SA Senate begins use of funding committee

By MIKE MONSON
News Editor

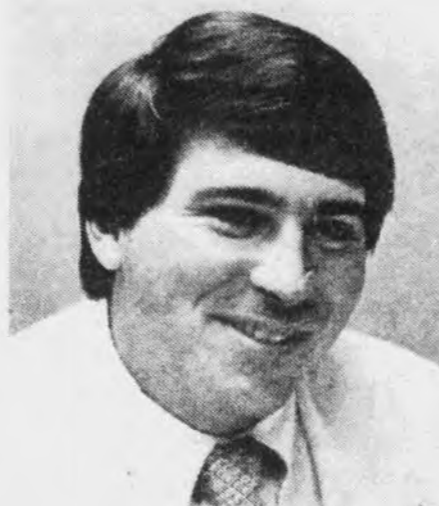

A new method to fund student organizations was put to its first test at last night's Students' Association Senate meeting.

The SA-approved Campus Organizational Allocation Committee offered its first funding recommendation since passing SA President Steve Yaney's desk Oct. 16.

During the four weeks while the senate bill establishing COAC awaited Yaney's signature, organization funding has been heavily debated on the Senate floor.

At the beginning of last night's meeting, Yaney told the Senators, "I apologize for delaying so long. But I think the Senate has learned a lesson about organizational funding."

After the meeting, Yaney was asked if he delayed signing the bill establishing COAC to "teach the senate a lesson." Yaney said, "I signed the bill when I felt they (the Senate) were ready to take on the responsibility. A lot came out during the last couple of meetings. Maybe some organizations got hurt, and they were unconsciously unfair but they seemed to be asking the right questions. They've earned it."

A favorable recommendation by COAC to contribute $513 to the Public Relations Students Society to help send one of its members to a national convention in Chicago was approved by the Senate.

Before the vote, Senator Don Atherton did ask COAC chair Suzy Deterling why she felt the committee sending PRSS to the convention would benefit UH students as a whole.

Deterling answered that since there was no public relations department at UH, the students could use the conventions to learn new skills.

Senate Speaker Robert Lusk said PRSS had agreed to help SA and Program Council with its public relations work.

Atherton then asked if the allocation amount could be amended. Lusk answered yes, but, "I recommend you don't because it would make COAC worthless."

Still holding the floor, Atherton asked Deterling for a breakdown of the PRSS allocation and asked her, "Does this mean, COAC hasn't set a $500 limit for organizational funding?"

Yaney answered for her, "There is no maximum set in the guidelines."

Atherton tried to move to amend the allocation but was told by Lusk that the amendment would be out of order.

The recommendation was immediately put to a vote and passed. Atherton cast the lone nay vote.

Alum named deputy press secretary

By MARY ANN JOE
Writer for The Daily Cougar

Former UH student Peter Roussel has been appointed White House Deputy Press Secretary. Roussel graduated in the spring of 1965 with a bachelor of science degree in radio and television.

Roussel's appointment in June as temporary White House Deputy Press Secretary was part of a reorganization of communications at the White House made after the shooting in March of Press Secretary James Brady during the assassination attempt on President Ronald Reagan and the departure in May of Kenneth Khachigian, Reagan's chief speech writer.

"Chief of Staff Jim Baker, who incidentally is also from Houston, asked me to return," Roussel said. "I have had a fair dose of White House exposure in the past. I only wish I could have come back under different circumstances."

Roussel works with two other deputy press secretaries, Mont Allen and Larry Speakes, and Director of Communications Dave Gergen.

"My primary job is to provide guidance and background information to the White House press corps and the president on domestic issues," Roussel said. "This is the one that consumes most of my time. I was also the White House spokesman and the one in charge of the press for Sandra O'Connor's nomination to the Supreme Court, until she was sworn into the Court."

"I will also be trying to increase the president's press interviews. My plan is to have groups of reporters brought in for Reagan."

Roussel said Brady, who is still recuperating from his injuries, will remain as press secretary. "I praise whoever made that decision. I haven't gone to see him since my return, but others in the office have gone and told me he is in better spirits and having good responses. I can't tell you when he will be able to return, but we're hoping it will be soon," Roussel said.

Roussel began his career in 1966 working for the advertising firm of Rives Dyke, now called Rives Smith Baldwin Carlberg. At Rives Dyke, Roussel was media consultant for Sen. John Tower during Tower's Senate re-election campaign in 1966.

