

THE SOUTHERN CONSERVATIVE

—To Plead for a Return of Constitutional Government—

Vol. 8

FORT WORTH, TEXAS, SEPTEMBER, 1957

No. 9

Violent Hatred of White South Is Back of Civil Rights Legislation

Data Which Committee Seeks Was Compiled 166 Years Ago

A special committee appointed by the President composed of seven Federal officials including three Cabinet members, and ten Governors has gone into action to assemble information which the President has requested.

The special task which the President has assigned the Committee is to find out and let him know the functions which the Federal government should perform and those which the several States should discharge.

We hope it does not come as too much of a shock to the Committee and to the President but we have news for them. This job was done 166 years ago and by men who knew what they were doing.

The whole subject is covered in this terse, compact paragraph known as the Tenth Amendment to the Constitution or the Bill of Rights and says:

"The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people."

It is as simple as that, although the Committee will probably go ahead and engage in long, rambling, and boring sessions and employ thousands of ambiguous terms, phrases and expressions in saying what American statesmen said in twenty-eight words more than a century and a half ago.

Instead of travelling long distances and making unnecessary trips to attend wind-jamming sessions and listening to Modern Republicans and Fair Deal Democrats spout off their Socialistic views, the Chairman of this Committee could, instead, carefully study the Tenth Amendment and after he has thoroughly digested it, make a copy and send it to the President for his information, and that would be that.

The total cost of the whole operation would be the price of a three-cent stamp.

Joint Meeting of Notable Americans To Be Held in Fort Worth and Dallas

One of the largest gatherings of responsible American citizens vitally concerned in the worsening State of the Union ever to assemble since the abandonment of Constitutional government in the United States is planned for Fort Worth on September 20.

The affair will be in the nature of a joint series of meetings both in Fort Worth and in Dallas with Texans for America, the Texas Division of the national For America group, as the host.

Featured speakers will be the Honorable J. Bracken Lee, former Governor of Utah who will make the principal address at Fort Worth on the night of the 20 at Will Rogers Auditorium. The Honorable Clarence Manion and General Bonner Fellers will address a similar gathering in Dallas at the Adolphus Hotel on the 19th, following a business meeting of For America during the morning and afternoon in that city.

Other nationally known organizations cooperating with the Fort Worth meeting and who are expected to have representatives present are the Federation for Constitutional Government, Campaign for the 48 States, Citizens Councils, many American Legion posts, civic groups and others.

At intervals during the two-day session in Fort Worth and Dallas conferences will be held by the National Policy Committee of For

(Continued on Page 2)

If you are a Communist vigorously working for the overthrow of the American government, you are a favored citizen because the Supreme Court has made your task easier by removing obstacles in your path; If you are an underworld criminal, your status in society has been lifted to a level with that of prosecuting attorneys since that same Court has held that you, too, are entitled to examine files of the FBI although subsequent legislation has made it slightly more difficult for you obtain this data; If you are a Negro, you are the Number One concern of the leaders of both major parties because of the widely-prevalent belief that you hold the balance of power in the forthcoming elections; If, however, you are merely a White Southerner, God help you because you are low man on the economic totem pole, the perennial target of every political crook in the country with a yen to be President and you have no rights which the Congress, the Supreme Court or the White House are bound to respect. Your standing with the three branches of the Federal government is on a par with that of a Mexican wet-back and your influence in your national Party conventions, in directing legislative action or in shaping domestic policies of government parallels that of a migrant pea-picker. In other words, you've had it.

When Robert E. Lee laid down arms at Appomattox on that April day in 1865, the myth was born that the South thereby attained equal status in the Union of States and that by this surrender there was created "one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

The venom and the spleen of the North, however, was too strong to be restrained and during Reconstruction Days it was vented against the defenseless South in every devious and diabolic manner which the degenerate minds of depraved carpetbaggers could conceive. Then, as now, their hatred, prejudice and fury found its fullest measure of satisfaction in elevating Negroes to superior position and in otherwise subjecting White Southerners to humiliation and insult almost beyond the capacity of a proud people to bear.

In the years that followed, the South fought its way back and eventually regained much of its lost political equality through the adoption of the two-thirds rule in nominating candidates for President in the conventions of the Democratic Party which dominated the South at that time and whose emasculated and ghostly image still claims the allegiance of an overwhelming majority of the voters of Dixie.

The second betrayal of the Southern people was accomplished at the Democratic National Convention at Philadelphia in 1936 at the peak of New Deal prestige when a pompous and swell-headed counterpart of Thaddeus Stevens named Franklin D. Roosevelt delivered the political knock-out blow to the South by demanding that spineless delegates to the Convention repeal the two-thirds rule. This they did without argument or protest, and once again the South became a political orphan of the storm.

Since that time, Southern followers of the formerly great Party of Jefferson and Jackson have functioned largely as voiceless robots and have been compelled to stand by as impotent spectators at National Conventions with the alternative of either quitting the Party or supporting candidates whose chief recommendation for high office lay in the fact that they had never been convicted of a crime or sentenced to a term in the penitentiary.

(Continued on Page 2)

Millions of Americans Think It-The Southern Conservative Says It

South not Responsible for Revival of Ku Klux Klan

Newspapers report that the Ku Klux Klan is becoming active in the South again and that there have been floggings of Negroes in Alabama, Florida and other States.

Credit for this properly belongs to Mr. Earl Warren, Richard Nixon, William Knowland, Jacob Javits, Emanuel Celler and others of their ilk who have taken up the campaign of hatred initiated by the Soviets and have done everything within their power to stir up strife and bitterness between the races in the South, just as Communist agitators hoped they would do.

Responsible Southerners had stamped out the Klan which sprang up in the twenties but, as usual, South-haters have jumped in with both feet and are paving the way toward bloodshed in an area of the Republic which they despise.

The people of the South can ex-

IT'S TRUE AGAIN TODAY

(Indianapolis Star)

"Having found from experience, that impeachment is an impractical thing, a mere scarecrow, they (Justices of the U. S. Supreme Court) consider themselves secure for life; they skulk from responsibility to public opinion . . . An opinion is huddled up in conclave, perhaps by a majority of one, delivered as if unanimous, and with the silent acquiescence of lazy or timid associates, by a crafty chief judge, who sophisticates the law to his mind, by the turn of his own reasoning" — Thomas Jefferson writing to a friend in 1820 about the U. S. Supreme Court.

pect nothing but trouble as long as unscrupulous politicians are determined to use force and the power of their office to humiliate, debase and insult them, and to climb into office on the racial issue.

Joint Meeting

(Continued from Page 1)

America in regard to future plans and programs of that group.

Dan Smoot, one of Texas' favorite adopted sons will be master of ceremonies at the Fort Worth meeting and the overall program is under the direction of J. Evetts Haley nationally known educator, ranchman and tireless crusader for a return of Constitutional Government.

"If every American does not come down with "Asiatic flu" during the coming winter, it won't be the fault of a highly organized campaign being carried on by somebody through the press and other communications mediums. This propaganda is a terrible psychology but is a good argument for mass medication.

Fulton Lewis, Jr., has revealed that Harold Stassen, the administration's perpetual square peg in a round hole, is spending $560 of American taxpayers' money per week for a plush house in London complete with butler, maids and everything. He has occupied this house for eight months while he proposes disarmament to the Russians who aren't paying the slightest attention to what he says. Apparently he is in a contest with the man from the State Department who has been in Geneva in a two-year conference with the Chinese Reds over the release of American prisoners of war — none of whom have been released as a result of the Geneva talkfest. We are sure our diplomats and roving ambassadors are good for something but nobody knows just what.

