

"anything untoward."

"I think the Soviet Union knows our position, our friendship and our relationship with Egypt," Haig said. "They know that we consider that relationship vital to our interests in the region and that we would treat it accordingly," he said.

Haig said intelligence reports indicate Sadat's murder was not a coup. Moreover, he said, there is no evidence of external involvement.

In Cairo, Defense Minister Abdel Halim Abu Ghazalla was telling reporters: "There is no coup. It is an individual group and they are not even related to any group or country."

Haig, who will lead the U.S. delegation at the funeral of Sadat on Saturday, said he may visit other Middle Eastern nations while on that mission. He said no decision had been made. Other State Department officials said his journey of reassurance might take him to Israel, the Sudan, Saudi Arabia and Oman.

Solidarity calls for freeze on prices

Gdansk, Poland (AP) — Solidarity's congress called for a freeze on prices Wednesday and threatened to stage a token nationwide strike if the Communist government does not comply.

The resolution, in response to Monday's sudden doubling of cigarette prices, was adopted after the congress passed a 34-point social and economic program aimed at giving workers more say in the operation of state-run enterprises.

Delegates also voted to hold a "people's" tribunal of former government officials blamed for Poland's "downfall" if Communist authorities do not prosecute them this year.

The 18-day, two-part congress was expected to end late Wednesday night or early Thursday in this Baltic port city where the independent union was formed during crippling strikes last year. Union officials said many delegates were exhausted and suffering from the flu.

In its resolution on price freezes, the congress said the union's "struggle" for its own concept of economic reforms had met continued government opposition and that it "cannot tolerate this policy anymore."

It said prices should be frozen until the government and Solidarity agree to any raises, and demanded the government guarantee improved food supplies. Also, it appealed to all workers not to strike unless ordered to do so by Solidarity leaders.

State High Court rules hospitals liable

Austin (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court has upheld a lower court decision that a Houston hospital predicts will add to medical costs throughout the state.

The precedent-setting decision says hospitals, even though not negligent, can be made to pay for injuries and deaths caused by their use of dangerously defective products.

Burrell Thomas, a patient in St. Joseph Hospital in Houston, died Jan. 2, 1974, two weeks after he dropped a lighted match while smoking and ignited his hospital gown, causing burns over most of his body.

His wife, Josephine, sued and presented testimony that it was possible at the time of the fire to manufacture hospital gowns from flame-retardant material.

Mrs. Thomas lost her case when the trial judge dismissed two gown manufacturers and a cloth maker as defendants and the jury found St. Joseph Hospital innocent of negligence.

But on appeal, the 1st Court of Civil Appeals in Houston ordered a new trial, saying the jury should have been allowed to consider whether St. Joseph had "strict liability" for Thomas' death.

The Supreme Court said it could find "no reversible error" in the decision, allowing the court of civil appeals ruling to stand as precedent.

"Strict liability" means a manufacturer, provider or seller of a dangerously defective product must pay for injuries and deaths, even in the absence of negligence.

Until now, manufacturers of products used in hospitals have been subject to strict liability, but the hospitals themselves have not.

The court of civil appeals said: "Where, as here, a hospital apparently supplies a product unrelated to the essential professional relationship, we hold that it cannot be said that as a matter of law the hospital did not introduce the harmful product into the stream of commerce."

The court said there was insufficient evidence to prove who manufactured the allegedly defective gown.

St. Joseph's appeal said the court of civil appeals decision, if allowed to stand, "will have a harmful impact on the cost of medical services across the state."

"A hospital should not be subject to damages without fault for a latent defect in a product over which it had no control," the hospital's attorneys said.

Boy wins malpractice suit after arm was amputated

Austin (AP) — A Harlingen youth won a new trial Wednesday in his malpractice suit against doctors who amputated a fractured arm that became gangrenous.

The Texas Supreme Court agreed Wednesday with a lower court ruling reversing a trial judge's instructed verdict in favor of Drs. Herman Keillor and Martin Atchison.

The two doctors treated Marcos Garza Jr., then 12, after the boy fell from a tree and fractured his arm on May 13, 1975. Keillor operated and put the arm in a cast.

Four days later Atchison, substituting for Keillor, noticed some infection. He cut an opening in the cast and performed some tests. On May 22 the doctor determined that gangrene had set in. Garza's little finger was amputated, in subsequent operations his right arm below the elbow was removed.

In the $100,000 suit against Kellor and Atchison, Marcos Garza Sr., and his wife Estella claimed the doctors were negligent in not performing tests to detect infection sooner than they did.

A witness for the doctors said they acted in accordance with standard procedure for a fractured arm. However, a Dallas doctor who testified for the plaintiffs said the tests should have been conducted sooner.

The 1st Court of Civil Appeals in Houston overruled Vela's instructed verdict in favor of the doctors. The Supreme Court on Wednesday said there was no error in the appeals court decision.