In 1968 Roussel left the firm for politics. He has served as press secretary for GOP hopefuls in their election campaigns, including Vice President George Bush's 1970 senatorial race and Jim Baker's run for state attorney general in 1978. Roussel served as Bush's executive press secretary 1969-1974 during Bush's two terms in Congress, as U.S. delegate to the United Nations and as chairman of the Republican National Committee.

When Bush left for China in 1974, Roussel served in the Ford administration as an aide to Presidential Counselor Dean Burch. Roussel was promoted in 1975 to assistant and unofficial press spokesman for White House Chief of Staff Donald Rumsfeld.

In 1979, Roussel returned to Houston and has served as director of governmental affairs for the Houston Chamber of Commerce until his appointment in June.

Both Roussel's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Roussel, worked for The Houston Post. His father was the Post's art and drama critic and his mother, who still lives in Houston, wrote headlines at the Universal Copy Desk in 1921.

"While I was at UH, I did a little sports writing for The Daily Cougar, but I stuck mainly to the radio and television areas," Roussel said. "After I got out, I traveled around the country. I recommend this to anyone. I think you should see this great country of ours."

"Fate plays a very funny role in this business. When I was back at UH in 1965, I never dreamed I'd end up working here at the White House. I had planned to follow my dad's footsteps but I think I still made him proud of me. I will ultimately return to Houston."

That's where my roots are."

"Right now I'm enjoying my work and living day to day," the 39-year-old Roussel said. "I would like to do some writing later — maybe write a book about my experiences for anyone who is interested in what I've done. There's still new challenges and things I would like to do in the future. But, that's still a long way off for me right now."

The mayoral race '81 Heard claims city needs leadership

By JUDY BLUESTEIN
& RUTH BLUESTEIN
Writers for The Daily Cougar

To Jack Heard, candidate for mayor of the city of Houston, the real issue in the mayoral race is leadership and attitude.

"Why am I running for mayor?" he asked. "Because Houston needs one."

Heard believes the city "must return" to strong leadership and he believes he is the one to provide that leadership.

Heard, who is serving his third term as Harris County sheriff, said recently, "We must begin to stop crime in its tracks now. We must find solutions to the traffic and transit problems. We must re-establish essential service, with proper motivation. We can and we will return this city to its legacy of leadership."

"When we've had strong mayors, we've tackled our problems, we've solved them, and we've moved on to great challenges," Heard said.

"For the past 25 years, I've been in top administrative levels in the city, the state and the capital. I put my experience and background up against any of the rest of them (the other candidates) — or all of them put together, for that matter," Heard said.

A native Houstonian, Heard was educated at Sam Houston High School, Rice University and the University of Houston. He holds a bachelor of science degree in public administration and criminology and a master's degree in business administration. He has completed post-graduate programs in police science and criminology at the FBI National Executive Institute. He has taught criminology and management courses at the college level.

Heard worked his way up through the ranks from police cadet to Houston chief of police. In 1956, he became assistant director of the Texas Department of Corrections. In 1973, he was elected sheriff of Harris County.

Heard has been endorsed by the Houston Police Officer's Association.

"Where has the leadership gone when the police chief wonders aloud about the safety of people walking down Main Street?" Heard asked. "Basically, we have

PC Sadat forum failed to represent all views

To the Editor:
The panel discussion on the implications of the Sadat assassination, sponsored by the Program Council on Oct. 14 was not up to its normal standards of being an informative discussion presenting all sides of a controversial issue. The panel of so called "experts" on the subject contained in fact, one professor with an obvious pro-Arab bias and another without any academic credentials on the Middle East. They used the occasion to espouse their true biases. A further disappointment was that the panel never alluded to the fact that Sadat's initiative brought the prospects of peace to the Middle East for the first time. Instead, the panelists used the opportunity to denounce U.S. policy in the Middle East.

To state, as Prof. Stephens did, that the Jewish lobby controls Congress is patently absurd. This denies American Jews their rightful access to their elected representatives, which is a democratic principle accorded to all Americans. To further suggest that Israel is somehow responsible for Sadat's assassination is to ignore the forces of extremism and the internal turmoil of the Arab world. On the contrary, Israel's willingness to make concessions and negotiate for peace vindicated Sadat's efforts. I want to point out that Israel has already returned most of the Sinai peninsula, including one oil field the Israelis captured in 1973, and one the Israelis drilled subsequently. The tug-of-war surrounding the West Bank issue is extremely complex because of security reasons. It is hard to imagine the size of Israel (the distance from the pre 1967 borders to Tel-Aviv is only nine miles) and the West Bank's Arab-support of terrorist factions without giving serious consideration to Israel's security needs. The Israeli government is now introducing plans for autonomy, but Israel's defense against the proliferation of subversive elements has to be insured. Therefore, the discussion will have to take time and compromise from both sides. In closing, I want to express my hope that the future discussions of this type will concentrate on the issues stated as well as present all points of view.