Violent Hatred of White South

(Continued from Page 1)

Although so-called Democrats are now in control of both Houses of Congress and, by reason of seniority, a Southerner is allegedly the "majority leader" it is largely a courtesy title like that of a Kentucky Colonel and no leadership is exerted beyond a few compromising and horse-trading gestures and when the chips are down and the vote is taken, the South wins the skirmishes but the North wins the battles.

As concrete evidence, when hate-mongers in the inner circle of Modern Republicanism hatched up the dastardly Civil Rights bill with the double objective of slapping down the White South and, at the same time, providing a vehicle in which one of their number might ride to the White House, rank and file adherents of the castrated Democratic Party fell in line like duck pins in a bowling alley. Instead of standing together as a unit to defeat this obvious strategy, they joined with Republicans to deal another lethal blow to the South. And, apparently operating on the time-worn political axiom that "if you can't beat 'em, join 'em" the great "majority leader" went over to the enemy and voted for the bill. Some leadership when the "leader" not only cannot influence his fellow Democrats but can't even control himself and votes with the opposition.

The majority of staunch Southerners in both the House and Senate proved loyal to their trust and fought to the last ditch in a vain effort to defeat the vilest and most hate-ridden legislative measure ever conceived by distorted minds and, of course, voted against it on final passage. A handful of spurious Southern Democrats, went through the motions of opposing the bill during consideration but voted for it on final passage possibly in the hope that some of the credit for its enactment might rub off on them when, and if, the Soviet Negro Republic of the South is set up as planned in Moscow, and goes into full operation.

Although some of the most despicable features of the bill were removed in the Senate, the measure finally passed is dangerous, vile and indefensible. The right of trial by jury provision was first omitted in the House, put in by the Senate and in the compromise was eliminated again, for all practical purposes and only a few jumbled words, without sense or meaning were retained in the finished product. Attesting to its viciousness, provision is made for a Civil Rights Commission in the Department of Justice as a sort of glorified Gestapo and already suggestions have been made in the press that certain Negroes will be named to this Commission and, naturally and appropriately, the ones mentioned have long Communist-front records. The attorney general may send his Storm Troopers into the South not only when the "right to vote" of some Negro has been violated but when the attorney general "thinks" this "right" is going to be violated, thereby setting up the precedent of a legislative act which provides for the punishment of a citizen before he commits a crime.

The Civil Rights bill is the result which accrues when the thinking of a nation's top leaders is done by alien minds and its policies enunciated in voices which are thick with a foreign accent. The tragedy is magnified when it is considered that in the United States we have no Supreme Court in the ethical meaning of the term to which the measure may be submitted for a judicial review on an unbiased and Constitutional basis.

One of the greatest deterrents to a Communist-controlled One-World government is admitted to be the American Union of individual and independent States with their rights and sovereignty intact. The Civil Rights bill was intended to, and does, go a long way in destroying the concept of a Federation of Sovereign States, a consummation devoutly desired by the Soviets.

To evaluate the actual intents of the measure, one has only to consider the section of the bill referred to as the "bayonet" provision which was taken out in the Senate after the Reds in that body fought valiantly to retain it. In one of the most under-handed and treacherous acts against a segment of the citizenship ever indulged in by an official of the American government, the attorney general resurrected a forgotten Civil War statute which would have permitted the sending of Federal troops into the South to beat the people into submission to integration of the schools. When this provision which had been sneaked into the bill was exposed and its implications understood, even some of the most rabid proponents of Civil Rights legislation suffered acute nausea and voted against it.

At any rate, South-haters, with the full backing of the Soviet, have put over their Civil Rights bill and it should be interesting, even though revolting, to see what the next step will be toward complete Federal subjugation of the States in clearing the way for One-World Government to which the United States is being committed by leaps and bounds.

If the American people as a whole had considered it worth while to inform themselves concerning matters of government instead of calmly sleeping during the past twenty-five years of treason, their representatives in Washington, whether from North, South, East or West, would not have dared endanger the structure of the Republic by weakening the sovereignty of the States composing it as was done in the Civil Rights fiasco.

In the first place, there was no such thing as a "negro problem" in the South until it was artificially created in Moscow to stir up and agitate racial trouble for the advancement of their cause in this country and was seized on by low-grade politicians in Washington who have been riding the issue ever since.

There may have been instances in the South where Negroes have been intimidated into staying away from the polls but, if so, the cases have been few and far between. On the other hand, there is no provision in the Civil Rights bill to take care of the situation in New York where, according to equally reliable reports, thousands upon thousands of imported Puerto Ricans are hustled from one voting box to another on election day and cast a ballot in every precinct they visit.

Certainly there is just as much injustice and violation of the "civil rights" of the general public involved in a case where a minority group member is permitted to vote a dozen times for the same candidate in the same election as there is in one where he is not allowed to vote at all.

In the second place, there is no such thing as a "right to vote" in the American Republic. Under our form of government, neither white nor black citizens automatically enjoy such a "right." Casting a ballot is a privilege conferred on the citizen in return for certain concessions on his part such as his readiness to bear arms in defense of his country and to comply with certain qualifications set up by the several States in statutes governing their elections. The "right to vote" term is, therefore, just as phony as the crocodile tears of the cheap-skate politicians in Washington who wept all over the place about a "right" that does not exist.

In the third place, not one of those who raved and tore his hair over the Civil Rights bill, from the President on down, is even remotely concerned in the well-being of Southern Negroes or cares what happens to them. Their interest in the colored race begins and ends with the question of whether the Negro vote is going to Modern Republicans or Fair Deal Democrats. There was not one ounce of sincerity, honesty or genuine concern for Negroes involved in any vote cast by proponents of Civil Rights legislation during the time the synthetic issue was considered by Congress. It was strictly a battle for ballots between Republican Socialists and Democratic Socialists in which the leaders of both factions sacrificed principle, integrity and welfare of the Republic in order to win the prize.

Hatred, deceit and political ambition are shoddy materials from which to fashion policies of government and the infamous Civil Rights bill, constructed wholly of these components, stands as a cheap, shabby and tawdry example of vindictive legislative action that is perhaps unmatched in human history.

Opening Graves Is Now Becoming Common Practice

This posthumous political action business is getting out of hand.

A group of "historians, lawyers and authors" of Boston are reported in the press as having appealed to the State of Massachusetts to commute the death sentence of a couple of anarchists named Sacco and Vanzetti for a pay-roll hold-up murder.

If their plea is granted, we are afraid it is not going to do the two anarchists much good since they were both electrocuted in the 1920's and a reprieve at this late date would seem to be a sort of gruesome joke on the criminals involved, rather than a service.

Those who asked the governor for the commutation of sentence for these two men quoted the late Albert Einstein's comment: "Even the most perfectly planned democratic institutions are no better than the people whose instruments they are."

Einstein was an ardent hater of the American form of government and was cited as being a member of approximately fifty Communist fronts which were committed to its overthrow.

In all these posthumous incidents, the Communist angle is invariably clear and unmistakable and ties in somewhere along the line.

Are We to Let Tiny Minority Dictate Atheism to Country?

(Houston Chronicle)

In Edgewater Park, N. J., some 400 pupils in two schools had recited this prayer before leaving the classroom for lunch:

"God is great, God is good, and we thank Him for this food.

"By His hand we all are fed. Thank Thee for our daily bread."

A couple of citizens protested to the school board that this prayer violated the law separating church and state.

The school board ordered the prayer discontinued, whereupon a petition signed by more than 600 citizens protesting the ban was sent to the board.

The board ordered the prayer reinstated, but the attorney general ruled that under existing laws in New Jersey, prayers before meals are illegal. He promised, however, to submit to the next session of the legislature a bill allowing grace and other nonsectarian invocations in school.