Thief ruined kids' surprise

To the Editor:
On Sunday, Oct. 25, at 7:35 p.m. someone broke into our office of Alpha Phi Omega, located on the second floor of the University Center.
My message is to the thief. The pumpkins that you destroyed were for a Halloween party for the kids at M. D. Anderson Hospital. As for the things that you took, I hope you will return them, because we have several witnesses who observed what you did and I hope we will not have to file charges. We have a good description of what you were even wearing and who you are, along with the time you were in the office (7:37 p.m.). The only question is why did you do it? So I ask you nicely to please return our possessions and pay for the damages so the kids can still have a nice Halloween party. I hope you are not as cold blooded as you seem, although you give us a good reason to think so. But regardless, the Lord forgives, and I do not see why I should not. In case you do not know about our fraternity I'll tell you. We are a service fraternity based on leadership, friendship and service. We try to help people, not become enemies. So please be a friend and return our goods.

Opinion

For whom the bell tolls — us

The Dean of Students office recently received a petition signed by 39 concerned residents of the Cougar Place dormitory who have complaints concerning the bell system installed at the intersection of Cullen Boulevard and Wheeler Street. The complaints stem from the fact that each time the light turns red, stopping traffic on Cullen, a bell starts ringing for approximately 10 seconds.

We have no doubt that the concern of the petition-signing students are valid. An intermittent bell is in all likelihood, a very annoying stimuli when trying to study or sleep. The questions that it raises though are two fold: 1) Why is the bell ringing in the first place; and 2) Why is it at that corner?

For the answer to the second part, one has to go back to the planning stages of Cougar Place. The fact that students would have to cross Cullen was obvious. The question was where?

Since housing was adamant about security, the only exit out of Cougar Place was on to One Cougar Way. This meant all student traffic would exit through the administration building and approach Cullen directly opposite Entrance 7. There is a sidewalk network running parallel to Cullen, south towards Wheeler. But two locked gates prohibit any student from utilizing this sidewalk. So the students cross Cullen at Entrance 7, where there is no light.

This fact was debated by the administration and the decision was made that rather than put a button-activated light at Entrance 7 (similar to the one presently on Wheeler), the corner of Cullen and Wheeler would be designated as the administration's official crossing corner.

Which now leads to question number one. Why is the bell ringing in the first place?

The bells are ringing for the disabled students who are supposed to be crossing at Cullen and Wheeler. More specifically, the bell is an audio cue for those visually impaired people that the light has changed from green to red and it is safe for them to cross.

The irony of it all is, you can't get there from here, or in fact, from anywhere.

The fact remains that the bell keeps ringing! What is the answer? A possible solution is for the administration to acknowledge the fact that all students cross Cullen at Entrance 7, and that a button-activated light should be installed for the safety of all students.

This light would also have a bell for the visually impaired students crossing but it would only ring when someone pushed the button.

We believe a new petition should be drawn up by the residents of Cougar Place, but this petition should speak to the issue of student safety and putting a button activated light at Entrance 7.

Redistricting plans presented

Austin (AP) — Speaker Bill Clayton and Comptroller Bob Bullock offered separate House redistricting plans Monday, with Clayton's plan drawing criticism from a Dallas-area Democrat.

The Legislative Redistricting Board discussed the two plans for two hours before recessing until Tuesday afternoon, when votes will be taken on House and Senate plans.

Clayton's plan would set up eight pairs, meaning eight districts in which incumbents would have to run against each other for reelection. The Bullock plan includes nine pairs.

The five-member board, which includes Clayton, Bullock, Attorney General Mark White, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong, has until Wednesday to draw new legislative boundaries.

Rep. Carlyle Smith, D-Grand Prairie, said after the Monday session that the Clayton plans for Dallas, Bexar and Harris Counties appear to have been drawn by Republicans. Smith said Clayton, a Democrat, offered plans that would make reelection difficult for white, urban Democrats.

"It appears he is on the same program he was on for congressional redistricting," he said, referring to Clayton's support of a congressional redistricting plan that could favor Republicans. "I understand what has happened. I don't understand why."

Clayton denied his plan was influenced by GOP legislators from the urban counties. He said the lines were drawn by "our shop," meaning his staff.