This is just another example of the length to which a small minority has gone in attempting to eliminate God from public affairs, and it is amazing how the great majority of the citizens who are believers have allowed themselves to be pushed around by this insignificant minority.

This country was established by praying people and the men directing its destiny in time of peril have been praying people. Citizens who are trying to turn our government into an atheistic system are un-American and it is high time that the believing majority so labels them and puts them in their place. If they want to live in a godless country, Russia is open to them, but there is no reason why the rest of us should put up with an atheistic philosophy in government

Greatest Negro Crime Wave in History Is Sweeping the Nation

A Federal Court has come to the rescue of another Negro rapist who killed his victim in the process and has set aside a death sentence imposed against him in a lower Court.

The decision was in the case of the Negro bootblack in the Pentagon who criminally attacked and killed a National Science Foundation Secretary, according to his own confession.

The U. S. Court of Appeals in Washington, D. C. in reversing his case, cited the Supreme Court's recent decision which set another black rapist free on a technicality and in the present case, John A. Danaher who is judge of the U. S. Court of Appeals there stated that the present case "so closely parallels that of the previous case" that he saw no distinction between them.

The Court in the present case was unable to set the Negro bootblack from the Pentagon free, however, but must be given credit for trying. The reason they could not turn him loose to continue his crime career was because, while he was out on bail, he criminally attacked an airline hostess and is serving a 13 to 40 year term for that.

Criminal attacks by Negroes on white women is on the upsurge in all parts of the nation. Only those who get newspapers from various parts of the country realize the extent of this crime wave because the national news services either ignore the various cases, or play them down.

In San Francisco, Oakland, Los Angeles, Detroit, Chicago, and other cities where there is a large population of Negroes, it is almost becoming more than her life is worth for a white woman to venture out after dark.

Students of Negro psychology are not surprised at this, of course. With all the attention that has been showered on their race and the preferred treatment by vote-hungry politicians which has been extended them, it is inevitable that individual Negroes see in all the hullabaloo a license to do their worst.

Southerners are the only persons who know how to treat Negroes to keep them in line and now that others who know nothing of Negro mentality have taken over, it is only natural that the greatest Negro crime wave in history should be sweeping the nation.

They'll Do It Every Time

Paul Butler, Chairman of the National Democratic Executive Committee has named Dr. John Kenneth Galbraith, professor of economics at Harvard University, as chairman of the advisory committee on economic policy of the Democratic Advisory Council.

Galbraith was a member of the old National Citizens Political Action Committee back in the days when everything had to be "cleared" with Sidney Hillman. This organization was identified by the Dies Committee as "the major objective Communist front organization of the moment. As a front organization, it represents the Communist Party's supreme bid for power throughout its 25 years of existence in this country." (Appendix IX, page 261).

It was also revealed in Appendix IX that that Galbraith resigned his post as deputy OPA administrator after he was accused before a Congressional investigating committee of being a radical theorist whose policies were seriously hurting business.

The Advisory Council of the Democratic Party to which Galbraith has been appointed was created to "help formulate party programs."

There is nothing surprising or newsworthy in the appointment as the selection of such persons other country that has adopted such a philosophy.

This country was established, developed and defended by believing, God-fearing people.

The great majority of our citizens

United Nations Broadens Its Service to the World

We've always been told that the United Nations was a great organization which would render a service to all nations commensurate with the vast sum of money it is costing the taxpayers of the United States.

So far, we have seen no evidence of this great service until recently when an incident occurred which perhaps explains the value of this organization to a certain segment of the people of the world at least.

On August 8, according to the Associated Press correspondent in Cairo, local authorities there intercepted a speeding car which was trying to cross the Suez Canal into Egypt. In the car were two non-commissioned officers of the United Nations Emergency Force and the vehicle carried the UNEF insignia.

When the officers of the law arrested the UNEF officials and searched the car they found it loaded with narcotics which accounted for the high speed.

Now while there may be some doubt as to the quality of "service" involved when an agency of the U. N. goes into the dope-running business, there is no question that these U. N. officials were transporting a much-needed product from a base of supply to some very anxious consumers of that product in another country.

And who is there to say that re-distributing narcotics from the place where there is an over-supply to the under-privileged who are short on this product, is not good economics in the bright one-world we are building?

All the minerals of the United States needed in war are, under recognized U. N. procedure, being re-distributed to other nations of the world who may use them to blow us to Kingdom Come one of these days, all of which has the sanction of United States officials.

So long as a "share-alike" policy seems to be accepted as good economics, we see no reason why the United Nations should not toss all the world's opium into one pot and dole it out to those in short supply, as they seem to be doing in the case of the Egyptian escapade.

Whittaker Chambers, author, journalist, and principal witness in the trial of Alger Hiss, will resume his career as a journalist. Mr. Chambers has joined the staff of National Review, 211 East 37th Street, New York, a weekly journal of conservative opinion edited by William F. Buckley, Jr.

for important jobs is routine with both major political parties.

It merely points up the futility of any hope for a return to Constitutional Government in the United States so long as both parties continue to be dominated by persons associated with groups committed to the overthrow of the American government.

today are that kind of people. They are foolish to let themselves be dictated to by a lunatic fringe of frustrated malcontents preaching a philosophy that has wrecked every country that has adopted it.

The Southern Conservative

A MONTHLY PUBLICATION OF
EDITORIAL OPINION WITH NATIONAL CIRCULATION

IDA M. DARDEN, Editor

Editorial Offices Flatiron Building
Fort Worth, Texas Phone ED 2-2089

Price $5.00 Per Year

(Every paid subscriber is entitled to one free subscription to be sent to any person of his choosing.)

Sent without cost to members of Congress, members of State Legislatures, Governors, and other public officials.

A helpless sparrow can drift with the wind but it takes an eagle to fly against the storm.

THE TENTH AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES:

The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people.

Wisconsin Voters Choose The Least of Two Evils

The best thought in Wisconsin is that the recent election of William Proxmire to occupy the seat in the United States Senate made vacant by the death of the Honorable Joe McCarthy, was a direct slap at the President and Modern Republicanism.

Off-hand it seems a pretty stiff price to pay for the privilege of getting even with the White House for the shabby treatment accorded Wisconsin's beloved fighting statesman but a comparison of the two candidates would prove there is little difference between them.

Proxmire is regarded as a little to the left of Wayne Morse and a little to the right of Karl Marx and the sympathy of all responsible Americans goes out to a State which must accept such representation.

On the other hand, Walter J. Kohler, his opponent was no better. He is a "Modern Republican" and made his campaign on that issue. It was a good chance to show what they thought of Eisenhower and his "Modern Republicanism" and apparently the people of Wisconsin could not resist registering their contempt.

Kohler calls himself a Conservative but he is about as Conservative as Walter Reuther. He is the political black sheep of one of Wisconsin's most noted and illustrious families of which Herbert V. Kohler, the great industrialist, is head and whose defiance of CIO's murderous goons has won the respect and admiration of all right-thinking Americans throughout the nation.

Walter Kohler was Governor during the first years of the unwarranted and disgraceful strike by Reuther's hoodlums against the

New Jersey Official Bans The Saying of Grace Before Meals

Most Americans didn't realize how far this country has travelled toward Communist - dominated One Worldism and consequently were horror stricken over the ruling of the New Jersey attorney general to the effect that prayers before meals cannot be said in schools of that State.

In the One-World toward which we are rapidly drifting there is to be no religion, no prayers and no Christian celebrations. The State will be the supreme being as in Russia now.