The Clayton plan would pair only one Republican, Jery Cockerham of Monahans, who would be in a district with Larry Shaw, D-Big Spring.

Here are the other seven pairs in the Clayton plan:

David London of Bonham and Pete Patterson of Brookston; Dan Kubiak of Rockdale and Bill Keese of Somerville; Steve Wolens and Chris Semos, both of Dallas; Joe Hernandez and Tommy Adkisson, both of San Antonio; Clayton of Springlake and Pete Laney of Hale Center; Bill Heatly of Paducah and Foster Whaley of Pampa; and Bobby Webber and Doyle Willis, both of Fort Worth.

Several of those pairs include House members who probably won't run again. Clayton has said he will not seek another term. Adkisson is considering a race for the state senate. Semos might run for the Dallas County commissioners court.

Bullock's plan, which Smith said is more positive for Democrats, includes nine pairs, including Clayton-Laney and Willis-Webber.

Here are the other seven pairs in the Bullock plan. All are Democrats unless otherwise noted:

London and Smith Gilley, Greenville; Jerry Clark of Buna and Larry Browder of Coldspring; Tim Von Dohlen of Goliad and Robert Saunders of LaGrange; Don Rains of San Marcos and Terral Smith, R-Austin; Gary Thompson and Walter Grubbs, both of Abilene; Wolens and Lanell Cofer, both of Dallas; and Alan Schoolcraft and Jim Nowlin, both Republicans from San Antonio.

Spikers new offense fails its first attempt

By BRENDA ALVARADO
Sports Writer

The rebuilding Cougar women's volleyball team, using a new offensive system, lost every game it played against four other teams to place fifth at the Texas A&M Invitational in College Station last weekend.

First-year Head Coach Dave Olbright, whose team had an encouraging fourth-place finish in the UH Invitational two weeks ago, thinks three factors contributed to UH's poor showing at Texas A&M.

"The girls made errors because of our new system," Olbright said. "We were also playing against a field of strong teams and, finally, the girls performed sporadically. Sometimes we played well and other times we did not."

UH's erratic play caused losses to the University of Texas-Arlington, Texas A&M, Lamar and LSU. The Aggies took the title after battling UTA in the finals. Lamar was third and LSU placed fourth.

The Cougars knew they were inconsistent.

"I don't expect to win all the time," junior middle blocker Glinda Halamiczek said, "but I just wish everyone would improve their skills and decide where their heads are at while on the court and within the game's perspective."

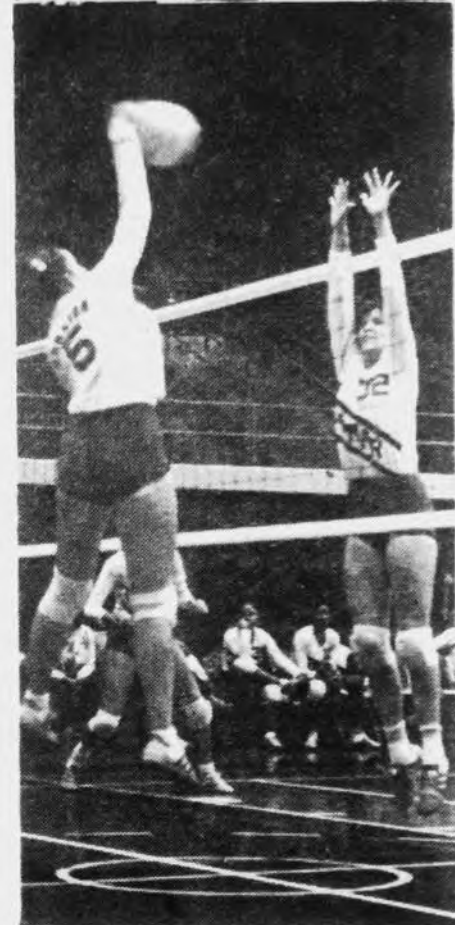

"We didn't do so well," junior hitter Linda Williams said. "We weren't playing together at the same time."

Olbright switched his team from a 5-1 offensive setup to the 6-2 system, which he says will add more offense to the attack. Under the 5-1 system, one player acts as only a setter while the other five players on the team are hitters or blockers. The 6-2 system has two players sharing the set duties.

Either setter, though, is free to assist the two hitters on the front row should the setter move to that spot when a team rotates after gaining possession of the ball.

The Cougars will be testing their new offense again when they face Lamar University in Beaumont on Wednesday. UH will have another test at the University of Texas Invitational in Austin Oct. 30-31.