While New Jersey has led the field in attempts to suppress religious activities and long ago banned the Lord's Prayer, the National Anthem and all Christmas festivities glorifying Christ in their public school system, this same program is being pushed elsewhere. Powerful anti-Christian groups in this country have been carrying on this campaign for years. They have just made more progress in New Jersey than in other States. Before they're finished, they expect to complete the job in all States.

It may be too late now, but we still believe that if enough Americans were informed about what is being done on all fronts to destroy the American form of government and the Christian way of life in the United States by powerful groups, and that if enough good citizens would band themselves together in an all-out effort to save the Republic, they could do it.

We Are Supposed to Overlook Inconsistency Of the Reds

Those who deny the right of Citizens' Councils and other respectable American organizations to oppose Communist-approved rulings of the Supreme Court, such as that on segregation, didn't utter a word of protest several years ago when the NAACP started its Moscow-planned campaign on the other side of the issue.

For instance, when segregation was "the law of the land" (as the Reds fondly classify this Supreme Court segregation ruling) the NAACP constantly made attacks on it and tried to tear down and destroy this "law of the land" and finally succeeded.

But none of the professional evangelists of mongrelization raised a hand then to prevent this NAACP activity or reminded its leaders that segregation had been decreed by the Supreme Court and was, therefore, the "law of the land." Instead, they supported this outfit in its attempts to overthrow the "law of the land."

Now, when decent and self-respecting men and women in Citizens' Councils and other good American groups oppose integration and strive equally hard to thwart it because they consider it immoral and indefensible, the Reds howl to high heaven that they are trying to overthrow the "law of the land."

And so responsible and right-thinking Southerners are expected to overlook this rank inconsistency and bow meekly to an obnoxious way of life which Moscow and Washington seek to impose on them, and to sit down and do nothing to combat this ruling on forced racial mixing and its horrible implications on Christian civilization.

A newspaper headline says "U.S. and Britain stick together on Syrian crisis". What's so unusual about that? It is reliably reported that the first thing Dulles does each morning before breakfast is to get in touch with London and find out what the American people want.

An Alert American Taxpayer Points Out Flaw in the Law

The sixth amendment to the Constitution says in plain and unmistakable terms that all Americans are entitled to "the right to a speedy and public trial by an impartial jury of the State and district wherein the crime shall have been committed."

In addition, an alert and informed young woman in Texas has advanced another reason why legislation withholding this traditional right from the citizen is a violation of the Constitution.

Mrs. W. D. Waltman, Jr. of Fort Worth, through the press and in letters to members of Congress, has called attention to Section 9, in Article I of the American Constitution which says: "No bill of attainder or ex post facto law shall be passed". She also quotes Norton's "Constitution of the United States — Its Sources and Applications" which states that any suspension of the right of trial by jury is a bill of attainder.

In its final passage, the so-called Civil Rights bill denies this traditional right to the citizens and so do so-called mental health bills under which a person who refuses to conform to one-world thinking can be declared insane without a trial by jury and carted off to an asylum.

In view of this, Mrs. Waltman points out that public officials who have sworn to uphold the Constitution but who, instead, have violated that oath by supporting legislation embodying a bill of attainder, are guilty of desecrating the Constitution and are, therefore, subject to removal from office.

Since a bill of attainder is a legislative act which inflicts punishment on the accused without due process of law, including a trial by jury, and since both Civil Rights and Mental Health legislation contain a bill of attainder, it seems to us that this young woman is clearly standing on solid ground in making this charge.

However, the woods are full of slick, tricky and "liberal" lawyers whose specialty is to develop ways and means whereby the provisions of the Constitution may be abrogated and who will argue otherwise — and probably win.

After all, Mrs. Waltman is nothing but a patriotic American taxpayer seriously alarmed over the future of the Republic and since this type of citizen no longer has any voice in the discussion or solution of the nation's vital issues, she will probably be regarded as out of order for publicly calling attention to this apparent violation of basic law.

Lyndon Johnson and Ralph Yarborough are the first two Senators from Texas to vote in favor of a "civil rights" bill since the carpetbag Senators of the first Reconstruction period, says Lloyd S. Riddle of Dallas. "May the consciences of these two deal with them now and the voters of Texas deal with them later", Mr. Riddle added. This Texan predicts also that Lyndon Johnson will slick-talk his way out of the fact that he voted for this iniquitous bill. Any bill bearing the title "civil rights" is a hate-the-South bill and can in no conceivable way be satisfactory to Texans as Johnson claimed it was, Mr. Riddle charged.

Gestapo Tactics Imposed On Citizens of Arkansas

Little Rock, Arkansas, is getting a fair sample of what may be expected now that legislation arrogantly repudiating the Constitution has been passed by Congress under the guise of "Civil Rights."

The Governor of Arkansas, acting in accord with his rights under the Tenth Amendment to the Constitution, proclaimed that the public schools of Little Rock would remain segregated as heretofore whereupon a jackleg Federal judge from North Dakota barged into that city and took over.

In short order, he set aside the Governor's proclamation calling for continued segregation, reversed a State Court injunction forbidding the mixing of the races in Little Rock and enjoined the Mothers League of that city from interfering with school mongrelization plans.

Although North Dakota has only 257 Negroes, according to the latest census figures, and Arkansas has over a half million, this imported judge who had been sent in by Washington to replace a retired official of the Arkansas bench, disregarded a potentially dangerous situation and, with no knowledge, understanding or sympathy concerning local conditions proceeded to dispense justice according to his own warped standards.

Whatever violence results from this rash outsider's Gestapo methods will be directly traceable to him and to the gang of political ruffians in Washington who are determined to corral the Negro vote, even if it means bloodshed throughout the South.

Later: As we went to press Governor Faubus of Arkansas had defied the North Dakota Judge even as the N. D. J. had defied him and Little Rock schools are still segregated.

Kohler plant of Kohler, Wisconsin, and if he had possessed as much backbone as an eel, he would have put down the strike in its beginning, instead of letting it be drawn out for years. Acts of incredible vandalism attending it have added immeasurably to the black record of CIO.

As so often happens, the people of Wisconsin were forced to choose between two undesirables, and that is what they did.

Californian Is Committed to Asylum for Criticising U.N.

Those who are inclined to laugh off political psychiatrists with their screwy ideas as a bunch of intellectual nuts, would do well to read an article in the August edition of that great publication National Republic by Mrs. Gene E. Birkeland.

There is nothing laughable about the burgeoning movement resulting from activities of the National Association for Mental Health or the World Federation for Mental Health, and if the American people actually knew the sinister and diabolic connotations of this movement, they would be frightened out of their wits and would probably become fit subjects for real practitioners in mental health.

Mrs. Birkeland is one of the nation's top authorities on the subversion phase of the mental health cult and her documented revelations concerning "terroristic psychiatry" and Soviet brain-washing tactics now becoming increasingly used in this country will send shivers up and down the spines of normal human beings.

Her article in National Republic must be read in its entirety to get the full implications of this terrible threat that menaces our already beleaguered Republic but to us, one disclosure stands out above all others and punctures the conscious mind with the force of an atomic bomb.

This is the revelation of the fact that Americans who openly attack the United Nations are being officially confined to mental institutions as lunatics. In substantiation, she quotes testimony from a sanity trial in San Luis Obispo, California, as recorded in the Telegram-Tribune of that city on last March 14. In that case, a Mr. A. R. Fitzpatrick, 68 years old, was committed to a mental institution after a sanity hearing "based on his public utterances against the United Nations". The examining psychiatrist testified that Fitzpatrick "does not come to the conclusions of the majority in his community".

At this point, Fitzpatrick's attorney, Paul M. Posner, asked the psychiatrist: "Do you mean that to hold a belief that there are subversive groups working against our government is a sign of mental illness?" The psychiatrist replied: "Any such belief not substantiated by fact is a delusion." Fitzpatrick was committed to the asylum.

And yet there are millions of complacent Americans who cannot see what is happening to them and to the Republic of their birth.

William Benton of Connecticut, dedicated left-winger who helped organize UNESCO and other propaganda movements while he wasn't busy serving as an adviser to Americans for Democratic Action, is all riled up. He is offended by the fact that the new Great Soviet Encyclopedia just published in Moscow is based on "a pack of lies", "gargantuan falsehoods" and that it constitutes "world-wide Communist propaganda". In a recent article in Parade Magazine, he points out, this type of mis-representation as "standard Communist fare". Mr. Benton said nothing of the re-editing some years ago of Encyclopedia Britannica of whose board he, himself, is chairman and which many claim was also altered to reflect propaganda instead of facts.

Radio and Television Moguls Violate The Civil Rights of A Dead Composer

If the political psychiatrists are really in need of subjects for mental tests, we can tell them where to find plenty.

They will find them among officials of television, radio and other mediums of public communication who have gone so far overboard on the subject of "Nee-groes" that they have cut the heart out of Southern folklore songs by deleting any reference to "darkies" "Old Black Joe" "massa", "mammy," and other endearing terms concerning the colored race in Stephen Foster's great songs.

If that isn't mass insanity, pure and simple, it would be hard to find something that fills the description.

The Supreme Court set the precedent for posthumous attacks on the corpse of the departed when they overturned the provisions of the will of Stephen Girard of Philadelphia after he had been dead one hundred and twenty-six years and opened his school to Negroes even though he had stipulated only Whites might attend.

Now the communications moguls commit the same ghoulish crime by re-writing the lyrics of Stephen Foster and the fact that he has been dead ninety-three years and can't fight back at these vandals makes their action all the more dastardly.

This is a clear case of violation of the Civil Rights of the dead and we hope the people of the South, at least, will retaliate by using Stephen Foster melodies on all possible occasions and that they will sing them as originally written with special emphasis on the words and phrases which the grave-robbers have deleted.

Moral: Those Who Live in Glass Houses Should not Take A Bath

We are informed that the United Nations flag is still flying alongside the emblem of the United States at the Jamestown celebration in Virginia. It is beyond comprehension why this insult to Virginia and to the Republic should be continued. Surely the people of Virginia realize the inappropriateness of placing this thing in a place of honor during a celebration commemorating the things which the United Nations opposes. The prestige of the Old Dominion is not enhanced by a continuation of this senseless procedure.

It may seem incredible but there are scores of Americans who actually see no danger of World Government for the United States through the medium of the United Nations or its twin evil, NATO. But perhaps they are more fortunate than the rest of us at that since they possess a type of mentality which would prevent them from recognizing the fact even after the take-over had been accomplished. Since what you don't know won't hurt you, they will be able to remain happy, serene and untroubled.

The latest pro-Communist term to be launched in the United States and which is slated to rank along with one of similar origin, "Democracy", is the phony phrase "People's Capitalism". It is claimed to have been endorsed by high officials in Washington who are so lacking in stamina and belief in the American form of government that they are unable to stand up and defend our great Capitalistic System and so have deferred to the Soviets once again in coining this odious and obnoxious term. If our form of government is able to provide the money to support all the tramps and beggars in the Racial racketeers, including those in the movie industry out in Hollywood, have expressed alarm on many occasions about the impressions foreigners might gain of the United States for its "treatment" of Negroes.

There is a definite school of thought in that den of iniquity on the West Coast which holds that in order to gain the approval of the Soviets and other foreigners, Americans must mix indiscriminately with colored people on all levels. In the cinema capital, many low-grade Whites practice what they preach and we do mean on all levels.

Recently, it must have occurred to many to wonder what the impression on respectable foreigners is as a result of the filth and debauchery which is being shovelled out to the public in the trial of publishers of Confidential Magazine for publicly portraying life in the raw of many top-bracket movie stars.

Hollywood is addicted to making motion pictures which are projected as "educational" and which claim to advance "cultural" causes and to put over a "social message."

Right now, it would seem that it is up to them to pull in their horns and quit trying to "educate" the rest of the country until they have first cleaned out their own Augean stables.

In Nashville, Tennessee, school board officials decided to integrate the first grade in the public schools there to accustom the people to the new order. This is the most cowardly type of integration that could be adopted. It means taking advantage of babies who can't help themselves and those who do it are morally in a class of those who would rob the dead.

world, the least we can do is to defend it and refuse to change its designation because dirty bums behind the Iron Curtain don't like the sound of the honored word "Capitalism".

More Warehouses May Be Needed for New Surplus

We're really making progress and forging ahead in this country with everything growing by leaps and bounds.

For instance, there has been a net increase of 16,869 in the number of Federal civilian employees this year over last according to Senator Harry F. Byrd of Virginia who frequently functions as a hair shirt and is not above coming up with disconcerting, but accurate, figures which do not always contribute to the peace of mind of Washington politicians.

On June 30, of this year, there were 2,401,292 of this particular species of the human race riding the sore backs of American taxpayers as compared with 2,384,423 who straddled their drooping shoulders at the close of the last fiscal year.

If the administration is not careful, it is liable to find itself with an over-production of this human commodity on hand and they may have to store them like they do surplus potatoes.

An Aging Statesman Talks When He Should Be Listening

In London, according to a Reuters release, Winston Churchill made a statement on September 2 which was either intended to aid the Communist cause or indicated senility on his part — or perhaps a little of both.

He urged lawmakers of the world to "speak their own mind and not be spokesmen of established government". He further expressed the opinion that "freedom in the legislatures of all nations will promote toleration between ideologies and understanding between nations".

His utterance is not only a strong plea for One-World government but an indirect suggestion that the people of the free world prepare to accept Communism rather than combat it.

Well, we have news for the old boy. What he suggests should be done is already being done and that is a large part of what is wrong with the world. In the United States, for instance, members of Congress—who should be representing "established government" are nothing more than spokesmen for International Socialism as represented by Churchill's England, and instead of trying to preserve that "established government" they are doing their dead-level best to destroy it.

Churchill's outburst indicates that he is through in the forum and overdue in the rocking chair.

American taxpayers are reminded that it now costs 30 cents, in addition to the regular 3-cent postage stamp, to send a special delivery letter through the mails, an increase of ten cents over the previous rate. Any one who is inclined to regard this as a hold-up should remember that we have heavy obligations to foreign countries including some behind the Iron Curtain and that our first responsibility is to them. Any way, those who object to added burdens being placed on their shoulders are being disloyal to the one-world concept and to the noble ideals of "World Brotherhood".

Aside From That This Good Californian Loves Tee-Vee

Reflecting the sentiment of most Rock 'N Roll-weary Americans, Henry D. Allen of Granada Hills, California, has struck out against the "degenerate noisy trash today called music".

Television, he points out, was developed from the minds of intelligent research engineers by the process of scientific logic but he does not believe that the ghastly and agonizing sounds which are emitted from the finished product were foreseen by its inventors.

Explaining the result when he spins the dial in a vain search for real entertainment, Mr. Allen said:

"My hearing is offended by the combined noises of howling coyotes, screeching hoot owls, laughing hyenas, hissing vultures and the death-rattle of gorillas in a battle royal. I am witnessing, and listening to a 'great ensemble' which is being huckstered by a great T.V. spieler whose voice is saturated with a heavy foreign accent. It is a song and dance number by Finkelstein and Hoggenheimer from the great mu-sick-all 'Nuts'."

As to television's value as an information and educational medium, Mr. Allen charges that propaganda groups have acquired control of this miraculous phenomenon.