Heard feels experience qualifies him for mayor

a good police department, but it lacks in leadership and it lacks in direction. The police feel that they have no understanding, let alone backing, from city hall."

Heard claimed one of the problems the Houston Police Department suffers from is a personnel shortage, which he feels results from a negative public image and a lack of recruiting incentives. Heard contrasted the sheriff's department to the HPD.

"We don't advertise. We don't have any recruitment problem, and we have a waiting list. Yet we have exactly the same requirements as anybody else. It's that attitude at the top that makes them want to join," he said.

Heard said controversial Chief of Police B.K. Johnson has "had some problems with his statements — we all recognize that — but I don't use a negative approach to anyone but the man who sits in the mayor's office. His (B.K.'s) philosophy and his direction comes from the mayor's office.

"Leadership is all the way to the top," Heard said. "Whoever — and you can't make promises who is going to be a department head — would be chief of police for me is going to follow my philosophy — period. So, racial slurs, or slurs about ethnic groups, or people from other parts of the country, no. You just don't tolerate it."

Although some of the candidates have said they will fire Johnson, Heard declined to comment.

In a Houston Chronicle editorial Sept. 17, Heard is quoted as saying, "As mayor, directly responsible to the people of this city, I will name a strong, capable person as chief of police. The chief will be responsible to me, and through me to the public. I pledge that I will keep the Houston Police Department out of politics and into fighting crime and controlling traffic."

Heard said he would get more police on the streets immediately by transferring all the police who are doing office work to beat work. He plans to use mounted police downtown and put motorcycle police back on the freeways.

Heard feels the mayor's office should have also taken the lead with Mass Transit Authority. "You can bet, as your mayor, I'll have a lot to do with MTA. The mayor appoints five members of the MTA board, including the chairman. I will hold the appointees accountable to my office and the people of Houston."

"The MTA has become a bad joke," he said, claiming the citizens created the MTA to deal with the problems of traffic and mass transit, and MTA has dealt with neither problem.

"The fact is, there are responsible, workable solutions to these problems," Heard said.

"People are confusing MTA with traffic. It's true that MTA can affect traffic. By that, I mean that if we have a good bus system and 50 percent of the people ride the buses, it will cut down on traffic." Heard said long-range plans could include a sophisticated system of mass transportation but now he is interested in immediate relief.

Heard said motorcycle police would help keep traffic moving on the freeways. He suggested creating more one-way streets and controlling access and exit ramps to freeways.

"Instead of all these studies and surveys, let's spend that money on the people who use the streets," Heard said. "Let's get the basic things out of the way first. Then we can come in with the more exotic things." Heard's ultimate objective is "an MTA so good that people will want to leave their cars at home."

Heard is opposed to annexation of suburban areas by the city unless basic services can be provided to annexed areas. "They may not have a library close by, but they will have police, fire, garbage, and whatever it takes a neighborhood to live."

Heard feels his greatest personal strength is his honesty. "I don't have a business. I don't have any outside income. I work strictly for my salary. I'm not a wealthy person. I'd like to be, but I probably never will be."

Jack Heard is confident that the voters will give him the opportunity to serve.

"We've never lost an election — and we're not about to start now."

KKK support turned down

(AP) — Harris County Sheriff Jack Heard said Monday he doesn't want the endorsement of the Ku Klux Klan in his race to unseat Mayor Jim McConn in the Nov. 3 election.

"I'm not embarrassed by it because I don't want it," Heard said, one of 14 candidates who have challenged McConn. "I didn't ask for it, I didn't solicit it. It's not the type endorsement I would seek."

The KKK announced at a rally Sunday it would support Heard's efforts to become mayor of the nation's fifth-largest city.

E-Systems continues the tradition of the world's great problem solvers.

Steinmetz was one of the few geniuses concerned with the practical aspects of electrical engineering. His pragmatic analytical approach led to the development of efficient electrical power grids as we know them today.

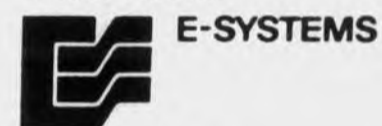

Scientists and engineers at E-Systems are carrying on in his tradition. Through the combination of sophisticated analytical and simulation techniques, they are evolving optimal system solutions to some of the world's toughest problems in electronics.

E-Systems is recognized as one of the world's leading problem-solving companies in the design and production of communications, data, antenna, intelligence and reconnaissance systems that are often the first-of-a-kind in the world.