"Instead of attaining the aims and hopes of those great minds who were inspired to give birth to this vast educational medium, it is being used today to mold the thinking and insult the intelligence of those who watch its programs," Mr. Allen said and added:

"Much of it is obscene in the vilest sense — not to mention the irreparable damage it works upon impressionable minds of youngsters who sit by the hour in a darkened room concentrating on the revolting sagas of crime prepared by an army of script writers and producers who can hardly speak English".

Too Bad Delegates to Moscow Can't Stay There Permanently

The trip of American juvenile delinquents to the Communist Youth Congress in Moscow in August was about the sorriest and most disgusting spectacle the world has been called on to witness to date.

Naturally all who attended the affair were either outright Communists or sympathetic to the Communist cause or else they would not have made the trip. That they should defy the State Department in Washington and go to Red China in violation of their passports is merely routine Communist procedure. Communists have been insulting the American government for years and getting by with it and why shouldn't these young hoodlums feel free to do the same?

It is unfortunate that they couldn't be refused re-admission to this country and thereby be compelled to take up their permanent abode with the Soviets where they properly belong.

This Was Most Expensive Piece Of Beefsteak in all History

It is interesting to contemplate the persuasive qualities, in the passage or defeat of important legislation, of a simple piece of beefsteak.

Perhaps it is not the tastiness of this common article of food which influences the trend of legislative policies so much as the circumstances, the atmosphere and the environment under which it is served to the statesmen whom the purveyors of a cut of sirloin wish to influence.

Senator Lyndon Johnson, for instance, did a lot of talking about "economy" for the benefit of the people back home in Texas the majority of whom are claimed to be opposed to the give-away program known as foreign aid, and helped to cut down the total appropriation for that program during Senate deliberation the first time.

Then he got an invitation to come to the White House and eat steak for breakfast and that did it. After the meal was finished the senator, smiling coyly, posed with the President on the steps of the White House and as the Texan departed newsmen reported that the President said "Thanks a million."

What the President should have said really was "Thanks five hundred million," for that was the figure which Johnson later told the press he would try to get restored to the bill and which good Americans in the House had cut out.

Although, as finally passed, the foreign aid bill got approximately only half of the five hundred million restored, we submit that the tenderloin, filet mignon, plain round or whatever was served to the Texas senator at the White House was the most expensive piece of beefsteak American taxpayers have ever purchased.

In some State legislatures, astute lobbyists are said to have largely discarded the age-old formula of liquor and blondes as the surest method of influencing votes and, instead, are supplying lawmakers with a daily diet of sizzling steaks.

Inflation and the spiraling cost of living may be responsible for this drastic change in lobbying tactics.

As A Result of Stupidity Drunk Drivers Get Break

It has just been revealed in the press that a law passed by the Texas Legislature at its Spring session is beneficial to only one group of Texans, and that is drunk drivers. It is explained that this was not intentional on the part of the lawmakers—they just didn't know what they were doing.

This explanation is plausible because this is an almost universal state prevailing among the clan, both State and National.

Further indication that the passage of this measure, which was unanimous in both Houses, was an oversight, is the fact that the great majority of our current statesmen keep one ear glued to the ground in order to stay a jump ahead of any popular movement and we are convinced that there is no widespread sentiment in Texas in behalf of drunk drivers being turned loose on the streets and highways to commit wholesale murder.

It is an unfortunate blunder and the fact that the august solons didn't mean to do it is of little consolation. Any person killed by a drunken maniac is just as dead as if the murder had been deliberately committed.

The incident is on a level with much of the legislation passed in Washington. For instance, members of the House and Senate who vote to rob American taxpayers and send billions of confiscated dollars abroad to bolster foreign enemy countries could not possibly realize what they are doing or understand that they are helping to destroy the American Republic.

All of which proves that the unwitting blunders of fools can be as dangerous and disastrous as the deliberate acts of knaves.

A new motion picture has come out of Hollywood called "Band of Angels" which is simply dripping with culture. For instance, a Negro man knocks a White woman down and wallops her all over the place; not that a white female who would act in a production under those circumstances doesn't deserve anything that happens to her. And yet Hollywood complains that a scandal magazine is hurting its good name. Ye gods!!!

In the Name of Allah What Will They Frame Up Next?

The Department of Internal Revenue in Washington has made a move which is causing widespread alarm and well it might in view of the dangerous implications involved.

The Department held a hearing in Washington on August 27 to discuss a proposed plan to amend the Internal Revenue rules to provide for compulsory registrations of all firearms by American citizens.

The proposed amendment would require that records be kept of all individual purchases of revolver and pistol ammunition and would demand that all persons buying pistols, revolvers, rifles and shotguns sign a receipt acknowledging the possession of such firearms.

What in the name of all that's Holy the Department of Internal Revenue has to do with firearms or what right it has to demand a registration of them is beyond us but whether action by bureaucrats makes sense to taxpayers or not is the least of the worries of political overlords in Washington.

Scores of American citizens have protested this move pointing out that it is not only a violation of the second amendment to the Constitution which says that "the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed" but also that a ready-made list of all private high-powered weapons in the country would be invaluable to the enemy in the event this nation should be invaded.

It is apparent that the purpose of the proposed plan is not to keep check on criminals in view of the action of another Federal agency, the Supreme Court, which has only recently made rulings which serve to encourage underworld gangsters in committing crime.

Since it is generally recognized that the Internal Revenue Department is lax in collecting income tax from Negroes, or in punishing colored offenders who evade payment of taxes, it is natural to assume that they would be equally remiss in compelling them to observe the new firearms provision.

Couple this with the apparently reliable reports that Southern Negroes in recent months have purchased an incredibly heavy supply of guns and ammunition and it is easy to understand reaction in the South against the Revenue Department's proposed step.

As an indication of how smart we are and what brilliant statesmen represent us in Washington, it has been officially disclosed that Uncle Sam is writing social security checks in the amount of $27,503,796 a year to 48,528 aliens who live in foreign countries, many of them behind the Iron Curtain. If any one questions this insane behavior of our public servants, let them communicate with Honorable John Williams, United States Senator from Delaware who dug up the information concerning this official skulduggery.

Episcopalian Ministers Prepare Big Surprise For Their Congregations

Just at a time when racial bitterness has been fanned to white heat in the South another organized foe of the Constitution has bobbed up with proposals which will compound hatred, augment dissension and multiply strife by launching something in Texas and the South called "Christian Strategy for Race relations".

From a friend in Austin, we have received an expensive 36 - page pamphlet outlining the proceedings of a highly top-secret Conference held at Christ Episcopal Church in Nashville, Tennessee, April 24-25, at which time the proposed program soon to be launched in Texas and the South was formulated.

The pamphlet is marked "Confidential - for Private Circulation Only" and on a fly-leaf makes this plea for secrecy: "News of this Conference was not released to either the secular or religious press. Likewise this Report is not for news release, nor may its findings be quoted in sermons, articles or reports of Departments of Christian Social Relations. This request is consistent with the purpose and nature of the Conference". The pamphlet is not copyrighted; it's just not for publication!

Its principal author is given as Rev. Das Kelley Barnett, Associate Professor of Christian Ethics and Moral Theology, the Episcopal Theological Seminary of the Southwest, Austin, Texas.

First, we wish to explain that in Texas, as in other Southern States, Episcopalians are widely regarded as among the most cultured, educated and responsible citizens of their respective States. Unlike some of the leaders of that faith in the North and East, Texas and Southern members of that denomination are generally conservative, sound-thinking and level-headed Americans and, aside from a few of their "liberal" ministers, are not given to accepting strange and alien doctrines either in the religious, social or political field.

The Reverend Mr. Barnett, however, proposes to change all this and to this end he and a handful of ministers and laymen of like mind and ideology met behind closed doors in this highly secret conclave at Nashville to give "strategic direction" to the movement to bring Negroes into White Episcopal churches of Texas and the South, according to the pamphlet.

It must be borne in mind that there was no question of a problem or a pressing emergency wherein Ministers of the Gospel had met to give thoughtful prayerful consideration to a distressing subject. No colored people were clamoring for admission to White Episcopal churches in Texas or elsewhere in the South. Apparently the only Negro involved in the whole proceeding was the professional agitator and race-baiter from Alabama, Martin Luther King, who was present at Nashville and was closeted with Rev. Barnett and his associates for several days while they sweated over the task of first having to create the problem and then offer a solution.

The matter of the Supreme Court decision on segregation in the schools was raised at the Conference and the question was then asked by Barnett:

"What is the Episcopal Church doing about integration in the South" This is perhaps the first time the Court decision on integration has been officially interpreted as applying to churches and this construction of the ruling will no doubt occasion surprise and amazement on the part of the average lay member of the church.

Stating that the purpose of the Nashville Conference was to "discuss a flexible, workable strategy in race relations" Barnett emphasized once more at the close of the session that "this meeting will not be publicized nor will its findings be released to the press". Since the pamphlet states frankly that Barnett and his group were there "to study techniques and methods of implementation to achieve integration in the church", one cannot help wondering why all the secrecy? Isn't the subject of sufficient importance and the proposals advanced so revolutionary that the lay members of the church who put up the money to pay these minister's salaries entitled to be let in on the secret?

The language employed both in the pamphlet and in Barnett's speech delivered at the Conference is extremely un-ministerial and is adapted more to a smoke-filled room at a political pow-wow where one faction is trying to out-smart another rather than to a grave and serious discussion of spiritual matters which one instinctively ascribes to gentle and kindly men of the Cloth.

"Is it Jesus Christ or Jim Crow", Barnett profanely demanded of his listeners, after first reminding them that unless his church acts to bring about integration they will "extend Hell's pavements of good intentions".

As if fearful that some might be slightly shocked at this sacrilegious and blasphemous utterance, Barnett hastened to add: "Here we might ask those of us like myself—White, Southern-born and bred—we who once saw no contradiction between Jim Crow and Jesus Christ—why did we change? Why are we here?". Answering his own question, this great theological "strategist" explained: "Education played a part. Social sciences helped. But above all we saw the Bible in a new light. We came under a type of Christian influence that convinced but did not coerce . . .". Actually we could add some other factors which influenced the changed attitude of ministers such as Barnett but he named most of the forces which caused those of his ilk to abandon the Gospel of Jesus for the principles of Karl Marx.

"God is not primarily interested in religion" was another of Barnett's startling pronouncements to his select audience and he went on to explain that public education, the right to vote and the right of labor to organize were of equal importance in contributing to "the whole of man".

He appeared to speak with conviction when he practically promised his group that the Supreme Court would not reverse its decision on segregation and made mysterious reference to a message which President Eisenhower had sent to the Conference the night before, leading to the obvious conclusion that in spite

In the North It's A 'Noisy Crowd' In the South It's an 'Angry Mob'

IN THE south it's an "angry mob" . . .

Other papers have commented on the difference in the way the news-gathering agencies handle so-called mob action in the South and in other sections of the country and we naturally are moved to comment thereon.

The case in Levittown is a good illustration. In that Pennsylvania suburban city sixty thousand White people have been living in peace and harmony for years.

Then up jumped the Devil in the form of a leftist organization, and induced a Negro family to buy a home in the all-White community. Naturally and inevitably, this infuriated the home-owners there and they performed as was to be expected. Thousands collected in protest and when the gathering got out of hand, stones were hurled, plate-glass windows were broken and the Negro was threatened.

But did reporters for the press refer to it as "mob action"? Not on your life. It was "noisy protest" and "unruly groups" and what have you but if it had been in the South, they would have given it the works.

There is one angle of press reports, however, which are identical whether the incident be in Mississippi, in Detroit or wherever. The Negroes involved in such cases are always dealt with gently and tenderly and made to appear as quiet, peace-of all the secrecy attending the gathering, the President had been tipped off that it was to be held.

The Citizens Councils of the various States appeared to be the particular target of Rev. Barnett's hatred and he described them as "deriving their dynamics in part from the guilt neurosis of Christians transferred into organized hate of the Negro". Perhaps it was an oversight on the part of the good man but at no point did he similarly classify the NAACP or refer to it as representing organized hate of the White man.

In closing, Mr. Barnett warned his fellow "strategists" that Southerners "can be led but not driven" and informed them that the campaign for integration would be formulated at an institutional level and that a long-range program of human relations "would make for gradual but certain desegregation of the churches". Implementing this policy, he said, will "call for expanded departments of Christian social relations in denominations, expanded programs of Christian social ethics in the seminaries, and inter-denominational cooperation between and upon all levels, national, State and local ministerial councils". Apparently the good man is nothing if not thorough and he made it plain that there is going to be integration on all levels. Period. As encouragement to his team, he claimed that youth camps are already integrated in South Florida, Texas, Kentucky and Virginia but that we'll have to see.

We hope that this slight note of warning which we are able to give by violating Mr. Barnett's injunctions for "secrecy" will help to cushion the shock when his bold plan is finally sprung on the dues-paying members of his church.

able citizens going about their affairs with no intent to harm any one while White people are pictured as savages running around with murder in their hearts.

In every case like that of Levittown, there is always a "nigger in the woodpile" and it wasn't long until it developed that the colored man who bought a home in the midst of 60,000 white persons was being sponsored by the American Friends Service Committee whose agents helped the Negro family move and unload their furniture in their new home.

The American Friends Service Committee engages in various activities but they specialize in sending speakers out over the country to address religious and educational groups and almost invariably such speakers have a long Communist front record. Some years ago as recorded in these columns at the time they sent a Negro man to address the Association of American University Women in Pasadena, California, and this Negro, one Bayard Rustin, was arrested on a morals charge soon after leaving the assembly hall where he spoke to the white women.

The Friends bear down heavily on racial mixing and, like all left-wing organizations clear up to the Communist Party they are "hipped" on the subject.

It all figures and any one who can't see the clear pattern involved in the racial-mixing activities which are getting priority attention in all areas, including the Halls of Congress, are blind as a bat.

They Run Out of Wars And Start Fighting Each Other

As if there were not already enough turmoil and strife in the world, the English have gotten into a local squabble which is pitched around the Royal family.

From all we can gather, British "liberals" don't want to give up Royalty but they want to de-horn it of all its symbols.

One muddle-headed young pinko with a title even suggested that their Monarchy should operate more like a "Democracy" and kick out the high-brow advisers to the Queen and substitute some roughnecks from the wrong side of the tracks.

Since "Monarchy" means a government ruled by a single person and "Democracy" is a theoretical term in which a government would be ruled directly by all the people, this young squirt's anachronistic bust would seem to entitle him to rank along with our Supreme Court Justices who made the famous crack about "deliberate speed" in their integration decision.

The trouble with England is that they persist in calling their country a Monarchy while, at the same time maintaining a Socialist government. Just as we in the United States are a Capitalistic country operating Free Enterprise under a government that is administered by Socialists.

No wonder the sensible and normal citizens of both countries are so confused they "don't know from nothing."

Supreme Court Renders A Great Service to Service

An item of amazing interest to the American people but which received a minimum of publicity on its release was the announcement that John Stewart Service has not only been offered his old job in the State Department but has been promised a substantial raise in salary over that he received when he was bounced out of that agency in 1951 on loyalty grounds.

It will be recalled that in 1945 hundreds of U.S. top secret documents were found in the offices of Amerasia, a Communist-planned publication which was launched and sponsored by the Institute of Pacific Relations. These official secret documents were from Military and Naval Intelligence, the State Department, the OSS and the Bureau of Censorship and were plainly stamped "the possession of these documents by any unauthorized person constitutes a violation of the Espionage act." Amerasia, the publication in whose offices the documents were found, was financed by Frederick Vanderbilt Field and Philip Jaffe of the Institute of Pacific Relations, and whose records are familiar to all students of Communist front activities.

During an investigation into Amerasia, which was later whitewashed by the Tydings Committee and whose complete report was withheld from the public, an FBI agent testified that John Stewart Service, State Department employee, had visited Jaffe's hotel room and turned documents over to him which Service warned were top secret.

Five years later, and over the protest of Secretary of State Dean Acheson, the Loyalty Review Board found that there was "reasonable doubt" as to the loyalty of Service and he was fired from his State Department job.

Climax to the matter came this past June when the Supreme Court ruled, in effect, that although there was "reasonable doubt" as to his loyalty, Service was entitled to the benefit of that doubt and that he had been wrongfully discharged.

Service was immediately offered his old job back in the State Department and, in addition, was informed that his salary would be increased from $11,250 which he was receiving at the time of the Amerasia incident, to $12,250, according to a press release in the Chicago Tribune.

The moral of it all seems to be that if you are a loyal patriotic American, you get "censured" and hounded to death but if you are disloyal, or there is a doubt about your loyalty to your country, you get a nice raise in salary.

Unless the American people firmly make up their minds to vote against every Internationalist One-Worlder in Washington who comes up at the next election, they had just as well start to practice the goose-step because they are going to need it as minions of a Communist-controlled One-World government which is being prepared for us.

A newspaper columnist (we believe it was Jack O'Brian) in referring to Harry Bridges when he appeared on Mike Wallace's program recently described him very aptly as a "coiled cobra".

Rare Executive And Literary Talents Combined In Author of A New Book

There is nothing particularly newsworthy in the event when a good American writes a book.

Scores of informed citizens are writing books and the dearth of good literature embodying the priceless principles of Americanism, which constituted a national disgrace in the Thirties and early Forties when it was fashionable to be subversive, has been largely overcome.

Today the reading public has every opportunity to be informed on all vital political, economic and social subjects because well-written and accurately documented volumes are available for the asking.

All these books are good, many are excellent and some few are classics.

In this latter category, we place a new offering called "One Man's Fight for Freedom" by A. G. Heinsohn, Jr., top-flight textile tycoon of Tennessee and published by the Caxton Printers, Ltd., of Caldwell, Idaho, price $3.

This country is famed, of course, for its able and outstanding business executives whose combined genius has made this the greatest industrial nation on earth. Gifted and clever writers are also in good supply but fate seems to have issued an unyielding dictum concerning these two divergent talents which decrees that "never the twain shall meet" within the brain of any one man.

No matter how successful in solving the intricate problems of organization, production and distribution or how eloquent a speaker in the public forum, the business executive is rarely endowed with qualities which distinguish him in the literary field.

By the same token, some of our most brilliant writers are such helpless amateurs in the sphere of business and finance that they are hard put to keep ahead of the sheriff and often must hire a manager to keep them out of the bread line.

Executive-Author Heinsohn appears to have been endowed with exceptional talent in both areas of activity. Add to this a thorough and deeply-ingrained knowledge of the proper functions of the American governing system and we have a three-pronged basis for the readability and entertainment value of "One Man's Fight for Freedom".

The book is written out of the travail and anguish engendered by the author's daily combat with dolts, dunderheads and dimwits who cluttered up Federal government agencies during World War II and whose sole contribution to the war effort appeared to be a dedicated determination to liquidate the Capitalistic System by strangling American industry with endless and interminable rolls of red tape.

It tells of his numerous encounters with the OPA headed by the champion chucklehead of the ages whose master strokes of stupidity throughout the world conflict caused many anxious Americans to wonder if we weren't shooting at the wrong target and to suggest that a greater long-range victory might be achieved by temporarily withholding fire from the Krauts along the Rhine and training it on Red bureaucrats on the banks of the Potomac.

"One Man's Fight for Freedom" won't bring about the restoration of Constitutional Government in the United States. Even many who read it will turn over and go back to sleep. But they can't escape assimilating the obvious fact that the greatest enemies of the American Free Enterprise System are those who administer the government in this country under which Free Enterprise operates.

Hail and Farewell to One of the Republic's Staunchest Defenders

Ironically, in the same Senate Chamber where less than two years ago Soviet agents and their allies in this country made a villainous attack on the late Senator Joseph R. McCarthy of Wisconsin, ceremonies were held on August 14 in which greater tributes were offered to his memory than were ever accorded to an American statesman in all history.

The major part of the Senate Section of the Congressional Record of that date is devoted to expressions of affection, respect and gratitude for his magnificent fight in behalf of American security offered by his colleagues in the Senate and to coverage of editorials from the secular and clerical press concerning his matchless service to his country.

We are understandably proud of the fact that our lead editorial in the May edition eulogizing Senator McCarthy was one of the two from Texas selected for reproduction in the Record on the occasion of the Memorial Service, the other one being from the Houston Chronicle.

We get even more consolation from the realization that, while he was still alive and during the years of his devoted service to the Republic, we put out few editions in which we failed to express appreciation for his splendid efforts to fend off Communist encroachment on our institutions and way of life, in the strongest language we were able to command. One of our most valuable possessions is a letter in which he let us know how much this type of support from patriotic Americans meant to him in the dark hours through which he so often passed.

Saga of Shame Is Related By Senator From Nevada

One of the very few great statesmen serving the American people at this time is the Honorable George W. Malone, United States Senator from Nevada.

Although he is from one of the smallest States in the Union from the standpoint of population, he is one of a handful of men in Congress who have a thorough knowledge of the Constitution and of the proper functions of the Federal government and its fundamental objective of preserving the institutions of the American Republic.

On August 13, Senator Malone arose in the Senate and in one of the frankest discussions ever indulged in within that body since the days when able men were in the majority there, he told the shameful story, of the sorry performance of his colleagues in Both Houses of Congress in recent years.

Every facet of the betrayal of this country, economically, financially and militarily, into the hands of foreign countries was analysed step by step and carefully documented by figures and data which must have added up to one of the greatest and most thorough research jobs in history.

The address of Senator Malone appears in the Congressional Record of August 13 and covers forty pages. Obviously, it is too long for reproduction—here and no point is served in quoting from it out of context.

All Americans who secure a copy of the Record and read it will be highly informed in vital matters, although they will also be frightened citizens if they have any real concern for the future of their country.

It Would Take A Lot To 'Shock and Stun' Us

From newspaper columnists, from former U. S. spies and other sources we have been getting increasing warnings lately that there are going to be exposures in the near future concerning well known persons in this country who are agents of Russia, which will "shock and stun" the American people.

We have no doubt they are right and that such disclosures will be made but they are not going to "shock and stun" us. We have seen so much authentic data concerning Communist infiltration in this country that we are immune and proof against being either shocked or stunned. With each revelation, we are just a little more grieved, that's all.

The book on which we are working and which will contain leading editorials from the Southern Conservative is progressing slowly. The problem is the selection of the material and what to leave out in order to hold down the length of it.

Any one who may want extra copies of the paper this month or a re-print of the lead editorial will please advise us as early as possible. We will try to have the type held for ten days after publication for any extra orders that may come in.